ELIZABETH, N. J., Feb. 2.—Sunday moving picture shows in this State gained further foothold today when all the eight houses in this town gave exhibitions in the afternoon and evening without interference. After a conference on Saturday with Supreme Court Justice James J. Bergen, Mayor Victor Mravlag informed the theatre proprietors they would not be interfered with, provided they opened only between 2 and 4 in the afternoon and 8 and 10 at night and exhibited only educational pictures. A policeman was stationed at each theatre to enforce the Mayor's instructions.

Justice Bergen said he would not interfere unless formal complaint was made, and so far as could be learned tonight no one contemplated such action. Despite the blue laws of 1778 pictures are now being shown in several cities without objection.

ASQUITH DEFENDS LEAGUE.

World Worse Off Without It Than Before the War, He Says.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Temptations to war must be removed by prohibiting conscription and scaling down armament, according to former Premier Asquith, who delivered an address at Albert Hall yesterday in support of the League of Nations. He said that nationalization or internationalization, in the sense of effective control of the manufacture and transport of munitions, might be necessary as an additional precaution.

"On these points," Mr. Asquith said, "I would ask every one to read what is so wisely said in his pamphlet by my friend General Smuts. The league should guard and aid the free development of populations not yet ready to determine their own future. How is the league to make its will effective? We must not be afraid to meet the difficulties of international policing, but there are other weapons, both economic and moral, which are likely to prove more serviceable and effective than the exercise of force. Suppose the league is an impractical policy, what is to take its place?

"If the old system continues new factors are at work. One is the incalculable effect of harnessing science to the chariot of destruction. If there is to be no league we shall be far worse off than before the war."

Mr. Asquith emphasized the importance of the league in view of social unrest and upheaval, and suggested that a league of classes was perhaps no more Utopian than a League of Nations seemed five years ago.

The Coffeeness of Coffee

G. WASHINGTON'S COFFEE is pure Coffee. It is nothing but Coffee. It is the Coffeeness taken out of the berry, while the waste and woody substance is discarded.

It comes as a golden brown powder in a can. To a spoonful of this powder in your cup you add water and your coffee is instantly made.

Its flavor is exquisite.

It is not denatured, de-caffeinized nor de-anythinged.

It is Coffee—Perfected for human use.

OUR ALTERNATIVE NAVAL PLAN.

The three-year building program unanimously adopted by the House Naval Affairs Committee will have the unqualified approval of the country. That Congress will accept it and that the bill will be passed at this session without opposition or friction can now be assumed. The reason is that the program is satisfactory to advocates of an adequate navy, and suits those who hope that naval expansion on a large scale will not be necessary if the Peace Conference lays strong and deep the foundations of a league which shall have authority to keep the peace among the great Powers and the lesser nations. It may be said that this naval plan is a consummation of common sense. If the deliberations of the Conference at Paris do not produce a practicable league uniting the Allies for the preservation of civilization without war, the United States will be free to build and maintain a navy of any size to protect its interests and defend its rights. Great Britain would not object; in fact, she would approve, because she believes that, in the event of failure of the plan for a League of Nations, the naval power of the United States and of Great Britain, raised to any strength each may deem necessary, would command the seas of the world, in which case no other nation would venture to break the peace.

On the eve of the great war the United States and Great Britain were preparing to celebrate one hundred years of friendly relations. Every difference between them had been settled by arbitration, and there was never a war cloud as large as a man's hand on the horizon, except in the eyes of irresponsible jingoes. The Monroe Doctrine had the support of Great Britain; she, too, was an American Power, by virtue of her relations with spacious Canada and of British colonies in the West Indies and in South America. If Great Britain desired to live in amity with the United States before the great war, the sentiment has been intensified by the interests they have had in common and the dangers they have shared in the conflict with Germany and her allies. If the results of the Peace Conference should not bring the two nations together, more closely than ever, in an anti-war league, Great Britain would still consider herself as an ally of the United States in the good work of promoting peace in the world. She would maintain as large a navy as she needed, and she would expect the United States to do the same.

Great Britain has suspended naval expansion, in the hope, if not the belief, that armaments can be reduced when the Peace Conference adjourns. The United States, assuming that the second three years' program with its provisos is to be approved by Congress, will also call a halt on naval expansion. No contract for new construction is to be let before Feb. 1, 1920, by which time the Peace Conference should have passed into history and it will be officially recorded, to quote from the House Naval Committee's amendment, whether there has been "established with the co-opera-"tion of the United States any tri-"bunal or tribunals competent to se-"cure peaceful determination of inter-"national disputes, and which shall "render unnecessary the maintenance "of competitive armaments."

A League of Nations would need a strong naval police and the United States and Great Britain would be called upon for the largest contributions in capital ships and other units, but it would not be necessary for either of them to keep up a vast navy and tax its people to maintain it. If the ideal should not be realized, then the United States would proceed with its three years' programs to safeguard its interests and play its destined part in the world. The action of the House Naval Affairs Committee will be universally commended. It is practical and wise.

THE SPIRIT OF THE CONFERENCE.

If the reports reaching us from the Peace Conference are true, the spirit in which the conferees have come to their deliberations is quite amazing. Matters affecting, one would say, the gravest interests of individual nations and nearly touching their cherished traditions have been approached in a spirit of friendliness and of willingness to give up old and deep-felt national aims which is simply astounding. Who could have believed a short time since that England could even discuss the freedom of the seas or her colonial policy, that Italy could so much as consider the Adriatic question or her own need for raising troops by conscription, or that Japan, in the face not only of treaties but of her immemorial needs, could submit to open discussion the question of the Pacific islands or her own influence in China?

If these and many other questions were submitted only to be settled in the ancient affirmative, the matter would still be matter enough of surprise. But they are submitted in a manner which involves the possibility of a modern negative, a negative which is often rendered. Italy and England harken often to the refusal of their ambitions and their determinations; so does even France, though the affirmatives to France's questions have far outnumbered the negatives. In this fact alone, this willingness to hear refusals, the Peace Conference is far different from any assemblage of politicians that has ever met. It is not, indeed, an assemblage of politicians, but of high-minded men bent on upbuilding the world without regard to personal fortune, and, what is still more remarkable, without regard even to national fortune.

THE SHIPPING "WAR."

The shipping war discovered last week began—so far as it has any existence—promptly after the armistice was signed. We began demobilizing soldiers. England began demobilizing commerce, and demobilized it too fast for her own interest. The guardians of American interests who discover enmity in the embargo placed on our exports at the week-end are under equal necessity to remark the friendship shown in the removal of that embargo in November. The fire-eaters in the commercial war should remark that the embargo placed on our goods was also placed on Canadian goods, and for the same reason. England must have time to arrange payments for the goods dumped upon her under her liberality toward trade; it is troublesome to maintain the rate of exchange at the figure which is desirable in the interest of all.

Those who distrust the sequence of events might well pay attention to the explicit statement in The Journal of Commerce on Saturday, quoting the official in charge of the New York branch of the Shipping Board: "The "British lines and the Shipping Board "worked together in making the re-"duction." That statement was made in connection with the reduction of rates on both the Atlantic and Pacific routes. The rates were cut by our Shipping Board in the first week of the year 30 per cent. from Atlantic ports to all continents except Europe. The Pacific rates were cut by us in the middle of January, and the British lines declined to meet it. Our competitors of several nations said that our cut was indiscreet, for it is impossible to live under the cut rate when there is a still lower rate and a lack of cargoes for the return trip. The others preferred that the business should be done by our board under the conditions imposed. And nobody said a word about our assault on the commerce of the other countries.

In what position are we to protest that the embargo is hostile because it is insinuated that the motive is protection of British home industries? If so, have we not waged war on the world for decades without the world's whimpering? Assuming that the alleged British retaliation for our cutting of rates was for that purpose, is it not obvious how beneficial that retaliation was? Did not the rise of cotton more than make up the loss on freights? And is not the reduction of the cost of carriage the same in effect as a bounty on our exports? Is not the "war" merely competition of the sort which our laws fastened upon our railways, and do we not send to prison those who agree on prices in the manner of conspirators? Which is worse, the agreement of the steel trade to reduce prices, or the understanding for the reduction of freights in the manner charged against the British and American managers of shipping? Just what was expected by the gentlemen who proposed to cut rates on cargoes in ships costing twice or thrice world prices, and worked by crews paid above world wages? Can we take it as an unfriendly act that those who can carry more cheaply than we should do so, and if so how can we make them raise their rates, and what would be the resulting discouragement of our trade?

The incident is as welcome as necessary, whatever view is taken of it. The billions the nation has in the shipping industry are an involuntary investment, and not imputable to anybody for blame. The idea that the writing off of a billion was the cause of England's "war" and embargo is worthy of a lunatic asylum. There remains an investment large enough to demand a policy, and there is none discoverable. As the case stands, our private owners are as much afraid of the Shipping Board as they are of their foreign competitors, even more so. There is a limit to competition on an economic basis, but none to business done with tax money, and with the intent to raise costs. Our war debt is considerable, but when the total is known all is said. But we are taking a course with railways and shipping toward an undiscoverable destination. The profits in the railway business were so objectionable that the roads have been taken over, and are run at a cost dwarfing the dividends. Our shipping dilemma is such that there is a proposal to justify it by penalties upon our competitors trading with us, although the experiment has been tried and found to be punishment of ourselves.

CELESTIAL MOVIES.

Mr. MARCONI's talk of wireless dispatches to the stars has set them off. Now comes NICOLA TESLA with a reminder that nearly twenty years ago he received "faint extraplanetary sig-"nals whose measured regularity was "such that they could not have been "accidental. I signaled back with my "powerful radio transmitter," he continues, "and I am certain that I produced disturbances on Mars." This seems an unkindly act; perhaps Mars, like Earth, has disturbances enough of its own without getting others inflicted on it from external space.

Mr. TESLA has small confidence in the Marconian idea of getting into communication by way of mathematics, because it would be hard to carry on conversation by figures; not so very hard, though, for it is done in most diplomatic and military codes. But he would prefer to send pictures by wireless; the human face, for example. This is tempting as a commercial enterprise; if Martian taste is presumed to resemble that on earth—and such a presumption underlies every proposal for communication—it may be supposed that the first faces wirelessed to Mars will be those of movie favorites. With this beginning whole feature films can be sent by radio across the solar system and released in Mars on the night that sees their première on Broadway.

But in all this there is the same fallacy that vitiates Mr. MARCONI's proposal to communicate by mathematics—the supposition that the laws of knowledge, or the canons of taste, are universal. Suppose you wireless your face to Mars, and then you receive the answer, delicate but firm, that Mars does not like your face and has no desire to see more of it. This would be a regrettable rebuff to scientific investigation, and one which we should do well to avoid. If civilization on Mars is as old as we are asked to believe, the Martians have no doubt acquired their own taste in faces.

SENIORITY AND THE SPEAKER.

The election to the Speakership of Mr. GILLETT, Mr. FESS, or Mr. LONGWORTH, or any one like them, our Washington correspondent says, "would carry with it a revision of "the rules." This is another and clinching reason why such a Representative, and not JAMES R. MANN, should be elected. The revision proposed would deprive the seniority rule of all its power for harm, and practically amount to its destruction. For the sake of a reform which would so greatly benefit the country Mr. GILLETT, Mr. FESS, or Mr. LONGWORTH should be elected, even if there were nothing else to be said in their favor, which of course is not the case.

The seniority rule always worked evil, but it took the war to expose its full capacity for injury to the country's interests. It was the seniority rule which made Mr. KITCHIN the majority leader and afflicted the country with bungling or vindictive revenue legislation. It was the seniority rule which made Mr. DENT Chairman of the Military Affairs Committee and made it necessary for a Republican, Mr. KAHN, to take charge of the military legislation needed for our entrance into the war. The House's committee lists are studded with the names of ill-equipped Chairmen, while men fully equipped hold rank under them.

If the seniority rule were a good one, it would not have been necessary to make exceptions in its application, yet those exceptions have been made by the House and Senate in times past. They have only been made, however, where the man who was entitled by seniority to the Chairmanship was so glaringly and notoriously unfit that his appointment would have been a scandal. If the man was merely a mild incompetent, or if the committee was one not expected to figure prominently in the legislation of the year, the House has passed over his disqualifications and given him the place.

The proposed reform would permit the seniority rule to stand in cases where the senior was recognized as a man of ability, but would put an end to such promotions in cases where length of service was the senior's only recommendation. This is more than a reform in the practices of the House; it is a matter nearly affecting the individual citizen and taxpayer, as the lamentable working of the old system in the last two years has shown. It worked as badly before the war, but the limelight did not fall on it.

THE KAISER'S STATUS.

"Legally speaking my father is dead," says the ex-Prince EITEL FRIEDRICH. "Circumstances have wiped him "out of history. You will never see "him again." Here speaks the dutiful son, for there can hardly be any doubt that Count WILLIAM HOHENZOLLERN would breathe a great sigh of relief if he could once convince the world that he is as dead as, say, his distinguished fellow-Caesar, CALIGULA. Obviously if a man is dead once he cannot die again. WILLIAM HOHENZOLLERN, once civilly dead and removed from the judgment of tribunals of this world, could live on in peace for twenty years at Amerongen.

But is he dead? It is a nice question of legal fictions, of the delicate definitions of jurisprudence and metaphysics. "The King of Prussia is dead, long live the King of Prussia," is now become as sounding brass and a tinkling symbol; the King of Prussia is dead and a Constituent Assembly lives. But the King of Prussia, considered as an immortal legal entity, a corporation sole, must have his dwelling from time to time in certain mortal bodies, from which he moves as they fall into ruin. If, therefore, the King of Prussia removes from his latest tenement of clay sooner than had been expected, and finds no other place to go, the situation is not different from that of a gentleman who removes from an apartment in town to a bungalow in Westchester, and finds upon arrival that the bungalow has been burned overnight and that his furniture is piled in the road. The apartment where he used to live still exists, although he left it; and whatever may be the misfortunes of that impersonal being, the King of Prussia, WILLIAM HOHENZOLLERN is at present only the deserted apartment. His present agitation may be compared, continuing the metaphors of real estate, to that of the owner of a property who wonders if his tenant's misdoings do not, as certain laws provide, inculpate the landlord.

But aside from these philosophical hairsplittings there is another circumstance which invalidates EITEL's filial argument offhand, namely, that WILLIAM HOHENZOLLERN does not admit that he is dead. So far from being convinced that he is dead already, he seems to be actively afraid that he is going to die in the near future. WILLIAM will have to be deader than this before the world will believe it.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Could Go Back as They Came. An article in The Journal of Heredity assumes to tell what has happened, is happening, and is going to happen to the descendants of the little band of men and women who came to this country on the Mayflower. The substance of the article is that this much lauded—and much criticised—strain is not holding its own, at least so far as numbers go, as an element in the population of the United States, and that, unless its representatives mend their ways with respect to the size of their families, complete extinction at a time not very remote will be its fate.

As the writers of the article, S. J. HOLMES and C. M. DOUD, put the case, "We shall soon celebrate the 300th anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims, but if their present birth rate continues for another 300 years, it would probably be possible to put all the surviving descendants back into the Mayflower without overcrowding the limited capacity of that celebrated vessel."

A Situation Perhaps Irremediable. To ascribe the obvious or apparent diminution in New England and the United States of the original British stock to its failure, reprehensible or unwise, to keep up its numbers, is something that more than possibly involves several fallacies. Perhaps there is in this phenomenon nothing of intention or of indifference to racial welfare, but, instead, the inevitable working out of the penalty imposed by "nature" on human beings who transfer themselves from a climate to which they had been adapted by the elimination through many generations of unfit strains to a widely different climate and influences which will compel a wholly new struggle for survival.

In the remarkable works of the late Colonel CHARLES E. WOODRUFF a theory as to the effects of such a climate and of such intensity of light as prevail in most parts of the United States on a people descended from ancestry who lived under the cloudy skies of Northern Europe was presented in a way convincing to most of his readers. The relative sterility observed among the descendants of immigrants from that region was due, he insisted, to a lack of quick adaptability to new conditions not special to any group, but common to all humanity. In his opinion, the only way permanently to preserve the old stock was by continuous importations from the old homes. If such importations ceased, he said, the United States would in time be peopled wholly by the descendants of immigrants from parts of Europe in climate and sunshine more nearly like that of this country.

An Inexcusable Form of Economy. If the Board of Education does not see itself put on the defensive by the revelation of conditions in the High School of Commerce it will be because its members are strangely blind to what is obvious to everybody else. The statements made by the investigators of the Public Education Association and confirmed by the Principal of the High School are such as to demand not only immediate remedial action but an explanation, if one be possible, of the board's failure to make reforms and improvements in the building and its maintenance that were long since and often demanded, and demanded in vain.

The exculpatory plea presumably will be lack of money, but that cannot be admitted as adequate. New York has never grudged money for its schools, though officials with an eye to the political effect of the tax rate and with false ideas of economy not infrequently have refused needed appropriations or reduced them unduly. Always in such cases disclosure of such facts as have now come to public notice would have brought irresistible pressure to bear on the misguided economists and the evils would have been abolished in short order.

It is strongly intimated that the High School of Commerce is not the only one, by many, of our school buildings where the fundamental sanitary and educational laws are violated, and where the time and energy of both instructors and pupils are to a greater or less extent wasted because of the environment in which study is done. That is not economy—it is extravagance of the very worst sort.

Neutrals Hard to Find. Count von BERNSTORFF—or perhaps he is plain Herr BERNSTORFF, now—was in this country as Ambassador to learn not a little about it and its people, and that fact probably accounts for the caution with which he defines what in German opinion will constitute "a peace of justice." At any rate, he is wiser than many of the Germans in that not once in his long statement is there any declaration of what Germany will or will not do—of what it will and will not tolerate.

The ex-Count's knowledge and intelligence save him from making mistakes of that sort, but, on the other hand, he is equally cautious when he comes to discuss the delicate question of responsibility for the war. As to "guilt," he expressed no personal opinion, contenting himself with saying merely that "the German people, in the vast majority, do not feel guilty, though they admit that mistakes were made." By whom he does not disclose.

The only way he can think of to find out who, if anybody, deserves punishment is to have an investigation made by a neutral commission. That is an interesting suggestion, but it would have been more valuable if he had indicated the lands where Commissioners really neutral could be found. Long before the war was over practically everybody in the world had more than enough of firmly fixed opinion of war rights and wrongs to bar him from jury duty, and neutrality deserving of the name had quite disappeared.

THE IDEA OF A LEAGUE.

Admiral Fiske Recalls the "Grand Design" of Henry IV. of France.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos of numerous letters in the daily papers in which have been urged the claims of certain men now living to the invention of the scheme for a League of Nations let us not forget the "Grand Design" of Henry IV. of France, about 1600 A. D.

It will be remembered that this Grand Design was to establish permanent peace by forming the nations into a Christian republic, made up of States as nearly equal in strength as practicable, whose differences were to be adjusted by a Senate of wise, disinterested, and able judges.

BRADLEY A. FISKE,
Rear Admiral, U. S. N., Retired.
New York, Feb. 1, 1919.

For the 22d Amendment.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of this morning appears an editorial article on "Why Stop with 'Stop'?" I am heartily in favor of the adoption of Amendment 22 to be submitted by Senator Poindexter and to read: "After one year from the ratification of this article the use of the words 'stop' or 'period' in lieu thereof within the United States or the Territories subject to their jurisdiction is prohibited. Congress and the several States shall have power to enforce this article by concurrent legislation."

There is a reason. As Secretary of a Red Cross chapter in a Middle West city of about 100,000 inhabitants, I was the recipient of numerous telegrams during the early months of the war. About four months after the United States entered the war, and about two weeks previous to a divisional convention to be held in our city, and embracing territory from Kansas to California, a very long message arrived from divisional headquarters. After certain data had been given as to the coming convention, the telegram read: "Stop Ray Smith en route West for conference stop." It then continued to the close of the message.

I mentally made the comment that the divisional director was not entirely there or in telling me to stop Ray Smith he would have indicated where I might reach him. However, we were in the war to win, and being told to stop Ray Smith, both before and after, it was up to me to stop him. Telegraphing to Washington, I stated that divisional headquarters had instructed me to stop Ray Smith en route West for conference, but as I did not know where to reach him would they kindly convey the message to him or send me his location. A message came back: "Ray Smith at Blackstone Hotel, Chicago, Tuesday morning only." This was Monday, so a night letter went to Mr. Smith at the Blackstone Hotel that night in which train schedules were given and stating that arrangements were being made to receive him for a stopover on his way West. The reply came back that it would be impossible for him to stop over at this time, but that he would be present two weeks later for the divisional conference.

What had been something of a mystery to the Secretary proved, when told to those more familiar with the telegraphic custom of "stops" in long messages, a joke on that same Secretary, and upon the arrival of Ray Smith at the convention no one enjoyed more than he the explanation of why the conference city had been so eager to have him stop at the particular moment of the Chicago telegram when he had planned to be there two weeks later.

And so I say that if "stops" are as much stumbling blocks to United States Senators as to unsophisticated Secretaries, then amend the Constitution!

Speaking of Mild Winters.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The present Winter to date is not the mildest on record. According to the records of the New York office of the United States Weather Bureau the average temperature for December and January last was 37 degrees. This was exceeded during the Winters of 1912-13, 1905-6, and 1889-90, with averages of 39.3, 37.5, and 40.8 degrees, respectively. The Winter of 1889-90 was the warmest ever recorded; December, January, and February each had an average temperature above 40 degrees, and March, with an average of 37.5 degrees, was the coldest month of the Winter. A good many of your readers ought to be able to remember it. Even the most recent example of mildness, 1912-13, showed a minimum temperature for December and January of 17 degrees, which is 8 degrees higher than the minimum so far recorded this Winter.

With respect to snowfall, our present shortage was equaled or exceeded during the Winters of 1913-14, 1905-06, 1900-01, 1889-1900, 1895-96, and 1888-89, in none of which did the Winter's snowfall up to Feb. 1 exceed 4 inches.

With respect to the close proximity of mild and cold Winters, it may be noted that the mild one of 1905-06 followed the severe one of 1904-05, but that the record-breaking mildness of 1889-90 was preceded and followed by others abnormally mild and had to wait twenty-seven years to meet its antithesis in the record-breaking cold of last Winter.

This has so far been an unusually mild Winter, but not a record-breaker. C.

VENEZUELA'S STATUS.

A Long Period of Personal Rule and the Result.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In these days of historical clarification bearing on the proposed League of Nations I hope you will find of general interest the following data regarding my country, Venezuela.

On account of our Spanish blood the history of the peninsula is a touchstone for the investigation of our political development, for it teaches how Spain for many centuries groaned under the sundry tyrannies of Carthage, Rome, the Barbarians, and the Arabs, a period in which our ancestors acquired the pernicious habit of servility unfortunately inherited by their descendants. It is not, then, surprising to find that after Spain became independent her native rulers, with few exceptions, imitated the example of the overthrown foreign masters and governed that country in the same despotic and unscrupulous fashion; nor is it extraordinary to learn that the commanders in chief that Spain sent to Venezuela were faithful adherents to the doctrine of might, and that the creole, negro, and Indian population under their away became practically their slaves. Servility had therefore taken deep root among us as a national trait, greatly aided by the profound ignorance in which the masses were kept within the narrow limitations of the Roman Church as the only available source of education.

American independence and the French Revolution stimulating our most receptive minds brought the hopeful sign of our insurrection against the intolerable Spanish yoke, when the theory of the divine right of Kings was to receive its finishing stroke in our country, but as a logical consequence of the inveterate habit of servility the majority of our people still clung desperately to the theocratic doctrine and created the "providential" man whom the saner element preferred to call "indispensable." Through this new conception Bolivar was during our days of struggle for independence our sole guiding spirit, so much so that our Congress, supposedly the highest authority in the conduct of the war, became entirely subservient to him.

After the death of our liberator the eighty-odd years of Venezuelan history as an independent State are identified with the lives of five so-called providential or indispensable men: Paez, Guzman, Crespo, Castro, and Gomez. These five men have become in succession absolute rulers of the country, in a direct or indirect way, for considerable lengths of time. They all have attained power through the sword, so that it is axiomatic in Venezuela that "the world belongs to the bully." They all have had a great cause to defend, which in practice only embodies their own personalities, and wherever they have used their pet precept "slaves of my ideas or enemies of the cause" they have only meant in plain English: Think as I do or you will become my personal enemy. On the other side the degrading submissiveness of our people is pitifully and clearly defined in the almost general assertion, "Haré lo que quiera el Jefe," (Whatever the chief commands I will do,) as a modern version of "I hear and obey," which echoed centuries ago through the corridors of the Alhambra.

But the path of our heroes is not all flowery; as we give all the honor and the glory to our supreme chiefs, in the same manner we place all the blame upon them when things go wrong, instead of blaming the system which has produced them; and as we turn to the self-called reformers we find that in their preliminary negotiations for saving the country the greatest problem is not how our single political panacea, the revolution, must be carried through to a satisfactory conclusion or how things are to be arranged in order to establish a true democracy with the help of all the people; the question of paramount importance is, Who is going to be the supreme chief? And here, at least, we have one explanation why personalism always revives and flourishes among us.

After reading this bit of Venezuelan history, is it not pertinent to ask: "Has Venezuela even been a republic, and, if not, what is her true political status?"

The News from Epirus.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The news which has reached the organization of the Epirotes in America that the district of Korytsa has been surrendered by the French authorities to the Greek Government and that the people of Korytsa welcomed the Greek soldiers with unbounded enthusiasm, and the more recent news that Italy has evacuated Frassari, Delvinon, Delvinaki, Premeti, and other districts and that Greek officials have been sent there, indicate a better understanding between Greece and Italy in the Balkans.

The memorandum of Mr. Venizelos and his unwavering purpose not to sacrifice the Greek province of Northern Epirus to foreign domination have evidently impressed those who looked for expansion at the expense of Greece in that part of the country.

Apparently a better mind begins to direct the statesmen of Europe. And this fact should make us hope for an even greater understanding between the peace delegates.

THE LOOMS.

The looms that sing in Germany under the hands of men,
Are they singing old songs they knew before the war—
Of red-roofed towns in Belgium they will not see again,
Of little Belgian children playing near a cottage door,
Of sturdy Belgian workmen who sought the window lights,
Coming home at evening along a quiet way?
The busy looms in Germany have looked on cruel sights—
I wonder what they whisper as they swing and weave today!

The busy looms in Germany are making cloth for men;
They always chatter as they work—the looms are never still.
I wonder if the workers ever start and tremble when
They hear the curse of stolen things amid their thrift and skill.
Into the cloth in Germany is woven blood and tears—
A Nessus shirt for Germany of poison and of fire.
The hand of fate is weaving and a scarlet thread appears—
The thing that's made in Germany is cursed beyond desire.

The singing looms in Germany give work to German men;
The factories in Belgium are broken and despoiled.
The Belgian workman does not find his wife and child again,
His church bell, or his hearthstone, or the loom at which he toiled.
The workingmen in Germany are asking us for bread,
While their singing stolen looms resound across the sea.
They ask us to forget the men who search uncomforted,
Amid the desolation wrought by men of Germany.
But though the German people shout across the hemisphere,
The singing of their stolen looms is all that we can hear.

TO UNITE MEXICAN FACTIONS

Objects of Alliance Formed Here Told by Enrique C. Llorente.

A movement has been started among Mexicans living in the United States which has for its purpose among other ideals the uniting of the various factional elements of the republic in order to establish a permanent peaceful régime and to preserve the country's sovereignty and integrity. Enrique C. Llorente, who represented the Convention Provisional Government of Mexico in this country in 1915, Federico Gonzales Garcia, and Ramon Prida, leaders of the movement, disavow any desire to foster a new revolution in Mexico. On the other hand, they declared yesterday, in making public the details of the movement, that their plan has met with the enthusiastic indorsement of leaders of all parties in Mexico to whom it has been communicated.

An organization known as the Alianza Liberal Mexicana was perfected in this city last November, according to Mr. Llorente, who said that chapters had been formed in several American cities having Mexican residents. The alliance was in no sense a political party, he said, nor would its members tolerate any attempt to make it a tool for the purpose of supporting or opposing the present régime in Mexico.

A formal statement by Mr. Llorente said that the alliance had already started a campaign of education to acquaint the public with the ideals for which it had been formed. Among these are organization of the courts of justice to insure fair and impartial trials; primary education in all parts of the republic; recognition of the right of every Mexican to remain within the borders of the republic regardless of political, religious, or economic principles; respect for all religious creeds; distribution of lands, but with respect for property rights legitimately acquired, and the establishment of the economic independence of Mexico through the development of its national wealth on the basis of equity of international exchange of products.

The executive officers of the alliance are Mr. Llorente, General Felipe Angeles, General Antonio I. Villarreal, Enrique Santibanez is Secretary, and Federico Gonzalez Garza is Treasurer. The provisional headquarters in New York is at 22 West Seventy-eighth Street.

FEARS BAN ON IMMIGRATION.

League Sees Possibility of Many Returning to Europe.

The National Liberal Immigration League yesterday gave out the following statement:

"Prior to the entrance of the United States into the great war Congress passed over the repeated veto of the President the literacy test. That this was a measure lacking in foresight was indicated when in the course of the last year the Department of Labor, through the Bureau of Immigration modified the operation of the literacy test and also the contract labor law because of the shortage of labor. Immigrants were permitted to enter from the north and south through contracts made before they reached the border and without taking the test for reading. It would have been desirable to have waited to see if further restrictions were needed.

"We now have a proposal to shut out immigrants before we know whether there will be any immigrants or not. Indeed, many are likely to go to Europe to buy land because they believe it will be cheap, to visit relatives, to look for inheritances, and perhaps, in the case of Italy, because Italy is calling for them. It would be wiser, therefore, to wait until we have a problem before we attempt to solve it."

Delegates representing [illegible] Jewish organizations having a total membership of about 68,000 and comprising the United Jewish Organizations of Greater New York, met yesterday afternoon at the University Settlement House at 184 Eldridge Street for the purpose of protesting against the Burnett Immigration bill now pending in the House of Representatives and which purposes to close the doors to immigrants for a period of four years.

The Executive Committee was instructed by the delegates to select a committee to go to Washington to interview the Congressmen from New York City and to ask them to support a minority report on the bill. It was also decided to hold a series of mass meetings in the auditoriums of the public schools of the city and to circulate petitions in the districts where ex-immigrants are now living.

FAVORS A FREE ARMENIA.

Archbishop of Canterbury Tells of Sentiment in England.

The American Committee for the Independence of Armenia yesterday made public a letter from the Archbishop of Canterbury telling of strong sentiment in England for the proposal to make Armenia a free and independent State. This letetr was directed to Bishop Greer of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York, and said:

> I have today received the telegram you sent to me on behalf of eighty-two of your brother Bishops of the American Church in protest against the possibility of Armenia being in the coming arrangements left under Turkish rule. There are very few subjects upon which we can more certainly than on this secure the unanimous and eager support of Christian people generally without distinction of denomination. The Government here is well aware of the strength of public opinion on the subject. It has been voiced not only by ecclesiastics, though we have voiced it to the best of our power, but also by men like Lord Bryce and many others.
>
> I am at once transmitting to the Foreign Office a copy of your telegram, together, of course, with a further letter from myself. I presume that the President of the United States is fully aware of the Christian sentiment of America on this subject, and I doubt not that he will himself press the matter upon the attention of the representatives of the allied powers. No honest and capable man will fail to see that the practical question of how the thing is to be done is surrounded with difficulties, but these difficulties have to be overcome, and certainly on my part no effort will be lacking to support those who are working for that end.

The New York Federation of Churches yesterday forwarded by cable a resolution to President Wilson urging him to "champion the right of Armenia to a free national existence within her historic boundaries" and suggesting that "either Great Britain or America extend to Armenia such aid as she may need during her formative period."

TELLS OUR WORLD DUTY.

Dr. Wheeler Says the League of Nations Must Be Established.

Dr. Edward J. Wheeler, editor of Current Opinion, who recently returned from a tour of the allied countries, delivered an address last night at the Madison Avenue Methodist Church, Madison Avenue and Sixtieth Street.

"The League of Nations is a sovereignty which not only will be, but which must be. There is hardly a problem that can be settled without some form of a League of Nations. The German colonies, the Balkan troubles and the guarding of the German territory in the hands of the Allies can only be satisfactorily settled in this way. The world cannot be without a League of Nations and the League of Nations cannot do without the co-operation of the United States."

Dr. Wheeler said it was a "manifest destiny" that was forcing the United States to take part in outside affairs. He said we had the Philippines thrust upon us, and that we did not wish to take over the Panama Canal, but that they were duties which we were compelled to take up.

SAYS WAR HAS MADE THE WORLD POORER

Dr. Hollander Tells Beth-El Congregation That Society Has Not Gained.

LABOR'S INCOME TO SUFFER

Despite Its Ability to Bargain Collectively, He Says, Its Market Will Be Glutted During Readjustment.

In an address on "War and Want" given before the congregation of Temple Beth-El, Fifth Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street, yesterday morning, Dr. Jacob H. Hollander, head of the Department of Political Economy at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, took issue with those who, he said, found in the war a specific social and economic gain to society, particularly the working class. He declared that thoughtful consideration of the subject would show the fallacy of such an attitude. The reduction of wages in wartime industries and post-bellum unemployment showed, he said, that the world was the poorer because of the calamity of war.

The largest ill which the wage-earner would suffer from the economic sequel of the war, Dr. Hollander said, was the impairment of the State's power to engage in projects of social betterment, the result, as he expressed it, of the incredible squandering of the world's wealth in war expenditure. The injury done, he asserted, extended beyond the people of this generation. On the question of wages and labor, the speaker said, in part:

"It is not only from the unemployment or reduced employment of demobilization that the working classes' incomes are bound to suffer. Peace pricks the bubble of war gains, be they excess profits or bonus wages. With the nation's existence in the balance there is neither time nor warrant for that competitive higgling which in the long run is the safeguard of society. War loans and war taxes supply seemingly limitless funds, and the Government, always a generous employer, is under critical stress, less than ever disposed to drive a hard bargain.

"The rule of commercial employment is different. The margin is scantier, the competition fiercer. Just as profits pass from the years of plenty to the years of famine, so the labor world confronts the changed conditions of a reduced social surplus and more drastic division. Organized labor will struggle bravely and in a measure successfully against this drift. It will be able to substitute part time employment of an entire labor force for outright unemployment of some part of that force; it will be able to resist unnecessary encroachment upon its wage scales, and, most important of all, it will be able to maintain its existence as an instrumentality for collective bargaining. But the larger penalties it cannot escape. The labor market will be glutted—acutely during the period of readjustment, appreciable thereafter—and unemployment and part time employment must result."

Dr. Hollander analyzed the labor situation since the beginning of the war, showing the change of wartime conditions to the wage earners. He told of the unprecedented wages that were being paid unskilled labor. The scale of wages had enabled thousands of men to glimpse standards of living hitherto unattainable, the speaker said.

"Like every other feverish stimulation the gain was achieved at excessive cost," Dr. Hollander added. "There is no short cut to general economic improvement. The individual may profit by the chance event. War brides will confer beatitude upon the laborer as well as the enterpriser. But, bargaining equality once attained, wage earners, as a class, are likely to advance and to retain their vantage only by the hard road of greater efficiency, increased production, intelligent thrift, and rational expenditure."

Wartime industry had failed to do these things, he said. There was increased production, he pointed out, but not of the goods that ministered to the wants and conveniences of men. Commodities were created, he declared, and not utilized. There was very little thrift and much waste, he added, "easy come, easy go," becoming the rule of working class economics.

Many machines constructed for war purposes are now being modified for commercial uses. An immense number of engineers, mechanics, and pilots have set to work on new aeronautic problems.

SHOW FRENCH BACK IN ALSACE-LORRAINE

Throng at Globe Theatre Sees Exhibition of Pictures of the Triumphal Entry.

JOY OF POPULACE EVIDENT

Spokesman of France Confers Cross of Legion of Honor on Charles R. Miller.

At the Globe Theatre yesterday afternoon, 1,200 members of the Association Générale des Alsaciens-Lorrains witnessed in motion pictures the triumphal entry of the French into their native Metz, Strasbourg, Mulhouse, and Colmar, and cheered and applauded as the familiar figures of French military leaders galloped across the screen at the head of marching columns. The pictures were the official films of the French Cinematographic Division, and they were prefaced by an address in which Marcel Knecht of the French High Commission told "How Alsace and Lorraine Have Become French Again."

In the course of the entertainment M. Knecht introduced Controller General Johannet of the French High Commission, who conferred the boutonniere and Cross of a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor upon Charles R. Miller, editor of The New York Times. M. Johannet made the presentation in behalf of Edouard de Billy, French High Commissioner to the United States, who was in Washington.

M. Knecht reviewed the history of the slavery of Alsace-Lorraine under German rule and said that the famous bell of Metz, which had remained silent during the forty-eight years of Prussian tyranny, silent so long that it became known to the populace as "the mute," was once more ringing joyously, clanging forth "I am here to ring for justice."

"Our enemies proposed a plebiscite for Alsace-Lorraine," he added. "When you see these pictures which are to be presented to you now you will witness for yourselves the fallacy of such an idea.

Joyous in Their Freedom.

"You will see the French Tricolor acclaimed by a joyful populace, the dancing children in their native costumes, all taught by their mothers to love France. You will understand on which side these people were during the struggle and with whom their sympathy now lies.

"Thank God the children of these provinces now kiss the French flag, which means so much to them after their long endured slavery. One of their mothers on that triumphal day in November was so overcome with emotion at the historic sight of French troops marching through her native village that she cried out to all who could hear that it was a more beautiful day than that on which she was married. Those who hoped to see a red flag flying over Alsace-Lorraine may now see the French tricolor, the flag of 1869.

"You will see what temples of patriotism the cathedrals of Alsace-Lorraine became at the reception to the victorious French. The unity of spirit among our people in those provinces caused them to throng in vast assemblages into the houses of worship on that day to thank God for their deliverance. Plebiscite—that was the plebiscite."

Mme. Delaunois of the Metropolitan Opera Company then sang the "Habanera" from "Carmen" and a folksong of Lorraine, and M. Léon Rothier "The Star-Spangled Banner" and the "Marseillaise," while a dozen French sailors from the French cruiser Gloire stood at present arms behind him on the stage.

Legion of Honor Cross Conferred.

The sailors came to present arms again during the brief ceremony in which M. Johannet, who spoke in French, conferred the Cross of the Legion of Honor upon Mr. Miller. Mr. Johannet said:

"Mr. Miller: On behalf of the President of the Republic, for your distinguished services to France during the war just closed, I make you a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor."

Replying, Mr. Miller said that the honor bestowed upon him was an appreciation of a labor in which not only his pen was engaged but also his heart. Every good American loved France, he said, and if during this war he had done something, however slight, to make clear to Americans the ideals that inspired France, he was very glad, because it was the desire of every American to aid in this cause. He was glad, too, he said, for the repatriation of Alsace-Lorraine after her many sufferings. Against that monstrous wrong of forty-eight years ago, Mr. Miller concluded, America had always protested.

The pictures were divided into two groups, the first showing the entry of the conquering French into Lorraine, the second presenting the evenly swinging columns of sturdy poilus, tramping through the streets of Alsatian cities. A click and the streets of Diouze were packed with a jubilant throng and through a lane came the French Foreign Legion, rapier-like bayonets, short, snappy step, in line after line and wave after wave. As the veterans marched past, the enthusiasm of the liberated Lorraine was unbounded, the troops passing between lines that cheered without halt and under a shower of flowers from balconies, windows and housetops.

With Marshal Pétain astride a white horse riding ahead, the columns strode proudly through Phalsbourg, Sarrebourg; then shifting to Alsace, where Generals Hirschauer, de Castelnau and Gouraud entered the picture beside Pétain, down to Metz, the once great stronghold of the Germans. The pictures disclosed that the French marched back to Alsace and Lorraine with the Stars and Stripes entwined with the Tricolor on gunstock and cannon.

"IN NERVOUS TRIALS the very root of the trouble seems to lie in the loss of power to endure and in the sense that the ordinary underpinnings of life are giving way.

"Relief comes not only as a blessing in itself, when the end of pain has been accomplished, but as part of a far greater blessing in a deeper understanding and appreciation of life."

NEW AUTOS LURE BUYERS TO SHOW

Many Inquiries by Prospective Purchasers Portend a Prosperous Trade Year.

CHANGE IN WHEEL BASES

Tendency to Shorten Them Noted in Exhibits—Growing Popularity of the Six-Cylinder Motor.

Visitors from the industrial centres of the country discussed with general interest in the big hotels yesterday the successful opening of New York's nineteenth motor car show in Madison Square Garden and the Sixty-ninth Regiment Armory Saturday night. The inquiries for new cars from prospective purchasers were so numerous on the first night as to lend truth to the prediction that the coming year will be one of the most prosperous that the automobile trade has ever experienced.

The show will open in both buildings today, beginning at 10 o'clock this morning and will continue throughout the week. One of the marked features of this year's show is the steadily increasing popularity of the six-cylinder motor. Nearly 55 per cent. of the models in both buildings are of that type; the four-cylinder cars represent about 30 per cent. The eight and twelve-cylinder makes have remained practically stationary for four years, the eights leading the twelves by a slight margin.

"It is interesting to note the growing tendency toward shorter wheel bases," said a Detroit engineer. "This gradual change is not due to any objections to the long wheel base, having its prime reason in the ability to reduce the weight of the cars. Designers have been able to obtain just as much passenger space and in some cases a slightly longer tonneau from the reduced wheel base, because they have been able to simplify the engine construction, thereby shortening the hood while obtaining greater power from the motor.

"Longer springs have lengthened the period of vibration, which was generally too short on the small cars, and this improvement has added immensely to the comfort and ease of riding. The shorter power plant seems bound to be one of the important post-war developments in future automobile construction."

Nearly 90 per cent. of the 1919 cars now carry vacuum fuel feed systems. On the remaining models the gravity and pressure feed systems are about even. The adoption of the vacuum method of fuel feeding to the carburetor has been one of the rapid advances in the last four years.

The special motor feature today outside of the show will be the dinner in honor of Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, the airplane fighter, at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in the evening. All of the different motor organizations will be represented. It is expected that more than 1,000 motorists will be present. Representative Ireland of Ohio will be toastmaster and Secretary of War Baker will be one of the guests and speakers. As this will be Army and Navy day at the show several hundred invitations have been extended to the officers and other men in both of those branches of the Government in the city to visit the exhibition.

NEW YORK'S MOTOR TRUCKS

Over 75,000 in the State, of Which New York City Has 32,000.

Figures just compiled by Secretary of State Francis M. Hugo give the registration of motor trucks for the past two years in the Bronx, Kings, New York, Queens, and Richmond counties, the amount paid in registering, as well as the percentage of registration increase in the various counties the past year over 1917. They are of interest to motor truck distributers, to the business world in general and likewise to other sections of this State which have also enjoyed a remarkable expansion in the number of their motor trucks during the last twelve months.

New York City has approximately 32,000 motor trucks, representing a gain of 7,000 for the year. During the same period New York State increased its trucks from 55,402 to 75,268, a year's gain of 19,866 vehicles representing 34 per cent.

The following figures give the motor truck registration in the New York City boroughs for 1917 and 1918:

	1917.	1918.	Inc.	P. C. Inc.
Bronx	1,440	1,988	548	38
Kings	6,809	8,831	2,022	30
New York	14,250	17,046	2,796	20
Queens	2,025	2,746	721	36
Richmond	554	801	247	40

The increase in receipts amounts to $150,476, or 30 per cent.

Secretary Hugo estimates the number of motor trucks which will be registered in the State during the present year at 115,000, which means an increase of approximately 40,000.

"This year will be the biggest and best the automobile world has ever known," said Secretary Hugo. "An early resumption of the normal output, a market practically barren and clamoring for cars, and the return of ordinary business conditions are the arrows that serve to point the way."

SOLDIERS' RIGHTS DEFINED.

Newton Explains Status of Those Who Held State Jobs.

ALBANY, Feb. 2.—Attorney General Charles D. Newton has prepared an opinion, which was made public tonight, defining the rights of returning soldiers, sailors, and marines who were State or municipal officers or employes at the time of their enlistment or induction into service.

The opinion was rendered in interpreting a wartime amendment to the State's military laws in which it was provided that civil officers and employes entering Federal military service could return to their old positions if they desired, that the difference between their civil and military pay should be paid by the State or cities and that their promotion and advancement ratings should be retained.

The intent of the statute, he says, is to have a soldier treated in matters of reinstatement, re-employment, promotion, vacation, and compensation exactly as if he had not been away. His rights are no greater and no less than if there had been no war.

Where a civil employe would have been entitled to promotion as of a definite date, if he were not in the army, he should get it on that date in spite of his absence, and should be paid accordingly from that date and not only from the time of his return to civil duty.

So long as a soldier-civil employe remains in the army he is protected by the statute up to two months after the declaration by the President that peace has been consummated. But he cannot elect to remain in the army after that and continue to draw pay from the State or the cities during his army service beyond the two months' period.

After discharge a man should return to his civil duties in a reasonable time. What is reasonable the head of the department employing him should determine.

Catholics to Aid Soldiers to Jobs.

In order to help provide employment for the returning soldiers, sailors, and marines, the National Catholic War Council has started a canvass of Manhattan and the Bronx to interview employers and arrange to have men who are discharged from the service step into jobs for which they are fitted. More than 3,000 workers of the council have formed a special war activities committee to support the United States Employment Service, and eleven bureaus have been opened in the two boroughs. More bureaus will be opened during the week. Headquarters have been established at 30 East Forty-second Street.

New Books of Lasting Interest and Value

Wit, Wisdom and Foibles of the Great
By Charles A. Shriner

A fascinating new volume which introduces in an intimate and personal way the men and women whose public lives form important chapters in history, but whose private lives are largely sealed books. Here are hundreds of stories and anecdotes revealing the personal habits, inclinations, and experiences which indicate the real characters of these people. This work offers the most enlightening and interesting footnotes to history. 600 pages, cloth bound. Price, $5.00, net; by mail, $5.16.

"It is a most valuable book of reference in a library."—John Hays Hammond.

Expressive English
By James C. Fernald, L. H. D.

This is destined to be one of the great books on the English language. The author places meaning above every other consideration in writing and speaking, and he shows how the writer or speaker can convey the exact impression he wishes to convey, with the greatest power and beauty. All phases of English expression are treated in a most helpful and enlightening way that puts the full power of the language at the command of the reader. Seldom has there appeared a book on this subject written in so entertaining a style. Never has there appeared one that presents the subject in a more modern and usable way. Cloth bound, 474 pages. Price, $1.60, net; by mail, $1.72.

"The emphasis on principles, the preference for plain language, and the adaptation of the subject to the needs of the practical man, are the best features."—T. W. Hunt, Litt. D., Ph.D., Princeton University.

Nerve Control and How to Gain It
By H. Addington Bruce

The cloud of mystery, which hides this vital subject from the average man or woman, is blown aside by this enlightening and reassuring book. In a simple and sympathetic manner the author explains health-giving nerve control in all its phases. The importance of proper food, habits, exercise, etc., is explained. The cures for irritability, insomnia, melancholia, worry, timidity, and other results of affected nerves, are described. While the book is written in popular language easily understood, it teaches accepted scientific principles and their application. Cloth bound. Price, $1.00, net; by mail, $1.12.

"Mr. Bruce writes with his usual lucidity and simplicity. It gives me pleasure to recommend the book, to the worried, the overstrained, the discouraged."—Samuel McComb, D. D.

Knowing Insects Through Stories
By Floyd Bralliar

The interesting life of the insect world is portrayed vividly in this new book. The appearance, habits, characteristics, etc., of all kinds of insects, including Butterflies, Beetles, Grasshoppers, Ants, Bees, and many other varieties, are described in a pleasingly simple style, and yet with careful accuracy on the scientific side. The book is not only most entertaining, it is also instructive, identifying all the insects, showing which are beneficial and which are injurious. This is a simple course in Natural History, arranged in an unusual and fascinating form. The book is profusely illustrated, many of the plates being in the actual colors of the insects represented. It is bound in decorative cloth. Price, $1.60, net; by mail, $1.72.

"The illustrations are very beautiful, and Mr. Bralliar's stories are very well told. You have put out an attractive book, and one which I think will not only be widely read, but will do much good."—L. O. Howard, Chief of the U. S. Bureau of Entomology.

The Unsound Mind and the Law
By George W. Jacoby, M. D.

A most valuable book for those interested in forensic psychiatry. It is a careful consideration by an expert of the various types of mental abnormality with a discussion as to the degrees of responsibility that may be assigned to persons classified under the different categories. The first part of the book deals with the general relation that jurisprudence bears to the treatment and restraint of those suffering from mental disorders, and the second treats of methods of diagnosis and discrimination between different types. The third and fourth parts cover hypnosis, sexual anomalies, and the manner in which opinions should be rendered. Cloth bound. Price, $3.00, net; by mail, $3.16.

"The book is simply and clearly written, and is worthy of wide distribution among the members of the legal and of the medical profession."—Dr. Lewellys F. Barber, Baltimore.

Vision

The dreamer and the visionary have never been held in high regard by practical men of affairs.

Yet, the man who can rise above the petty exactions composing the hum-drum of daily life, and look over the heads of those performing the routine, mechanical work, can see the future and its possibilities.

It is such a man, whom the unthinking derisively call dreamer and visionary, and only such a man that can do the constructive thinking for the world. It differs little or not at all in what direction he looks—science, statecraft, business—he will see what his fellows, with their eyes to the ground, never can see, and when he rises to eminence in his particular field, he is deemed by the world merely lucky.

Vision, with the retina of the mind unaffected by the kaleidoscopic image of daily life, is essential to success. It is one of the inherent desires of man's mind to learn the future, and the successful men of our day have learned it. The future is the equivalent of a new possession; it only remains to determine what shall be done with it when it is acquired to established failure or success.

America has made the world safe for democracy and now that this has been accomplished, what to do with it? Have we the talent to avail ourselves of the future opportunities offered in this prized possession? Are we as a nation to remain with our eyes to the ground, or with vision guide ourselves to success?

I don't want a job. I have that. I want a position where I can develop a future. I am young, active, able physically, morally and mentally competent to take full charge of an Advertising Department or a National Advertising Campaign.

My experiences with previous responsibilities with a City Newspaper, an important Piano Manufacturer and a Drug Specialty House have equipped me to make my position a profitable investment instead of an expense. I can lay out, plan and write booklets, catalogues, etc.

I know how to buy advantageously good printing, engraving, etc. I have the knack of doing things properly, promptly and profitably. I may consider starting in a small way if the opportunity is big. Will be free in two weeks, but can call for interview immediately. A 735 Times Downtown.

USE JUDGMENT
IN SELECTING YOUR INVESTMENTS

Experts are of the opinion that bonds of real intrinsic merit purchased around present prices are practically certain to sell considerably higher within the next few years. The question, therefore, is not so much as to whether to buy now as it is to use the proper amount of judgment in making selections. Should you wish us to submit to you a diversified list of securities, we would be glad to do so, following out your ideas, as to types and geographical location as closely as possible.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION

Steel Income Points to Altered Industry

The reduction of the Steel Corporation's extra dividend and the report of sharply decreased earnings in the final quarter of 1918 contained much more significance last week than that involved in the lessened income for share owners. The two developments stood as a signpost pointing toward current conditions and possibilities of the early future in the steel industry. The Directors of the largest unit in the trade are wont to handle facts exactly as they find them, and they have never been moved to either minimize or exaggerate the state of earnings and of operations at the mills. With these qualities in mind it is necessary to contend that the relatively poor income of the quarter reflected not only the money received through the sale of goods but also certain readjustments in respect to inventories and "allowances for estimated proportion of extraordinary cost of facilities installed by reason of war requirements and conditions," as the report stated. In other words, the corporation took account of the ending of war demands and made progress in getting back to a peace basis. It was in respect to earnings that the quarterly statement was most important; the extra dividend was a product of extraordinary revenue which came from an extraordinary cause, and to a degree has been controlled ever since it was added to the regular disbursements by this cause. Only the most optimistic owners of the stock believed that the high return could be continued long after the war stimulant passed from production. This is not to predict that the extra dividend will shortly be eliminated in entirety, but to indicate a belief held in financial circles that hereafter the payments to shareholders will be governed by the state of income under peace buying of steel products.' The benefits which stock owners will derive from the corporation's liquid resources in the way of cash, Liberty bonds, &c., are only conjectural. These resources are large, but at the same time the corporation would seem to have much war-plant amortization yet to provide for, a factor likely to be directed by the use which can be made of additional facilities. As the steel industry is considered the barometer of general business conditions, the quarterly report had a bearing on the position of business which extended beyond the boundaries of the industry itself. As the earnings of other corporations are made public it may be expected that further light will be cast on the processes of readjustment now going on, with the belief in many quarters that substantial declines of profits will be noted in lines less affected by war demands than the products of the Steel Corporation.

The stock market of the week supplied a subject for special study in view of the Steel Corporation's earnings and dividend. Quite naturally, there was a considerable reaction of quotations for a time, but the market steadied itself, and it could not be said that any great increase of depression in either speculative or investment sentiment occurred. The public displayed, if anything, a greater lack of interest than in preceding weeks, as evidenced in the small turnover of stocks from day to day. It appears doubtful that the market since Jan. 1 has reflected a positive opinion in regard to the future, and developments at home and abroad have so far failed to indicate a breaking of the deadlock for some time to come. As long as security owners are content with their stocks and the price paid for them and new buying fails to appear, the market lies in the hands of professional speculators, who have made small efforts to depress quotations. The action of the Money Committee in removing restrictions on market loans was justified by last week's results. The plaint previously voiced in speculative quarters that the lack of adequate credit was dampening the latent ardor for stocks has proved to have small grounds for justification. In fact, the moderate decline of prices brought with it a decrease instead of an increase in the use of credit for carrying stocks.

Problems entailed in the Victory Loan flotation grow larger as the time approaches for the campaign. The number of suggestions which bankers are receiving from local and out of town sources are legion, dealing with the interest rate believed necessary to make the loan both a patriotic and business proposition and methods to make the offering attractive to the man in the street who is already possessed with sizeable holdings of Liberty bonds. One factor appears to be settled, and that is that the loan will run for no longer than five years. Whether to set the rate at 4½, 4¾ or 5 per cent., whether to make the bonds subject to income taxes or not, whether to provide for some sort of a conversion privilege for part of the Liberty Loans, are questions receiving daily discussion among members of the Liberty Loan Committee and other bankers and bond men. The time is drawing near for formal discussions between bankers and the Treasury Department, and until some official utterance is made on the subject the bond market is likely to be bereft of positive information for its guidance. While no exceptionally large block of new securities has appeared since preparations for the Government issue got under way, there has been a ready market for scattered offerings making a good return, and plans for fresh sales to a substantial aggregate are in the making. To this extent the judgment of investment bankers in regard to the absorptive capacity of the country in the face of the great Government sale may be visualized, showing a belief that necessary corporate financing may be carried out conservatively without interfering with the Victory Bonds. An interesting transaction of the week was the successful bid of a Chicago syndicate for $25,000,000 Southern Railway notes. The purchase implies a distribution of the paper in regions considerably removed from New York and would seem to point to a growing investment demand in the Middle West. In view of the prosperity of the last few years and the education which has been derived from the Liberty Bond campaigns, it would not be surprising if in the future a great deal of financing hitherto handled chiefly in the East moved Westward and into the South.

Copper producers are selling very little copper, and the movement at various mining centres to renew the sliding wage scale entails an effort to get costs down to a level commensurate with current bids for the metal. Should wages again be regulated by the copper selling price the change from the present basis would stand as the most important wage readjustment since the armistice was signed. For this reason the situation would be studied with close attention by many employers. In the textile trade a further contraction of operations was reported during the week, and part-time manufacturing has become general in numerous lines. Some of the smaller steel companies are estimated to be working from 55 to 65 per cent. of capacity. Conflicting statements on unemployment are coming from industrial centres, of which a summary would be that a great many men are out of work, whatever the proportion to normal times. These indications of reduced production bring prices and wages into closer relation than heretofore, but supply a not unexpected factor in the readjustment period.

$98,269,808 MORE LENT TO RAILROADS

Federal Advances in January Included $30,071,471 for New Cars and Locomotives.

$947,641 FOR WATERWAYS

Balance in Revolving Fund, with Surplus Receipts Added, Reduced to $61,332,738.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Director General Hines of the United States Railroad Administration announced tonight that it had made advances aggregating $98,269,808 on account of various railroad systems during January. This brought up to $787,304,567 the aggregate payments and advances made by the Director General to the railroad corporations and Federal managers, including payments on standard equipment ordered for the year and one month which ended Jan. 31.

Director General Hines explained that of this latter amount $57,030,000 represented what he had gotten back in the matter of various loans that had been made to railroads, leaving a net advance of $730,,274,567 by the Director up to Jan. 31. The Railroad Administration had also received up to that date surplus operating receipts of various railroads amounting to $237,605,000, and from the express companies a total of $57,243,599. The excess of all disbursements to and for account of transportation systems for the period of one year and one month f Jan. 31, including $57,030,000 received from collection of loans, was $435,425,068.

The payment of $98,269,808 made in January included loans and advances on account of compensation to railroad corporations, and advances made to Federal managers of these properties to meet operating needs aggregating $67,250,696; payments of $30,071,471 made during the month on account of the new standardized cars and engines and payments of $947,641 to inland waterways and canals.

During January the Director General received $24,323,638 from all transportation lines, of which $10,327,183 was received from express companies, and $13,996,455 from the operating managements of the various railroads. As the total disbursements for January were $98,269,808, the excess of disbursements over receipts for January were $73,946,170.

The aggregate amount of loans made by the Director General to railroad and other transportation companies, and still outstanding is $151,254,767. This is exclusive of the amounts advanced for the benefit of various roads on account of standardized equipment.

There is still due to the Director General by various roads on account of the amounts advanced to the builders of the standardized cars and engines the sum of $144,585,871.

The balance remaining in the $500,000,000 revolving fund Jan. 31, plus the sum total of balances remaining on hand with the Director General from the surplus receipts turned over by certain roads, aggregated $61,332,738.

The only railroads from which the United tSates Railroad Administration has received in the period of one year and one month to Jan. 31 as much as $1,000,000 or more in excess of the amounts paid to the railroad properties are:

URGES CO-OPERATION TO AVERT IDLENESS

City Bank Says Unemployment Should Be Prevented by Nation-Wide Movement.

FAVORS PUBLIC WORK

Declares Efforts of Secretaries Lane, Wilson, and Redfield Should Be Supported.

The National City Bank, in a survey of economic conditions, holds that it is necessary that there be co-operation throughout the country to forestall the threatened danger of unemployment. The fact that costs are still high, it is maintained, should be no deterrent to the undertaking of improvements. Otherwise labor will be idle and its "potential value totally lost to the country."

In an analysis of conditions the bank says:

"The idea that the Government might promptly adopt a constructive policy for dealing with the danger of widespread unemployment has had as yet no adequate development. Secretary Wilson has established in his department a bureau for the encouragement of public construction by municipalities and other public bodies, and Secretary Redfield has written letters giving public indorsement to the policy of liberal expenditures of this character, but the executive officials can do little themselves without action by Congress.

Need for Public Policy.

"There is greatly needed at this time a large and enterprising public policy which would organize and co-ordinate the activities of national, State, and local governments, so as to create a large amount of work for the coming Spring and Summer. After that it is safe to say that the situation will take care of itself, provided unemployment can be averted in the meantime. The prestige and co-operation of the national government is required to develop such a movement, and the good efforts of Secretaries Lane, Wilson, and Redfield should be not only supported but enlarged and made a national policy. The railroad and utility companies should be enabled and encouraged to make improvements now, when labor will otherwise be idle and its potential value totally lost to the country. Extra costs are nothing compared with total losses and little compared with war expenditures, and this is the view that communities should take of the proposal. Of course the program should be elastic, so that no more work would be undertaken than necessary for the purpose, but unemployment should be prevented by a public spirited nation wide movement.

"The policy of heavy taxation upon business profits begins now to show its repressive and unfortunate influence. There was never a time when the spirit of courage and enterprise was more needed than now. Secretary Wilson made a strong plea at a New York meeting a few days ago for business men to go ahead with resolution and public spirit to set the wheels of industry turning and provide employment to the wage-earning population. All who heard him realized the force of his arguments and the truth of his warning against the dangers which might develop from widespread idleness and distress. But these are times when serious risks attach to individual policies.

Odds Against Investor.

"The Government can do things in such an emergency, and if the cost is greater than in normal times there is compensation to the public from the benefit that has accrued to the general welfare. But an individual is so small a factor in the general situation that he cannot expect to materially affect it or to receive any compensation for the losses he may suffer in battling with general tendencies. He wants to avoid losses, or, if he loses part of the time, have a fair prospect of coming out even on the average.

"The odds against an investor are very heavy under the taxation proposed in the new law. Should he buy goods, or build, or hire labor for any enterprise? If developments are against him and he loses, the loss is all his own; if he is successful the Government may claim 50 or 60 or 80 per cent of the profits. The critics of business will say that what is left is enough. It might be enough if there were no losses, but there is no allowance for losses. It is not easy to keep gains ahead of losses in the business world without any taxation; who dares move outside of the narrowest and most cautious policies with such odds as present taxation puts against him? Ordinary business in established routine will go on, but the courage which undertakes new enterprises, and which Secretary Wilson appeals to, has very heavy odds against it.

"It is obvious that taxes must be heavy for the present, but it is well to understand their effects and to utter a word of caution against their being made heavier than necessary. If by spreading taxation over a longer period the spirit of enterprise can be revived and stimulated the country will be more prosperous and moderate levies will yield more than heavier ones."

The Factory Products Corporation has extensive export and import relations in Argentina, Chile, Ecuador, Venezuela, Mexico, the West Indies, China, India, the Philippines, the Straits Settlements, and the Dutch East Indies. The principal trade thus far has been in textile and general exports to the River Plate, general merchandise to the Far East and South America, and in importations from Venezuela. Resident agencies in ten of the principal Far Eastern cities have been established. The trade name and organization of the Manufacturers' Agency Company have been preserved in the new organization for the River Plate and Chilean fields.

3,565 TILL SCHOOL GARDENS

Bureau Reports That Each Plot Yielded $4 Worth of Produce.

Commissioner Philip Berolzheimer of the Farm Garden Bureau made public yesterday his annual report in which he recounts the progress made in gardening, especially among school children, in this city. The three principal gardens are in De Witt Clinton Park, three-quarters of an acre; Thomas Jefferson Park, two acres, and Corlears Hook Park, three-quarters of an acre.

The three farm gardens contained 1,865 plots in 1918, and yielded $4 worth of produce to each owner. Each plot was planted twice and included 286 transfers; 3,565 children had plots, and 40,981 different children from public schools, high schools, and the New York Training School for Teachers used the garden as a nature study laboratory.

The repeated visits of plot owners, visiting classes from the public schools, kindergarten classes, ungraded, anaemic classes, Harlem clinic breathing class, Vanderbilt clinic, and visits of the New York Training School for Teachers brought the total attendance at the three gardens for 1918 to 145,258. Forty-two plots were assigned to kindergarten classes.

Nature study material from the observation plots was delivered to forty-two schools, consisting of hemp, jute, wheat, rye, oats, broom corn, okra, flax, cotton, peanut, Indian corn, and alfalfa. Each plot contained radishes, beans, beets, carrots, lettuce, onions, and corn. Each plot was 4 by 8 feet.

During the season of 1918 thirty back yard gardens were maintained in the neighborhood of De Witt Clinton Park. Instructions were given by the teachers in charge of the gardens, and the gardens were regularly visited. Three model gardens were demonstrated in each of the three gardens for the benefit of the neighborhood. Thousands of pamphlets on canning and drying were distributed to the neighborhood around the garden.

The report said that no piece of ground in the country was more intensively used than that ground on which these three farm gardens are situated.

FARM LOAN PLAN AS BUILDING AID

Federal Guarantee of Labor Stability Urged as Aid to Construction Work.

CAPITAL TOO TIMID NOW

Building Material Prices Near Low Level as Strikes Are Called for More Pay.

Federal farm loan principles applied to a form of Government building subsidy will probably be laid before Congress as a means of releasing the millions of dollars' worth of construction that is being held up pending the adjustment of wage scales in a great many cities of the country.

With the opening of the general construction season scarcely a month and a half away, the building industry of the country still stagnated because of its inability to make mill alterations, enlargements and repairs to meet the greatly enlarged demands upon their capacities, much less to meet the staggering demand for new construction of various kinds that is already looming into large totals from all parts of the country, construction interests are showing growing inclination toward indifference to the problem and to await readjustment from powers sufficiently large to cope with the international organizations backing up the demands of labor for higher wage scales.

In this city the Building Trades Employers' Association has been called upon to meet a condition of labor disturbance of almost an unprecedented scope, which began when the carpenters went on strike on all rush work on Nov. 14. The Pennsylvania and Commodore hotels, the hospitals at Bedlow's Island, and the mail service station building have been completed, and the Brooklyn Naval Hospital, Wards Island, is being carried forward by the association, which is also handling a number of smaller jobs of its members which are being manned by some 1,500 carpenters under the provisions of the agreement still operative when the strike was called.

But new construction work is being seriousy retarded, although there is a great volume of work getting ready to come out that is classed as essential and necessary construction, such as industrial units, railroad terminals, warehouses and other forms of construction upon which depends the country's trade expansion during the coming year. These owners are in a dilemma.

Building material and equipment prices continue to drop to attractive levels and the scarcity of rentable space makes it imperative to build at once.

In the meantime the leasing season is approaching and there are visible signs of uneasiness among tenants who must move, but who say they cannot pay prices demanded by estimators for new construction, because leading companies are not prepared to make loans on a scale that can even approximate the relief needed for the space-hungry tenantage of the eastern section of the country.

The principle of the Federal Farm Loan has been suggested to various authorities at Washington as offering possibilities of application to the building situation, and the assurance was heard in the building trades last week that efforts will be made before the next Congress to have an appropriation set aside as a sort of building subsidy fund, to be operated on an amortization plan to make it possible to cover the present high cost of labor until the law of supply and demand of man power has been met by the returning soldiery for a term probably extending over the period covered by the proposed measure to shut out immigration for approximately four years.

The great difficulty in the building material and building contracting industries of the country today is the almost total lack of what is called "wheelbarrow labor," which in the production of building materials is a very important factor. Scenes at the Custom House last week when thousands of foreign-born men sought passage back to Europe promised, if continued, to still further deplete the supply of labor in this country, and make it increasingly apparent that some Federal action would be necessary to meet the new economic factors.

It is this continuously aggravated decline in the efficiency and the volume of existing labor that is rapidly putting the cost of construction far beyond the power of associations to cope with and making it necessary for some new agency to step in powerful enough to stabilize the labor market artificially if it cannot be effected by economics.

Building material manufacturers are, in the meantime, making it attractive for construction interests to come into the market, and considerable buying in anticipation of the approaching construction season is already reported, according to the Dow Service Daily Building Reports.

Forward buying for Autumn deliveries is being generally discouraged. This is noticeable in plate glass, hardware, some of the metal lines, many of the clay products, and some of the calcine lines. There is plenty of opportunity for the average builder to purchase lumber and timbers at advantageous prices, but there is little effort being made to buy in anticipation of lower prices next Fall, or even over the turn of the year.

All building materials, with hardly an exception, may be accepted as being at practically the lowest ebb, and it is assuredly only a temporary level. Even a 20 per cent. of normal construction year will so heavily tax the available supplies of construction material as to keep prices steady, if not at even higher levels, with a distinct tendency to advance with whatever increasing volume of construction there is to points which have not yet been reached.

Notable downward movements during the last week included new discounts on lead, which dropped $5.50 a ton; stove pipe, sash cord, cast iron sash weights, insulated wire, electrical pole line material, malleable iron fittings, electric lamps, and there are immediate prospects of reductions in plumbers' earthenware, wire products, and a few other lines.

FINDS MANY EVILS IN PUBLIC OPERATION

Merchants' Association Recounts Proofs of Inefficiency, Waste, and Poor Service.

INSTANCES NEW YORK PORT

Ambitious and Capable Men Held Back by Officials Whose Aims Are Political.

Government ownership and operation of public utilities is inefficient and wasteful in a degree extremely injurious to public welfare, according to the report on the subject by the special committee of the Merchants' Association, which has been received and approved by the Board of Directors of the association.

The members of the special committee were: Frank R. Chambers, James G. White, Otto H. Kahn, Francis H. Sisson, H. H. Porter, and Professor Joseph French Johnson. The committee held that the conditions created by Government ownership or operation did not tend to produce in management the qualities essential to success, which it described as intimate knowledge, long experience, sound judgment, special ability and skill, zeal, and energy.

Under Government operation an occasional official who is energetic and competent is often unable to carry out progressive plans, the report said, because of indifference and slowness of superiors or fellow officials having power to check or veto. On this point the report says:

"A case in point is the present condition of New York Harbor. Our commerce is suffering severely from lack of pressingly needed piers. The Dock Commissioner has repeatedly made urgent representations, but his initiative has been paralyzed by the inertia of the controlling board."

Another serious drawback to an able official under Government ownership, the report says, is his inability to pick his own men, to raise salaries by way of recognition of merit, or to make promotions, in accordance with the needs of the service.

"These conditions," the report continues, "do not prevail in well-managed private business undertakings. The executive practically always receives all the discretion necessary to maintain a fully efficient personnel. He also has a large and usually controlling influence in obtaining whatever funds will conduce to the effective and economical conduct of the business."

Another temptation under Government ownership, as the report points out, would be for the party in power to build its depots and other improvements in doubtful States for political effect, or to regard them as Congressional patronage, after the example of public building legislation. The report asserts that public ownership of railroads, telephones and other public utilities in France, England and Germany has proved costly, wasteful and inefficient, compared to the operation of the same utilities in this country.

"Except under war conditions," says the report, "the sole plea that can be advanced to justify the operation by governments of public utilities is that governments can provide better service at less cost to the public than can private operators—that is to say, the assumption that government operation is more efficient and less costly than private operation.

"No business, whether public or private, can be operated efficiently and without great waste under the constant injection at the top of new, untried, and often unfit executives and managers; nor with the rank and file deprived, by lack of opportunity for advancement, of the incentive to zeal and energy.

"Frequent change and unfitness in the higher ranks, and lack of opportunity and zeal in the lower ranks are dominant and inevitable features of political management. Political expediency is nearly always the determining consideration in appointments to the higher places. These places are the rewards of political service; and the appointees, while perhaps proficient politicians, are seldom proficient business executives. Their immediate subordinates are likewise appointed for political reasons, and fitness is a secondary consideration."

ADVERTISING IS AN INVESTMENT

A Word To Self Satisfied
Advertisers:

IN these days of intensive competition, advertising, to be a profitable investment must present new notes, new thoughts, new facts.

The most interesting thing you can say is something new about something old.

A one-string fiddle may attract attention, but if the same tune is played too long the novelty wears off.

The statue on the corner is noticed when first unveiled, after which we give it but a passing glance.

Therefore, to the old advertiser who is satisfied that all that is necessary is to remind the public that he is still making the same old product in the same old way at the same old stand, we say—wake up.

CITY HALL.
New Orleans, Feb. 3rd, 1919.

The City of New Orleans, acting under authority of Act 179 of the General Assembly of the State of Louisiana for the year 1908, ratified by Constitutional Amendment, and now a part of the Constitution of the State of Louisiana, will receive sealed proposals at the office of the Commissioner of Public Finances of the City of New Orleans up to twelve (12) o'clock noon on the 6th day of March, 1919, for the purchase of $600,000.00 in face value of Public Belt Railroad Bonds of the City of New Orleans, authorized by the Act aforementioned, and the constitutional amendment ratifying same, and of the numbers, denominations and maturities of the authorized issue of $2,000,000.00, and in the form of and in accordance with the bond schedule of the maturities of the entire authorized issue, as prescribed by an ordinance of the City of New Orleans, being No. 8628, N. C. S., approved May 14, 1912, and Ordinance No. 5316, Commission Council Series, approved January 28th, 1919, of said city, authorizing the present offering.

Said proposals shall be received under and subject to the following conditions, to-wit:

Proposals must be in writing, sealed, and marked on the outside of the envelope "Proposals for the purchase of $600,000.00 of Public Belt Railroad Bonds of the City of New Orleans," and shall be accompanied by a certified check on some chartered bank in the City of New Orleans, for an amount equal to one per cent. of the aggregate amount of the bid, which said check of the successful bidder or bidders shall be cashed and the proceeds retained by the City of New Orleans as a guarantee that the successful bidder or bidders will comply with its or their bids, and the said proceeds shall be applied to the payment of the bonds last delivered to the successful bidder or bidders, respectively. In case of the neglect or refusal to comply with any bid, the proceeds of said check shall be forfeited to the Public Belt Railroad Commission of the City of New Orleans.

LIGHTEN FOOD EXPORT BAN.

Removals Sweeping, but Restrictions Kept on Wheat and Wheat Flour.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—The most sweeping removal of restrictions upon the exportation of foodstuffs made since the signing of the armistice was announced today by the War Trade Board. Commodities removed from the export conservation list were barley, corn, and rye, including flour and meal made from these grains, oats and oat products, brewers' grains, bran and middlings, beans, dried and split peas, sugar, and hydrogenated cottonseed oil.

These articles constituted a majority of the food items on the restricted list. Their removal is effective immediately. Licenses to export them will be granted freely to all destinations, including Great Britain, France, Italy, and Belgium. Heretofore such exports to these allied countries were made exclusively by the Food Administration's grain corporation and the Wheat Export Company.

Attention was called to the fact that wheat and wheat flour remain on the restricted list. There was no indication when the embargo on those commodities would be removed, but it was said that it probably would remain in force until the Government's agreement with the farmers for a maximum price on the 1919 wheat crop had expired.

Removal of the embargo on the other grains was expected by some officials to stabilize prices and relieve what was described as a congested market. An advance in the price of corn was looked for by reason of the fact that prices fell sharply several weeks ago, when removal of the embargo against the importation of Argentine corn was announced. It was said that there was a heavy demand in foreign countries for some of the grains now placed on the free list, and particularly for rye.

WANT EXPORTS STIMULATED

Plea for Government Aid in the South American Trade.

The American Manufacturers' Export Association issued a statement last night, in which H. S. Demarest, a director, urged the necessity for prompt Government action in clearing up the doubts of foreign buyers of American goods. A large number of buyers, particularly those from South America, have canceled their orders for merchandise placed here in the belief that prices ar about to undergo a big slump.

Mr. Demarest, while commending the action of the United States Shipping Board in cutting transatlantic freight rates to European ports, urged that immediate cuts be made in the ocean rates to South America.

"It is for the very safety of the country that our Government should aid quickly and practically the American manufacturer in reaching foreign markets," Mr. Demarest said, "and itself take the necessary steps to restore the confidence of foreign buyers that present costs cannot be reduced for some time to come."

Mr. Demarest explained that this should be done in order that exports might be facilitated to the end that labor be kept employed and capital be in a position to stand the enormous taxes about to be placed on it, and at the same time absorb the great Victory Loan about to be issued. The Export Association's director said that the world's markets were today depleted and foreign merchants needed stocks of all kinds of merchandise, but buying was at present suspended owing to a deep-seated impression on the part of the foreign buyers that a sharp decline in prices was about to take place.

OPEN MARKET COAL FIRM.

Removal of Federal Restrictions Fails to Reduce Prices.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Advices received by the National Coal Association covering Feb. 1, when government price restrictions on bituminous coal were lifted, show that prices generally held firm at the previous Government levels, though in several districts the better grades of coal have advanced.

"Nearly all fields," said the association in an authorized statement tonight, "reported reduced running time, due primarily to lack of orders, but such reduced running time has not found expression in any material reduction of prices. It is evident that buyers who were expecting a sharp break in prices following the suspension of the Government price regulations have been disappointed. The National Coal Association has seen recent cost reports concerning several fields, showing that, with the broken running time since the armistice, costs have increased until the previous Government prices left little margin of profit for the operator, and in some cases none whatever. Under these circumstances, with quality once more becoming a factor in prices, it is only natural that prices have held firm and have advanced in various fields.

"Reports from various fields indicate steady reduction of stocks in the hands of producers with a quite general belief that a little real winter will develop a brisk demand."

LOGIC

In the final analysis sales are the aim of every progressive retailer.

KARP-MAKE garments for Spring are so charmingly styled, so irresistibly beautiful that they seem to take and sell on sight. And they'll sell equally well with you.

To the alert buyer who scours the market for models that will sell; to the hard-to-suit buyer who wants to conserve time and energy and profits:

Make us show you!

SEEDS FOR RECONSTRUCTION

Mission in Europe Studying Needs of World's Farms and Gardens.

Perhaps no line of business was more deeply disturbed by the war than that of seed growing and distribution. Many agencies were paralyzed, and the machinery of the seed trade on the Continent of Europe continues so disrupted as to make the interchange of seeds needed for next Spring's planting very difficult. Seed growers and dealers feel that individual initiative has been practically exhausted and that during the period of reconstruction the work should be carried forward through Government agencies. It was largely in response to this demand that Dr. A. J. Pieters of the Bureau of Plant Industry and W. A. Wheeler of the Bureau of Markets have just been sent to Europe by the Department of Agriculture to make a first-hand study of seed production and marketing problems.

Their purpose is to gather information concerning clover, grass, and vegetable seed stocks and the requirements of European countries. They expect to visit Great Britain, France, Belgium, Italy, Holland, and Denmark, and the immediately important matters of information that they gather will be cabled to Washington for use by governmental agencies in shaping the export policy as to certain kinds of seed. The information will then be disseminated to the seed trade in order that a better general idea may be had of probable future requirements.

Indications are that the supplies of several kinds of seed in this country must be carefully conserved in order to maintain crop production. At the same time it appears that it may be necessary for the United States to take chances on incurring a shortage of some seeds to meet the pressing needs of the nations that were associated with this country in the war.

Up to this time there is no definite information available as to the needs of Great Britain, France, Italy, and Belgium. Holland, Denmark, and other neutral countries are supposed to have considerable surpluses of some kinds of seed ready for export to the United States and may at the same time need some kinds of which this country has a surplus.

Seed production has been carried forward on a larger scale in the United States during the last few years than ever before. Early in the war it became apparent that seed production was largely at a standstill in most of the European countries and that, with the great obstacles to ocean transportation, the comparatively small quantities that were produced could not be brought across. Seed growers in the United States undertook to extend their production both as to quantity and varieties, and the result has been that many of them who were formerly importers have now become exporters. Indications are that there is a considerable surplus of several kinds of seeds, and growers are at a loss to know whether to increase or decrease their acreage or to maintain it at last year's standard. A study of conditions in this country alone would not suffice to answer these questions, but must be supplemented with the information now about to be gathered in the countries of Europe.

SEES LARGE WORLD PROBLEM IN LABOR

Sir Charles C. Allom, British Manufacturer, Thinks Unionism Its Own Worst Enemy.

WRONG METHOD OF CONTROL

Question Never Properly Dealt With by Governments or Politicians, He Declares.

Sir Charles Carrick Allom, head of an important airplane factory and several other commercial enterprises in England, who is staying at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, said yesterday that the most serious problem before the world today was the labor question which, he asserted, had never been properly faced and dealt with by Governments or politicians.

"The chief trouble is that the trade unions have always sought to control the work instead of the hours," he continued. "I can give you an instance of what I mean which occurred at one of our airplane factories before I left England. I was walking through one of the sheds where men were employed on the construction of four hulls when I noticed a red placard which read: 'A pound a day for every man.'

"That is what is regarded here as $5 a day. I asked the men about it and told them that the company would be pleased to pay them £3 per day if they would earn it. I pointed out that seventy men had been working for eight weeks and made half the hulls of the four airships which were needed by the Government as soon as possible for bombing purposes and we were prepared to pay the same amount of money for the work if it was done in less time.

"The effect of this was that the remaining halves of the airships were finished in four weeks. This speeding up in our workshops went on for a few weeks and the men were earning $50 to $60 a week instead of $25 or $30 until the trade unions heard of it. Then they sent delegates to the factory to tell the men the heinous offense they were committing against labor and that it would lead to their being thrown out of work. Consequently the men reluctantly went back to the come day, go day, God send payday, method.

"Labor must be graded in order to produce satisfactory results and all three grades, A, B, C, must be regulated by a properly organized committee so that both employers and employes get a square deal. When you offer the chance for promotion and better pay to the young man you will have better workmanship and improve the status of the labor classes in every way.

"The food question, so far as the staple necessities of life are concerned, would have the effect of increasing wages when it was decided by the committee that the cost of living had increased so much per cent. Trade union officials have always been afraid to let the workingmen know too much in fear of losing their own comfortable jobs. I have repeatedly explained to them that by controlling the hours, that is letting the men work fourteen hours if necessary when there is work to be done, and slacking down to four when there is not much doing, they would avoid the discharge of workmen from factories and every one would benefit all around.

"At the present time instead of being the most up-to-date and efficient organization trade unionism in England is one of the largest and most antediluvian concerns extant. The sooner the workingman knows that his leadership is rotten, his premises wrong, his ideals debased, his personal benefit from them minute, and his waste of opportunity the greatest in any organization in the world, he will begin to want a change. He wants it now in England, but there is no politicians to enlighten him, for they have a party to fear and no leader whom they dare listen to openly.

"Democracy has never been a great judge of a leader. Democracy might have chosen a picturesque figure like the late Lord Kitchener, but never a genius like Marshal Foch. Labor mistakes itself for democracy, but it is only the organized part of democracy. Labor by organization controls so much, yet it has failed completely. Everybody but labor knows it has failed. To organize a strike is not a success. To have had to strike means failure.

"Think of the difference in the ideals and character of the man who went to the trenches, his ungrudging presentation of his best effort, his best brains and his life if need be, with the same man's slothful folly in the factory under trade unionism.

"When men take twice as long to build even their own houses, they increase their rents and in this method of stretching hours out they have increased the cost of living before they increased their wages. I estimate that workingmen in the United States in not using their brains and hands for their own good are losing fully $4,000,000 an hour, or $8,736,000,000 per annum. Rich men are the mainspring of enterprise and advancement and labor's profit. Rich men are rich not because they have robbed the workingman but in spite of the workingman having robbed himself."

GOV.-GEN. HARRISON HERE.

On His First Leave from Philippines Since 1913.

Francis Burton Harrison, Governor-General of the Philippines, arrived yesterday from Manila via the Panama Canal on the American motor ship Zealandia, accompanied by his brother Archibald, and Colonel Francis Onat, Chief of the Philippine Constabulary, and will go to Washington at once. The Zealandia anchored at quarantine for the night and Governor Harrison and his party were brought to Manhattan by the Customs cutter Immigrant. The voyage of 11,000 miles occupied fifty-eight days.

Governor Harrison said he had a six months' leave of absence, which was the first since 1913, and he had enjoyed the long rest on the Zealandia. The Filipinos, he said, had subscribed liberally to the Liberty loans and donated one destroyer and a submarine to the United States Navy, and there was no question of the loyalty of the people. The circulation of money had doubled in the last two years and just before leaving the islands he had signed a bill calling for the appropriation of $15,000,000 for free schooling for every child.

The best of relations existed between Americans and the Filipinos, he added, and under the Jones law the natives have practical autonomy. Out of 10,000,000 population there were 800,000 voters, he said.

With regard to Japan he said the relations between them and the Filipinos were perfectly friendly and the talk about the occupation of the Caroline and Marshall Islands had not come up when he left.

The first cargo of sugar from the Philippines to arrive for many months reached New York yesterday on the steamship Thordis.

Citizens' Committee Announces the Acquisition of 150 Organizations.

The Independent Citizens' Committee, organized as a protest against the appointment of William Randolph Hearst to the Mayor's Committee of Welcome to the Homecoming Troops, announced yesterday that 150 societies and organizations had joined the movement to give a patriotic greeting to the soldiers. Several hundred individual citizens who are prominent in this city also have joined.

Some of the societies named on the list are: American Defense Society, National Security League, Association of 11th Engineers, Army and Navy Club of New York, Aero Club, Army and Navy Legion of Valor, American Rights League, American Committee for Devastated France, Boyce Tigers, Brooklyn Women's War Relief Committee, Century Association, Colonial Dames of America, Colonial Dames of New York, League for Political Education, Selective Service Board 183, Military Training Camps Association, 307th Regiment Family Unit, United Spanish War Veterans, Vacation Association, Women's Republican Club, Women's City Club, and the National League for Military Service. Several chapters of the G. A. R. and the D. A. R. also are listed as members.

A resolution in support of the Land Settlement Bill proposed by Secretary Lane of the Department of the Interior also was given out yesterday by the Citizens' Committee. The committee said it supported the bill because of the belief that that $100,000,000 fund for the creation of productive public works would furnish work for thousands of the returning soldiers.

THREE SILK MILLS GIVE SHORTER WEEK

But Other Paterson Manufacturers Refuse to Yield and 3,000 Workers Will Quit.

15,000 BEGIN STRIKE TODAY

Charles Cheney, President of Silk Association, Says Demand of Men is Ill-Considered at This Time.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., Feb. 2.—More than 30,000 workers in the silk industry in this city will have left their looms by Tuesday in their effort to obtain a forty-seven hour working week, according to Louis Magnat, Chairman of the Workers' Committee. He declared that 15,000 surely would strike tomorrow, and that the ranks of those first to declare war would be swelled continuously until the industry, as far as Paterson was concerned, was completely tied up. He further promised that the strike would not be marked by disorder, that workers would not gather at the mills and that the local authorities would have no cause to complain.

"We did not accept the proposition of the manufacturers to submit our differences to the War Labor Board," said Magnat, "because we felt that the manufacturers had waited too long before submitting this proposition to the workers. They were notified two months ago and the matter should have been taken up with the War Labor Board then. We do not consider that we have been treated fairly."

A spokesman for the manufacturers' association said today that the refusal of the members of the organization to grant the forty-seven-hour week was practically unanimous; that the silk industry was at present bearing as many burdens as it could stand, but if the hours of work could be standardized throughout the country by such an agency as the War Labor Board they might find it incumbent upon them to suffer the lessened output and increased cost of production following the establishment of shortened hours.

The mills will be opened at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning as usual, and those who have announced their intention to strike may go to work at that hour, but if they remain away until 7:30 o'clock the employers will consider that they are on strike and close their shops. The workers, on the other hand, assert that they will report at the later hour, and if they are not permitted to work they will consider it a lockout by the manufacturers.

It was announced here today that three mills, the Lyons Silk Company, the Fox Silk Company, and Audiger & Meyer Company had granted their workers' demand for a forty-seven hour week, and that the strike would not interfere with work in these shops, which employ about 1,000 workers. The majority of manufacturers have announced their intention to maintain the fifty-hour week, which generally prevails in the industry here.

The history of the present difficulty in Paterson in brief is that the workers presented demands for a forty-four-hour week which the manufacturers refused. A compromise of forty-eight hours was suggested, and this was also rejected by the manufacturers. Without consulting the manufacturers, at a meeting on Thursday night, the shop committees adopted a resolution favoring a forty-seven-hour week, and the workers were directed to report at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow instead of a half hour earlier.

Charles Cheney, President of the Silk Association of America, yesterday described the demand of workers in the silk industry for shorter hours as ill-considered in view of the many burdens at present being borne by the manufacturers. He said that the shorter working day spelled increased cost of production and lessened output, and therefore an intolerable condition to manufacturers in an industry in which workers are at present laboring from fifty to fifty-six hours a week.

"We believe," said Mr. Cheney, "that the demands have sprung from an incomplete understanding of the industrial situation, and we hope that the judgment of the more serious-minded workers will lead to a reconsideration. Due consideration should be given to the fact that the silk industry has for years been upon a more advanced basis than any other textiles.

"Asking for an attitude of sympathy and justice does not mean that we have to meet every successive demand that may be made for increasing compensations and still more burdensome requirements as to conditions and hours of work. We have made long steps along this road and we do not regret it. We may find it possible to go farther when circumstances warrant, but we must, in justice to ourselves, to the industry and our workers, use discretion and avoid reckless changes which may involve the carrying of heavier burdens than can be borne.

"The spokesmen of labor have proclaimed that hey will strenuously oppose any reductions in pay and the employers are earnestly hoping that they can maintain the present level, which is far above that ever known in this or any other land. To succeed in this aim will strain the ability and resources of all. To seek now during the period of great stress and anxiety, accompanying the after-war readjustments, to add new burdens is not the part of wisdom or of fairness."

Iron Workers Oppose Jonas.

The Bridge and Structural Iron Workers of Brooklyn and Long Island adopted resolutions last night protesting against the retention of Nathan S. Jonas as Chairman of the Brooklyn Victory Celebration Committee on the ground that he allowed James M. Beck to speak at a mass meeting held by the committee in the Academy of Music and at the same meeting refused speech to citizens of Brooklyn appointed by Borough President Riegelmann as members of the committee.

BID FAREWELL TO EBERLE.

Naval Cadets' Spontaneous Tribute to Their Retiring Superintendent.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 2.—A farewell, as spontaneous as it was hearty, was given this afternoon to Rear Admiral Edward W. Eberle, just relieved as Superintendent of the Naval Academy, when he started for Hampton Roads to assume command of the Fifth Division of the Battleship Fleet. The officers of the station were assembled on the wharf, but the midshipmen made the real demonstration. They had assembled voluntarily, and Admiral Eberle passed through a double row of them, standing at salute, as he walked to the converted yacht Wasp. Before boarding her he exchanged good wishes with the officers with whom he had been associated, the deepest feeling being manifested on both sides.

Standing on the bridge of the little vessel Admiral Eberle talked to the midshipmen.

"Be true to yourselves," he said, "be true to your messmates, be true to your task, be true in the great naval service to which it is your priceless privilege to belong." The cheers of the midshipmen and the strains of the Academy Band as it played the familiar naval airs rang in Admiral Eberle's ears as the Wasp slipped out into the harbor.

Harmless Harmful—or Useful?

THERE are three kinds of dentifrices. There is the harmless kind of soapy compound with an agreeable flavor—bland and pleasant but of little value.

There is the kind containing powerful alkalines—always harmful—often dangerous—claiming to do what it cannot do, not doing what it ought to do.

Mennen's Cream Dentifrice is useful. It is a scientific cleanser. It cleans and polishes the teeth without grinding or scouring them. It breaks down tartar formations and removes tobacco stains. A 20% content of alcohol assures an antiseptic action.

It is absolutely non-alkaline and is therefore safe. It does not paralyze the salivary glands the way an alkaline dentifrice does. On the contrary, it contains a mild fruit acid which stimulates the flow of Saliva—Nature's agent for preserving teeth.

It costs 35 cents and the tube is smaller than many dentifrices selling for 25 cents—but Mennen's was made to deliver a result and not to fit a price.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Following a strike which completely stopped traffic on five tubes of the London system this morning the London electricians held a meeting tonight and passed the following resolution:

"This mass meeting of London members of the electrical trades unions demands that the Government at once intervene in the labor disputes on the Clyde, at Belfast, and in London, &c., with a view to introducing legislation making operative a national forty-hour week, with the object of absorbing all the unemployment in the country. In the event of the Government deciding not to intervene, we, the London members of the electrical trades unions, will cease work Thursday next at 6 P. M."

It was also decided that a deputation should lay the resolution before the Government tomorrow and that another mass meeting should be held on Wednesday to receive its report on the Government's attitude.

The electrical trades control every power station in the London district, as well as many that are outside of the nominal London area. Their stoppage of work, with the resultant closing down of these centres, would automatically plunge the metropolis and the great outer suburbs in darkness, would stop all electrically driven and lighted workshops, and would prevent the running of any electrically driven vehicles.

The Tie-up of the Tubes.

Besides the stoppage of traffic in the tubes, that on the Brighton & South Coast Railway was tied up.

The tubes affected are the Baker Street and Waterloo, the Central London, the City and South London, the Brompton and Piccadilly, and the Hampstead and Highgate. Hundreds of thousands of persons travel to and from work by these systems daily.

The resolution in favor of the strike was also submitted to the workers on the District Underground Railway, which is London's biggest tube system, and was only defeated by a small majority. A similar proposal was considered by a joint meeting of the Great Western and London and Northwestern Electric trainmen, but they decided to support the executives of the trade unions concerned. However, in the event of being drafted into the districts affected by the tube strike, the men of the systems mentioned would call upon the governing boards of the unions to declare a national strike of all sections of railway labor.

The dispute is over an agreement recently signed by representatives of the Railway Executive Committee, the National Union of Railway men and the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers, under which the eight-hour working day was given to all sections of the men. The workers' representatives contend that it was made perfectly clear that all concessions previously made and in operation were to be continued, including "relief time," which many of the men had always received.

It is now stated that after some negotiations and discussion, the Railway Executive Committee has decided that relief time was not to be given under the eight-hour day, which would mean that a man must complete eight hours of work without an interval for refreshment or rest. The companies' position appears to be that it is not a matter for them to settle, and they throw the blame on the Railway Executive Committee.

As The Westminster Gazette puts it, "for the sake of half an hour for a meal here and ten minutes for a smoke there, thousands of other members of the community are being prevented from working at all and may soon have difficulty in getting any meals."

The tubes carry more than 400,000 passengers daily and the alternative means of transport have notoriously been crowded to the utmost for months past. So tonight there have been rushes at every point where buses could be boarded.

Women standing in queues waiting for trams have shivered in the damp cold for an hour or more before they could find even standing room, and the younger and more active have tramped it for miles home to distant suburbs.

The Government Holds Off.

The Government has issued a statement throwing all the blame on a small section of men and shows no sign of interfering in this policy. It has the support of most people, and even those who ask that something should be done have no definite proposal to put forward.

Moreover, it seems that at Glasgow and in the London dock strike this attitude of aloofness is beginning to produce satisfactory results. A certain number of men have been returning to work and there is some hope that the strike fever will wear itself out.

Diaz Praises Americans Who Fought in Italy

PARIS, Feb. 3, (Associated Press.)—General Diaz, the Italian Commander in Chief, today received a number of the American newspaper men in Paris and talked at length with them on the spirit of fraternity existing between Italy and the United States. General Diaz said the American soldiers sent to Italy were a magnificent lot of men and that they fought with great ardor.

His only regret was that there were so few Americans with the Italian Army, not because of military reasons, but because he would have liked to have seen a large number of Americans returning home from Italy, who would prove "so many links in the chain of friendship and love between the two countries."

BAKER DEFENDS WORK OF COL. DEEDS

Extols the Man Whom Hughes Recommended for Court-Martial.

AT RICKENBACKER DINNER

"Ace of Aces" Guest of Honor of the Contest Board of the Automobile Association.

Colonel E. A. Deeds, whom Charles E. Hughes recommended be brought to court-martial on charges of acting as confidential adviser to a former business associate and who was subsequently exonerated by a board of inquiry, was warmly defended last night by Secretary of War Baker, speaking at a dinner tendered to Captain Edward V. Rickenbacker, America's "ace of aces," at the Waldorf-Astoria by the Contest Board of the Automobile Association of America. Colonel Deeds heard the Secretary's praise of him.

Secretary Baker cited figures showing the number of airplanes America had when we entered the war, and gave figures showing the number at the time the armistice was signed. He praised Colonel Deeds highly and all those associated with him in the designing and manufacture of the Liberty motor.

"There is present here a man who, with a drawing board and a couple of pencils, locked himself in a room and came out with the Liberty motor," continued the Secretary. "There is at a table in this room Colonel Deeds, who walked around Washington with airplanes flying off the tips of his fingers. His imagination peopled the sky with airplanes.

"There are those who think that Colonel Deeds wanted to attain the unattainable, but I want to say that he went into the aircraft problems in such a way that he allowed nothing to stand in the way of the program that he set up. As a result, in the first year of the war the Liberty motor was designed, tested, improved, and placed in quantity manufacture and 1,100 motors were produced. In the next six months 18,000 were produced. I make bold as to say that I believe that nowhere in the history of industrial achievement is there a record equal to that.

Parliament for Motors.

"I know of what I speak, for I went to France and England and I talked to many ministers, and I want to say that those officials would have traded their guns or the Houses of Parliament for the Liberty motor. Our conversations, no matter on what subject, always ended when they asked me how many Liberty motors we could give them and how soon we could send them over.

"There was also a spruce shortage. These men built railroads to inaccessible parts of the Northwest in order to get spruce, and when the armistice was signed we had taken over allied orders for 20,000,000 feet of spruce and were actually turning out 25,000,000 feet monthly.

"We had never had machine guns synchronized to the propeller blades before. By the end of the war we had made 30,000 Lewis guns and 25,000 Marlin guns synchronized to shoot through the propeller blades. And any one who knows the mechanism of a machine gun knows what that means.

"In the breakdown of machines we found that only 4 per cent. were attributable to accident, 8 per cent. because of the weakness of the machines, and from 86 to 88 per cent. because of the breakdown in men. The medical side of the air service studied the problem, and concluded that the difficulty with the men concerned itself with the high altitude they flew at; therefore they designed an oxygen device that was beneficial, and at the end of the war we were producing them at the rate of 25,000 a month.

"From the beginning to the end of the war I think it is a fair statement to say that we had exceeded, in the ingenuity of our contribution, in the organization of our facilities, in the speed of our production and in the promises of the immediate future of the air service, the work of all the other nations allied with us together.

Got 491 German Planes.

"If some of my associates in the War Department dreamed impossible dreams, if they saw possibilities for production that only time can satisfy, I attribute as much success as they did have to their optimism and enthusiasm, for if they had been pessimists they could not have made their fine accomplishments.

"At the time we entered the war the air service had twelve fighting planes, two training planes and eleven being built on order, and the entire division of the Signal Corps was composed of 160 persons. The day the armistice

BERLIN, Feb. 2, (via Copenhagen.)—Even before the delegates to the National Convention have begun to arrive at Weimar that would-be second German capital has witnessed something very akin to a Spartacide performance.

About 100 chasseurs arrived there last night to prepare quarters for the rest of the Government troops selected for the protection of Weimar. They were received at the railway station by the local Soldiers' Council of the 94th Regiment, which demanded their immediate disarmament. This demand was complied with.

Some officers, who left the station before the Soldiers' Council arrived there, were encountered by the latter at 2 o'clock in the morning at the Café Sperling, and refused to disarm. As they were greatly outnumbered by the soldiers they gave up and were arrested.

Troops arriving later were not molested. The officers were also released afterward, and their arms were restored.

The local Soldiers' Council explained its action as due to its fear of being expelled from its own barracks, in which the chasseurs were to be quartered. The People's Commissioners have since given orders to find new quarters for the chasseurs.

The incident, of course, will serve to increase distrust in the present Government's foresight and ability to manage the critical situation. Even after a long series of woeful experiences with the Spartacide and Communist Soldiers' Councils, the Government again neglected the simplest measures to assure itself of the loyalty of the Weimar Soldiers' Council, merely taking it for granted.

The danger that the 94th Regiment garrisoned at Weimar might repeat its Spartacide performance is small, because it is now largely outnumbered by Government troops. There is, however, alarming news from Eisenach, Erfurt, Halle, and Gotha, according to which a Spartacide attack on the National Convention is being prepared in all these towns.

At Eisenach the Soldiers' Council voted, 62 to 52 for "refusing protection to the National Convention." It also took possession of the telegraph office.

In Erfurt the Spartacides armed themselves with rifles and twenty rounds of ammunition each, from the stores of a small arms factory there, with the openly avowed intention of paying a visit to Weimar.

The Government has taken various precautions, demanding, for instance, that every visitor to Weimar must be provided with a passport stating the nature of his business. There is, however, one question which creates deep apprehension, namely: Are the soldiers who so readily consented to disarmament to be trusted with the protection of the National Convention?

Parley Restores Bremen Peace.

Bremen is at peace again, even if only temporarily, after two days of negotiations which were participated in by the Berlin Government, representatives of General Gerstenberg's division, the Bremen Government, the Bremen Majority Socialists, and the Hamburg and Oldenburg Soldiers' and Workers' Councils.

The People's Commissioners at Bremen consented to resign if the Berlin Government should desire them to do so. The armed workers at Bremen declared their readiness to deliver their arms to the 9th Army Corps, which guaranteed that the disarmament shall be complete and that order shall be restored in Bremen.

The Bremen Majority Socialists requested the immediate withdrawal of the division of General Gerstenberg, as its mission was finished. Gerstenberg consented not to occupy Bremen unless the other side should receive reinforcements from outside, as had been threatened.

That is the present situation, which looks very much like another compromise. Gerstenberg's division will re-

German Ex-Crown Prince Reported Suing for Divorce

ZURICH, Feb. 3.—Frederick William Hohenzollern, eldest son of the former German Emperor, has instituted proceedings for a divorce, according to a Berlin dispatch to the Munich Zeitung.

Former Crown Prince Frederick William is now an exile on the Dutch island of Weiringen, having fled to Holland soon after his father sought asylum there. His family, according to reports, has remained at Potsdam.

Frederick William was married in June, 1905, to the Grand Duchess Cecile of Mecklenburg, a sister of the Queen of Denmark. They have five children, the youngest, Princess Alexandria, having been born in 1915.

A Zurich dispatch on Sunday quoted the Tageblatt of Prague as authority for the statement that former Emperor Charles of Austria-Hungary intended to apply for a divorce. His wife was Princess Zita of Bourbon and Parma.

HALE FEARS LOSS OF SOVEREIGNTY

Suggests That Wilson's Plans Tend to a Dangerous Internationalism.

CHANGED OVER THERE

His Ideals as Voiced in Fine Phrases Not This People's Ideals, Maine Senator Insists.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—In the Senate today Senator Hale, Republican, of Maine, attacked the policy of President Wilson at the Paris conference. The President, he said, appeared to have drifted from the program which, he said, he outlined before going to Paris of having the war settled on a basis of exacting retribution from Germany, and bringing about a peace that would end militarism. Instead of pursuing that policy, the Maine Senator said, the President had assumed an attitude that would mean the surrender of the sovereignty of nations, which would be swallowed up in internationalism. This might mean in the end the heavy armament of nations to protect themselves from another war.

"The issue comes squarely down to the question whether the people of this country went into the war and carried it through for the purposes proclaimed by the President," said Senator Hale. "If the President is right, then let us make a peace that is in conformity with such humanitarian purposes, and in the future let us govern our actions toward the rest of the world in the spirit of sacrifice that these high and extremely unselfish purposes demand. We may have to surrender our sovereignty as a nation; we may have to maintain armies in all parts of the world; we may have to finance and set upon their feet and sustain the less fortunate nations of the world. What does it matter? It is all in the program, and if that is what we fought for we should be making but a poor showing as a nation if we balked at any of these things.

"I do not wish to decry the work of the President of the United States. I have already given him credit for sincerity in his motives, but I believe that his ideals are not the ideals of the vast majority of the people of the United States. The American people never understood the meaning and consequence of the ideals and policies of President Wilson. They were given out at a time when as Commander in Chief of the armies of the country it was held universally to be an unpardonable sin to criticise the President.

"But the theorists, the idealists, the people especially who never would have had us go into the war, are now in the front line trenches, loudly and vociferously contending for the millennium. But underneath all this the great still mass of the American people are awaiting their time. They are a patriotic people. They never would have consented to go to war had they not believed their country to be in danger.

"The American people will not stand for any plan that in any way affects or commits them to any policy of internationalizing their sovereignty as a nation. The American people are for America first, and they have no desire nor intention to wander very far from the faith and the teachings of their fathers."

Senator Moses, Republican, of New Hampshire, compared the Paris conference with that of Vienna. The latter conference had not upset the sovereignty of nations, he said, and nothing was to be feared from the Paris conference. In part he said:

"Indeed, any one who follows diplomatic history and has noted the lofty declarations uttered during the latter period of the controversy with Napoleon will be struck with the similarity of language to be found in the declarations, say of Alexander I., who was the proponent then of a League of Nations, and some of the proponents of the League of Nations now.

"We find Alexander described by his closest companion, Czartoryski, who, as near as I can make out, was the Colonel House of that era, as one of the group which had brought over into the nineteenth century the illusions of the eighteenth, and who felt that in their own particular formula they possessed the remedy for all the ills from which mankind suffered, that their particular panacea was a touchstone to cure all the ills of humanity, and that—to use the striking phrase of Czartoryski—a few sacramental phrases were all that were necessary to solve any problem growing out of the relations of the people.

"So they went to the Council of Vienna in the same spirit of declaration which the Senator from Maine has described as obtaining today, and the sacramental phrases were even more resonant than any that have been uttered of late. Yet we find that when the conference was ended there was no confederation of Europe by which the sovereignty of any peoples had been surrendered.

"I do not think we need to bother ourselves about the outcome of the deliberations at Versailles. I have no doubt the conference now going on in the Hall of Mirrors will be no different in their great and ultimate results from those which took place a century ago."

WILSON TELLS CHEERING DEPUTIES FRANCE IS YET FRONTIER OF FREEDOM; COMMITTEE GETS FULL LEAGUE PLAN

Wilson-Cecil-Smuts Idea Discussed Three Hours at First Session

WANT US AS A MANDATORY

OTHER COMMITTEES MEET

Lansing Heads That on War Guilt—Greece Asks for Constantinople.

PARIS, Feb. 3, (Associated Press.)—President Wilson presided at the opening meeting of the League of Nations Commission, which was held in Colonel House's apartments this afternoon and lasted from 2 to 5 o'clock.

Special interest attached to the meeting, owing to the feeling that the action of the council on the matter of the former German colonies required the early presentation of a definite plan on the constitution of the league.

The meeting afforded the members an opportunity to express individual views on the general principles which should govern the society. It is said that little divergence in views developed, except as to the measure of force to be employed, and it is believed that this fact made apparent the virtually unanimous agreement by the commission.

While the plan presented today was not disclosed, it is said to have been a combination of British, American, and French ideas. The draft does not, it is reported, go into such details as prohibiting the use of the submarine in warfare, discussing freedom of the seas, and like subjects, although it does touch on the limitation of armaments, naval as well as military.

The report of the committee will be the first presented to the plenary conference. As the committee includes representatives of all the great powers and many of the smaller ones, it is assumed that approval by the Peace Conference will be assured in advance.

Plan Printed in English.

There were present at the committee meeting today: For the United States—President Wilson, Colonel House, and Mr. Miller, technical expert; for Great Britain—Lord Robert Cecil and General Smuts; for France—Léon Bourgeois and Ferdinand Larnaude; for Italy—Premier Orlando; for Japan—Baron Chinda; also delegates from Belgium, Serbia, Brazil, Portugal, and China.

President Wilson greeted the members and took a leading part in the discussion. This was no longer general, but specific, as the meeting had before it the printed text of the agreed plan for the formation of the league. The text was in English, as had been decided upon at a recent meeting between President Wilson, Lord Robert Cecil, General Smuts, and Premier Orlando.

As some members of the commission do not speak English, it was determined to defer full discussion until the French text could be presented, when the debate will proceed article by article. This will probably be tomorrow night.

Although the agreed text seeks to bring together the views of all quarters, there are three other plans which will also be considered at the next meeting.

The following official communication was issued on today's meeting:

> The commission met to compare views on procedure and to arrive at a method which will facilitate progress.
>
> It was agreed that an accord in principle had been reached by the resolution, previously passed by the conference, and that the discussion should proceed accordingly at the next meeting, which is called for 8:30 o'clock Tuesday evening at the Hotel de Crillon.

Klotz Urges Speed.

Three other committees held their first formal meetings today.

Louis Klotz, French Minister of Finance, was elected President of the Committee on Reparation. In the briefest speech yet delivered during the conference, M. Klotz invited the members to get to work.

"Thank you," said M. Klotz. "Let us get to work for justice. That was our program."

Sign of Peace Conference Unity Seen in Lloyd George's Decision to Go to London

By ERNEST MARSHALL.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—Premier Lloyd George is arranging to go to London at the end of the week, to deal with domestic problems which press for attention. That the British Premier, whose conciliatory influence is recognized in all quarters, can leave the conference is a clear indication that the most urgent difficulties have been smoothed over, and that guiding principles have been established on which the various commissions which will continue the work of the conference can tackle the details.

Lloyd George has backed up the Wilsonian attitude with all his powers of persuasion and argument, and, while it would be unreasonable to credit all the stories of which this whispering gallery of Paris is full, there seems to be some ground for believing that but for the British Premier's intervention the deliberations of the Congress would have on occasions experienced a serious check.

The internationalization of the German colonies was one stumbling-block which Lloyd George's intuition of essential things alone made it possible to overcome. From the purely British point of view the trouble over this question is by no means over. The Australians say that Premier Hughes is one of the personalities of the conference, and that he has been badly treated, particularly on the point that the British Government has declared that it accepted the Wilsonian principle of internationalization as far back as December last, whereas the Australian Government is understood to take the position that it was left in ignorance of any such decision, although vital Australian interests were involved.

In British Colonial Office quarters it is believed that Australian irritation will diminish as soon as it is realized that the substance is more important than the shadow.

FINANCE LOOMS UP AS VITAL PROBLEM

Allies Purpose to Make Germany Pay All She Can Without Collapsing.

TO CONSULT HER ON TIME

Some Think Berlin Will Tell the Powers to Take Possession and Run the Country.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.
Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—"The question of the League of Nations is so far advanced that I regard it as 'practically settled,'" said one of the best American authorities this morning.

Undoubtedly matters have moved rapidly in the last few hours. Galley proofs of the League plan have been passed around for final approval, and unless some unexpected differences arise the world will soon know the details of the scheme adopted for making war more difficult in the future.

All the conflicts between the allied powers are already in process of settlement under League principles. That between Italy and the Jugoslavs, which has been the most difficult and menacing, seems to be nearing solution by agreement.

The next great problem, that of finance, is now claiming the attention of the conference leaders. The first step will be to fix the amount which Germany shall pay, and the committee will soon make its report.

The plan to be followed is along the general line which has been advocated editorially in THE NEW YORK TIMES. The amount to be assessed against Germany will be the maximum of what she can pay without impairing the productive capacity necessary to paying the largest possible sum. Germany will probably not be consulted regarding the amount, but necessarily will have a voice regarding the time and terms.

Germany's debt before the war was $1,250,000,000. It is now about $42,000,000,000. Great Britain started the war with a debt of $3,250,000,000 and will finish with a debt of about $32,000,000,000. America's debt has risen from about $1,000,000,000 to $13,000,000,000. The figures in the case of Great Britain and America are net, after deducting loans to other countries, which are reckoned as live assets.

The French figures are unavailable, but the position of France is known to be less favorable. Her annual requirements have been increased by the war to the extent of $2,000,000,000 to $2,400,000,000.

In addition to recouping this increase from Germany and receiving reparation for the damage to the devastated districts, there is considerable French sentiment for recovering the $1,000,000,000 paid to Germany in 1871, together with compound interest. But it is recognized by the conference that the allotment of German contributions among the various claimants must come later, and the first task must be the fixing of the aggregate amount and terms of payment.

In view of the vast amount of damage and the impossibility of collecting

GERMANS TIRED OUT, EISNER DECLARES

Strikes Due to Physical Exhaustion and Underfeeding of Workingmen, He Says.

THINKS BOLSHEVISM BEATEN

Bavarian Premier Arrives in Berne to Attend Socialist and Labor Congress.

By JULIAN GRANDE.
Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERNE, Feb. 3.—Kurt Eisner, the Bavarian Prime Minister, who has just arrived in Berne to attend the International Socialist and Labor Congress, willingly received your correspondent and gave him an interview for transmission to the United States.

Before becoming Bavarian Prime Minister, Eisner was imprisoned eight and a half months and treated as a common criminal. Owing to this and his war privations, he looks positively shrunken, not with age but with weakness, and seems to be greatly in need of a nourishing diet.

If he looks physically frail, however, his brain is extraordinarily alert and vigorous.

Eisner considers the union of German-speaking Austria and Germany probable. Concerning the monarchist party in Germany, he says it exists but is not important, and that there is no hope for the restoration of the monarchy. Although Eisner is apparently uncertain as to the form which the future German Government will take, he inclines to think that it will be a federation on the United States model.

Many fears were entertained by Eisner's followers that, owing to the women's vote, reaction in Bavaria would triumph, but the elections showed that the women were much less reactionary than had been supposed.

Referring to the German workingmen's alleged disinclination to work, Eisner says that they are not capable of work because they are tired and underfed. He considers that incapacity rather than unreadiness to work is the trouble.

Bolshevism cannot hope to prevail in Germany, he believes, although the working people are absolutely determined to reorganize the whole of society on an entirely new basis.

Eisner insists that President Wilson is quite right in putting the League of Nations first and trying to settle the world's peace afterward. He assured me that until October, 1918, the great mass of the German people believed that Germany must win, and were quite surprised when they finally realized that they could not do so. The newspapers, he said, were mainly responsible for these false notions.

Referring to the future of the German colonies he said that the German people took no interest in the question. They were too listless just now, all they want being bread and rest.

WILSON ON EASTERN PERIL

He Points to Menacing Conditions From Rhine to Pacific

WORLD'S HOPE IN LEAGUE

Sacrifices for Its Foundation, He Says, Are Nothing to Loss if It Fails.

CHEERED FOR FIVE MINUTES

Brilliant Audience Remains Standing Through His Speech, Despite His Protests.

PARIS, Feb. 3, (Associated Press.)—President Wilson this evening delivered an address in the Chamber of Deputies, having as auditors President Poincaré, the Presidents of the Chamber and the Senate, and many members of both Houses of Parliament and the personnel of the French Cabinet.

Text of the President's Speech.

President Wilson spoke as follows:

"I am keenly aware of the unusual and distinguished honor you are paying me by permitting me to meet you in this place and to address you from this historic platform.

"Indeed, Sir, as day has followed day, and week has followed week, in this hospitable land of France, I have felt the sense of comradeship ever become more and more intimate, and it has seemed to me that the making of history was becoming singularly clear.

"We knew before this war began that France and America were united in affection. We knew the occasions which drew the two nations together in those years, which now seem so far away, when the world was first beginning to thrill with the impulse of human liberty, when the soldiers of France came to help the struggling little Republic of America to get on its feet and proclaim one of the first victories of freedom.

"We had never forgotten that, but we did not see the full meaning of it. A hundred years and more went by, and the spindles were slowly weaving the web of history. We did not see it to be complete, the whole of the design to be made plain.

"Now look what has happened. In that far-off day, when France came to the assistance of America, America was fighting Great Britain. And now she is linked as closely to Great Britain as she is to France. We see now how these apparently diverging lines of history are coming together. The nations which once stood in battle array against one another, are now shoulder to shoulder, fighting an common enemy.

"It was a long time before we saw that, and in the last four years something has happened that is unprecedented in the history of mankind. It is nothing less than this—that bodies of men on both sides of the sea and in all parts of the world have come to realize their comradeship in freedom.

France "at the Frontier of Freedom."

"France, in the meantime, as we have so often said, stood at the frontier of freedom. Her lines lay along the very lines that divided the home of freedom from the home of military despotism. Hers was the immediate peril. Hers was the constant dread. Hers was the most pressing necessity of preparation, and she had constantly to ask herself this question: 'If the blow falls, who will come to our assistance?

"And the question was answered in the most unexpected way. Her allies came to her assistance, but many more than her allies. The free people of the world came to her assistance.

"And in this way America paid her debt of gratitude to France by sending her sons to fight upon the soil of France. She did more. She assisted in drawing the forces of the world together in order that France might never again feel her isolation, in order that France might never feel that hers was a lonely peril and would never again have to ask the question who would come to her assistance.

"For the alternative is a terrible alternative for France. I do not need to point out to you that east of you in Europe the future is full of question. Beyond the Rhine, across Germany, across Poland, across Russia, across Asia there are questions unanswered, and they may be for the present unanswerable.

"France still stands at the frontier. France still stands in the presence of those threatening and unanswered questions—threatening because unanswered—stands waiting for the solution of matters which touch her directly and intimately and constantly, and if she must stnd alone, what must she do? She must put upon her people a constant burden of taxation. She must undergo sacrifice that may become intolerable.

"And not only she, but the other nations of the world must do the like. They must be ready for any terrible incident of injustice. The thing is not inconceivable.

"I visited the other day a portion of the devastated region of France. I saw the noble City of Rheims in ruins, and I could not help saying to myself, 'here is where the blow fell because the rulers of the world did not sooner see how to prevent it.

"Forgetting the Relations of Peoples."

"The rulers of the world have been thinking of the relations of Governments and forgetting the relations of peoples. They have been thinking of the manoeuvres of international dealings, when what they ought to have been thinking of was the fortunes of men and women and the safety of home, and the care that they should take that their people should be happy because they were safe.

"They know that the only way to do this is to make it certain that the same thing will not always happen that has happened this time, that there never shall be any doubt or waiting or surmise, but that whenever France or any free people is threatened, the whole world will be ready to vindicate its liberty.

"It is for that reason, I take it, that I find such a warm and intelligent enthusiasm in France for the Society of Nations—France with her keen vision, France with her prophetic vision.

"It seems to be not only the need of France, but the need of mankind. And France sees the sacrifices which are necessary for the establishment of the Society of Nations are not to be compared with the constant dread of another catastrophe falling on the fair cities and areas of France.

"There was no more beautiful country. There was no more prosperous country. There was no more free-spirited people. All the world had admired France, and none of the world grudged France her greatness and her prosperity, except those who grudged her liberty and her prosperity. And it has profited us, terrible as the cost has been, to witness what has happened, to see with the physical eye what has happened because injustice was wrought.

"The President of the Chamber has pictured, as I cannot picture, the appalling sufferings, the terrible tragedy of France, but it is a tragedy which could not be repeated. As the pattern of history has disclosed itself it has disclosed the hearts of men drawing toward one another. Comradeships have become vivid. The purpose of association has become evident.

"The nations of the world are about to consummate a brotherhood which will make it unnecessary in the future to maintain those crushing armaments which make the peoples suffer almost as much in peace as they suffered in war.

"When the soldiers of America crossed the ocean they did not bring with them merely their arms. They brought with them a very vivid conception of France. They landed upon the soil of France with quickened pulses. They knew that they had come to do a thing which the heart of America had long wished to do. When General Pershing stood at the tomb of Lafayette and said: 'Lafayette, we are here!' it was as if he had said: 'Lafayette, here is the completion of the great story whose first chapter you assisted to write.'

Safety of France Assured.

"The world has seen the great plot worked out, and now the people of France may rest assured that their prosperity is secure, because their homes are secure, and men everywhere not only wish her safety and prosperity, but are ready to assure her that with all the force and wealth at their command they will guarantee her security and safety.

"So, as we sit from day to day at the Quai d'Orsay I think to myself, we might, if we could gain an audience of the free peoples of the world, adopt the language of General Pershing and say, 'Friends, men, humble women, little children, we are here; we are here as your friends, as your champions, as your representatives. We have come to work out for you a world which is fit to live in and in which all countries can enjoy the heritage of liberty for which France and America and England and Italy have paid so dear."

Speech of Paul Deschanel.

In greeting President Wilson, M. Deschanel said:

"The representatives of France are happy in offering you a respectful and affectionate welcome. Your visit evokes in our souls the memory of another memorable sojourn here—that of Benjamin Franklin on the eve of the French Revolution.

"What France acclaims in you is not only that you are the chief of a free democracy, a descendant of those admirable founders of the American Republic who brought across the ocean all the flower and fruit of experience in Anglo-Saxon politics, successor of Washington and Lincoln, but that you are a great citizen, who on that day when duty appeared to him followed the will of his nation and threw the entire force of the New World into the service of right. It is the high conscience which, imbued with the purest maxims of morality, is trying to make them penetrate into the Governments of men and into the relations of peoples between themselves.

"You wish that out of so much sorrow should come more justice. As this war was unlike any preceding war, so must this peace be unlike any preceding peace. Guarantees must be taken against the recurrence of the horrible things which have been an opprobrium to the world and which no one has stigmatized with more force than you; territorial, military, economic, and financial guarantees to protect the victims of German ambition against perpetual alarms, guarantees for free peoples, with efficacious sanctions to punish the crimes against the peace of the world first; then, to prevent them.

"In your eyes, as in ours, doubtless, the primordial condition of the foundation itself of this new world organization is a France definitely made proof against provocations and attacks. We, who during forty-four years have made the greatest sacrifices in order to maintain peace, know from the experience of centuries that the universe will never breathe freely so long as Germans can accumulate at our very doors the means of aggression.

"We will forget nothing, neither the bravery of your splendid youths, who shed their blood with ours, as one hundred and forty years ago, nor the victory of General Pershing at St. Mihiel, nor the inexhaustible and exquisite charity of your women, nor your noble figure. We find blended together all the principles of that great American civilization, made up of practical and enterprising genius, of wisdom, and idealism.

"Nothing will separate us. France loves your glorious country as a sister.

"Mr. President of the United States, we, with the President of France, request you to bring to America the loving kiss of France."

Poincare With Him.

The President was accompanied to the Palais Bourbon by President Poincaré, who called for him at the Murat mansion. Premier Clemenceau and M. Dubost, President of the Senate, were also in the party, which reached the Palais Bourbon exactly at 5 o'clock.

Paul Deschanel, President of the Chamber, received the party on the steps of the building, standing bareheaded in the damp and chilly weather. The party then disappeared into the Chamber, M. Deschanel leading the way, with Mr. Wilson and M. Poincaré walking side by side and with M. Dubost and M. Clemenceau bringing up the rear.

Military honors were rendered by the Republican Guard, resplendent in new uniforms and full regalia. The Presidential party entered the Chamber amid a fanfare of bugles and the rolling of drums. Then the band of the Republican Guard played the American national anthem and "The Marseillaise," all those inside in the Chamber meanwhile rising and cheering.

The Chamber was decorated with French and American flags. The spacious room was packed to its capacity, while in the galleries some of the people held on to the rafters.

President Wilson, President Poincaré, and M. Clemenceau and M. Dubost had seats facing the Presidential chair, which was occupied by M. Deschanel, who opened the sitting.

Mrs. Wilson, Mme. Poincaré, and Mme. Deschanel had seats in the Presidential gallery, while the diplomatic section was filled with many distinguished personalities, including members of the Peace Conference, among them David Lloyd George, the British Premier; Arthur J. Balfour, the British Foreign Secretary, and Secretary Lansing. All the Ministers were on the Government bench.

M. Deschanel opened the sitting by delivering a short but eloquent speech of welcome, to which President Wilson replied in English, an interpreter translating his words into French.

All Stand as Wilson Speaks.

As President Wilson rose and walked toward the tribune with a quick step, the Deputies, Senators, and others arose and cheered and applauded for fully five minutes. The audience insisted on hearing the President's address standing, MM. Poincaré, Clemenceau, and Dubost rising with the rest. This seemed to embarrass President Wilson, who made gestures that the Deputies remain seated, but they shouted, "Standing! We will hear you standing!"

President Wilson turned to M. Deschanel, begging him to request that the Deputies be seated, but the President of the Chamber shrugged his shoulders, as if helpless, and President Wilson began in a low voice, which gained force as he proceeded.

There was a ripple of applause now and then as he was speaking, but the majority of the Deputies and Senators were unable to understand English clearly, and thus the enthusiasm did not break out until the interpreter translated the speech. Then the Deputies and Senators gave full vent to their feelings.

BERNE CONFERENCE OPENS.

Branting in Chair Praises Wilson—No Germans on Committees.

BERNE, Feb. 3.—Arthur Henderson, the English labor leader, opened the Socialist conference this afternoon with an address showing the difficulties which he, Samuel Gompers, Albert Thomas, French labor leader, and Emile Vandervelde, Belgian Socialist chief, had in arranging it. Hjalmar Branting, the Swedish Socialist leader, was elected President.

Eighty delegates, representing twenty-one countries, were present, and it was stated that more were expected, including seventeen Americans.

Branting, in an address, remarked that if the conference at Paris "represented the ruling classes, he hoped Berne would represent the working classes." There was approval and some cheering when Branting said:

"President Wilson is the great protector of workingmen and the founder of the League of Nations."

A feature of the conference was the absence of a German representative among the leaders on the platform. No German was appointed on any committee named so far.

ASKS INQUIRY ON WAR.

Resolution by Representative Siegel Provides for Bipartisan Committee.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Investigation by a special House Committee of the charges as to the conduct of the war made on the floor in the last ten days, respecting the demoting of National Guard officers, failure to make allotments and other matters, is sought by a resolution offered today by Representative Isaac Siegel of New York. The resolution provides that the Speaker shall appoint a committee of eight, four of each political party. Mr. Siegel said tonight he would ask the Rules Committee tomorrow to fix a day for a hearing on his resolution.

Mr. Siegel said he had been informed that 400 men reported each day at Camp Upton and were told to spend the day playing checkers as there was no military duty to be performed.

"If that is true," he added, "these men should be discharged. I hope that an investigation will be authorized and that it will be undertaken in a non-partisan way."

HOPES OF PROGRESS IN PARIS THIS WEEK

Possibility of Another Full Peace Conference Session on Wednesday.

BRITISH VIEW OF SEA POWER

Delegates Adhere to "Admiralty Policy" of Sufficient Force to Meet Any Attack.

By ERNEST MARSHALL.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 2.—European and Asiatic territorial questions are the first point on the agenda of the Council of Ten for the earlier sessions of the week. Simultaneously with these conferences at the Quai d'Orsay, there will be extra conference discussions, chiefly at the Villa Murat and the Hotel de Crillon in the evenings, on the League of Nations, while members of the commission will at the same time be studying such questions as the responsibility for the war, reparations, financial problems, and the raising of the blockade.

It is hoped that sufficient progress will be made to enable the holding of another plenary session on Wednesday, on which day, unless expectations are disappointed, a new and important stage in the construction of the League of Nations will be found to have been reached. In that event the plenary conference will register a formula giving concrete form to the league.

House Has French Proposals.

Léon Bourgeois, head of the French section for the study of the league, has handed to Colonel House for President Wilson and Premiers Clemenceau, Lloyd George, and Orlando, a draft of proposals for the league, unanimously adopted by delegates from unofficial associations of the allied powers which have been studying the question during the last week. Some modifications may, of course, be introduced during the evening conferences at the Villa Murat, but in its main outlines this unofficial scheme, which has the support of American, British, French, Italian, and Belgian associations in favor of the league, is expected to provide the formula which the next plenary conference will adopt. President Wilson will introduce the resolution to the conference.

With the adoption of concrete proposals for the league, the conference will have reached a point where it can be said that guarantees are provided for the obligations which the peacemakers are contracting toward the world. The league will be the consecration of the peace terms. It will also imply the abdication of selfish national aspirations for the common weal.

There is some disparity between the American and British expectations as to the course of procedure during the week. While in American quarters it is thought that the "freedom of the seas" will come up for early discussion, the British understanding is that this is a question which cannot be debated in all its phases and as a whole until Germany is summoned to Versailles.

British for "Admiralty Policy."

According to the British view, no decisions can be taken by the British Government until the future policy of Germany is clearly established, with definite assurances that it will not become a menace. The British attitude in regard to the whole question of the freedom of the seas was today defined as the "Admiralty policy." In other words, the political side of the subject takes secondary place by comparison with the Admiralty view that the interest of the far-flung British Empire must be adequately safeguarded by a navy sufficiently strong to meet any attack such as Germany made in 1914 upon the safety of the world. This attitude does not imply any lack of accord with the American program of naval construction. Agreement between America and Great Britain on that point, it is considered, can easily be reached. A working agreement would permit of limitations of armament, which Great Britain, on her side, is anxious to secure.

With Germany a member of the League of Nations, and abiding by its prescriptions, British apprehensions would receive alleviation, and the whole question known as the freedom of the seas would be susceptible of discussion without the reserves which Great Britain put upon her acceptance of President Wilson's fourteen points.

SURE SUBMARINES MUST GO.

English Correspondent Also Says Armaments Will Be Gradually Cut.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The abolition of submarines as warships may be decided upon by the League of Nations Committee during the coming week, according to the Paris correspondent of The Mail. It is said that this was one of several understandings which were reached during the conference Friday between President Wilson and Colonel House, General Smuts, and Lord Robert Cecil, and will probably be proposed among the first planks of the platform at the sessions this week.

British and American delegates, representing the biggest naval powers, are said to have sounded all naval opinion on this point. It was suggested by some that the submarine might be used defensively between the three-mile limit of territorial waters, but the overwhelming sentiment was that the undersea boat must be abolished outright.

"After scrapping the submarine," the correspondent says, "it is understood that recommendation will be made that the economic weapon take the place of all other weapons in future wars. Respecting disarmament, the League will endeavor to work out a scheme by which the armaments of all nations will be gradually curtailed to a point decided upon as being necessary for defense. The league will try to arrange this early enough to insure that the financial savings thus gained will pay the interest on the world's war debt."

Premier, and M. Vanderhevuel of Belgium, were elected Vice Presidents.

Another meeting of the committee was called for tomorrow to complete the organization. On Wednesday morning the committee will begin discussing the general principles of reparation.

Robert Lansing, American Secretary of State, was unanimously elected President of the Committee on Responsibility for the War. In proposing Mr. Lansing's name, Captain Andre Tardieu, the French member of the committee, said that before regulating a peace of justice it was necessary to impose penalties upon the authors of the aggressions which had brought death to millions.

The work of the committee, he explained, would be, first, to study the facts which would establish the guilt of those responsible for premeditated violation of treaties and international law, and, second, to fix the penalties which would be defined and applied.

This statment was issued:

> The initial meeting of the commission on the responsibility for the war and its conduct was held today at 3 o'clock at the Ministry of the Interior, and was attended by the delegates of the powers represented on the commission.
>
> Robert Lansing, Secretary of State and chief representative for the United States, was chosen President of the commission, and Sir Gordon Stewart of the British delegation and Senator Scialoia of the Italian delegation were chosen Vice Presidents. M. de la Pradelle was appointed secretary of the commission.
>
> It was decided to appoint three subcommittees, two for the examination of questions of law and one for the examination of facts. The following persons were named as a committee of three to nominate members of the above mentioned sub-committees and to determine the mandate under which the sub-committees in question will act: W. F. Massey of the British delegation, M. Tardieu of the French delegation, and M. Politis, Greek delegates.

The Commission on Ports, Waterways, and Railways also held its first meeting today. The meeting was called to order by M. Clavelle, French Minister of Public Works. On his motion Signor Crispi, Italian Minister of Supplies, was named as Chairman and M. Sirton of Belgium Vice Chairman.

The Supreme Council transmitted a request for the admission of members of the smaller nationalities to this committee, which accordingly added a Czech, a Portuguese, and a Pole to membership.

The French and British presented a program including recognition of the general principle of the right of nations to control international waterways and international railways, which was accepted by the commission. The details of this will be considered at the next meeting.

The meeting of the principal commissions designated by the Peace Conference to prepare work for the conference is believed to promise a speedy conclusion of consideration of certain subjects.

The President's day was one of hard work. Every moment was assigned to some special task. First was the meeting of the Supreme Council, then one of the commission of the Society of Nations, and later a long reception in the Chamber of Deputies, at which the President spoke. So occupied was his time that the President had scarcely time for meals.

The much-discussed question whether the British dominions shall have separate representation as national units in a Society of Nations is understood to have been settled favorably as far as Great Britain is concerned.

Numerous conferences have been held between representatives of the dominions and the British Government, and it is said that a complete agreement has been reached that the self-governing dominions are entitled to places in the society as entities, having the same status as any other nation. The final decision rests with the Peace Conference, but the representatives of the dominions expect no objections there inasmuch as Great Britain is supporting them.

Pressing Us to Accept as Mandatory.

No answer has been returned by the American delegates to the Peace Conference to what is said to be an almost unanimous desire of the other powers that the United States undertake to act as mandatory for Armenia and other severed provinces of Turkey. Such of the American delegates as will discuss the situation say that they are disposed to resist this development of the plan for mandatories, holding that it is the business of Europe to look after the Europeans and the people of the Near East.

The argument used by the other powers in support of their desire that the United States assume some of the obligations to care for the welfare of backward peoples affected by the peace settlement and assist in their advancement to a higher state of civilization is based upon the unlimited confidence of other Governments and because it is known that the United States has no territorial aspirations.

Furthermore, it is argued that the confidence of the Armenians and the other peoples of the provinces affected, through the long-exerted influence of Robert College at Constantinople, is a strong reason for the participation of America as the mandatory power.

The American delegates feel that they should await the development of sentiment in America as to what duties may devolve upon the United States in connection with its interest in the welfare of dependent peoples.

It seems to be the view in American circles that the powers granted the mandatory nations will have a considerable influence in shaping the attitude of the American delegation on this question. If the mandatory is limited to the employment of native constabulary to enforce its mandates, there might be less objection to accepting such a responsibility than if it were contemplated that the mandatories use military forces of their own, this latter idea being obnoxious to the Americans.

In any event, before the American attitude can be determined, it is held to be necessary to await the completion of the project by the commission of the Peace Conference which is merging the various plans for the creation of the Society of Nations.

None of Our Troops to Turkey.

In connection with the work of the Military Commission of the War Council it was reiterated today in definite form that the use of American troops in garrisoning Turkey was not contemplated.

It was stated that examination of a statement prepared by General Tasker H. Bliss, military member of the commission, was thought to show clearly the unconstitutionality of such use of the armed forces of the United States without express sanction by Congress, in the absence of a declaration of war between the United States and Turkey.

The Military Commission, which is dealing with the question of the demobilization and reduction of the armed forces on the western front, is making rapid progress with its plans. Two sub-committees have been created to hasten the work.

The work of the Peace Conference has assumed such proportions that several delegations have found it necessary to send for assistance. The Japanese delegation has telegraphed to Minister Honda at Brussels, and Minister Adachi at Berne to come to Paris at once.

The Italian delegation has called for additional expert assistance to handle Socialist and labor problems, and in reply has been informed of the departure from Rome for Paris of Baron Mayor des Planches, head of the Bureau of Immigration, who was recently appointed a member of the Peace Conference Committee on International Labor Legislation.

GREECE PUTS IN CLAIM TO CONSTANTINOPLE

Venizelos Would be Willing, However, to Have City Made International Under League.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—Premier Venizelos of Greece was before the Supreme Council of the Peace Conference at its session this morning and made a statement on the claims of Greece. He will continue his presentation at tomorrow morning's session.

The Greek claims, as presented by Venizelos, who was accompanied by Nicholas Politis, Greek Foreign Minister, embraced Northern Epirus, Thrace down the Dardanelles, including Constantinople, and the seafront along Western Asia Minor, with Smyrna as its commercial and geographical centre.

M. Venizelos maintained that the Greek race largely predominated in these regions. This was so manifest, particularly in Northern Epirus, that he intimated his willingness to leave the question to a plebiscite of the inhabitants of the various regions as the means of determining the racial predominance.

Concerning Constantinople, the Greek Premier maintained that if Ottoman sovereignty were suppressed, the natural solution would be to allot Constantinople and its vilayet to Greece, with international guarantees for the free navigation of the Dardanelles. If the Society of Nations became a reality, however, the Premier suggested that the international importance of Constantinople might make advisable the internationalization of the city under the protection of the society, which should select the Governor.

The official communiqué today reads:

> The President of the United States, the Prime Ministers and Ministers of Foreign Affairs of the allied and associated powers, and the Japanese representatives met today at the Quai d'Orsay from 11 A. M. to 1 P. M. They heard M. Venizelos's statement of the claims of Greece, which will be continued tomorrow at 11 A. M., after which the Czechoslovak delegates will again be heard.

PAPER TRADE CONVENTIONS.

Manufacturers to Discuss the Development of Export Business.

The twenty-second annual convention of the American Paper and Pulp Association began yesterday in the Walcorf, and will continue until Feb. 6. President George W. Sison, Jr., said that the convention would consider national questions, such as the development of export trade, the supply of paper stock and materials, and the development of water power systems. Henry P. Carruth of the Mead Pulp and Paper Company, Dayton, Ohio, presided at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Technical Association of the pulp and paper industry.

The convention of the National Paper Trade Association opened yesterday in the Waldorf. The Executive Committees of the Fine Paper Division and of the Coarse Paper Division will meet today at 9:30 o'clock.

enough to cover it fully, many plans have been discussed, including the distribution of the loss among the Allies in accordance with their population and resources. This suggestion has not been seriously considered by the American delegates, and is not likely to be pressed.

Everybody is in accord in the determination to make Germany pay to the uttermost. If, however, the amount fixed is beyond what she regards as her ability to pay, it is believed that she will "lie down." This action may take the form of inviting the Allies to occupy Germany with their armies and take full possession of all her industrial and economic resources, as well as the government of the country. It is not expected that under any circumstances would she offer military resistance. Her complete submission in the way suggested is regarded as the card that she is most likely to play.

In the light of President Wilson's procedure in the Peace Conference, Congress can rest assured that American interests and sentiment are being studiously considered in every move made. The President is taking care not to give just ground for criticism, and thus far the Senatorial attacks, it is felt, have been in the nature of putting up men of straw and knocking them down.

Fortunately, President Wilson has established himself so firmly in the peace councils that the Washington attacks have not cut the ground from under him here.

APPEAL BY FIUME OFFICIALS.

Mayor and Deputies Argue That "State" Should Be Italian.

PARIS, Feb. 2, (Associated Press.)—President Wilson and other members of the Peace Conference have received from the President of the National Council at Fiume, the Mayor of the city, and members in the House of Deputies, a memorandum concerning the situation in that town, which expects its fate to be decided this week. The memorandum maintains that upon the dissolution of Austria Fiume became an independent State, exercising all State functions, as it had notified all Governments of Europe and America.

"The State of Fiume, using its rights of self-determination, decided to join Italy for national and economic reasons," the memorandum says. "The nationality of Fiume is proven by the fact that all Mayors and Deputies of the city have always been Italian, and the same holds true as to members of the Municipal Council. All schools in Fiume are Italian. The number of children attending Croatian schools at Susak, the neighboring Slav village, is hardly 1 per cent. of the total number of school children in Fiume.

"The Jugoslav commerce passing through Fiume is only 1 per cent. of the whole traffic of the port. Out of the total Jugoslav exportation and importation, 13 per cent. passes through Fiume, while 87 per cent. goes through Dalmatian ports, which Italy has proposed shall be assigned to the Jugoslavs."

GEORGIA REJECTS RUSSIAN PARLEY

Caucasian Republic Answers That the Country Is No Longer a Part of Russia.

NO TRUCE, SAYS KOLCHAK

Siberian Dictator Tells Army He Will Have Nothing to Do with Bolshevist Brigands.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—The Government of Georgia, in Transcaucasia, has responded to the invitation sent out by wireless from the Peace Conference to the Russian factions to attend the proposed Princes' Islands conference. The response is a declination to attend, on the ground that Georgia, like Finland, already has achieved her independence and is no longer a portion of Russia, so that she is not interested in the subject.

The Journal du Peuple says that the reply of M. Longuet, a French Socialist leader, to the Bolshevist Government concerning the conference on the Princes' Islands, which Foreign Minister Pichon said yesterday the French Government could not forward because its wireless was reserved for official use, has now been wirelessed to Moscow, "thanks to the American Government." The American delegates to the Peace Conference deny any knowledge of the matter.

OMSK, Jan. 30, (Associated Press.)—Public opinion in Omsk, where many thousands of refugees who fled before the wave of Bolshevism in European Central Russia are gathered, appears greatly exercised over the proposal of the allied powers for a conference of the various Russian factions, including the Bolsheviki.

The general idea among these refugees seems to be that Bolshevism must be crushed by arms and that no negotiations should be held with representatives of the Bolshevist régime.

In the absence of details, the Omsk Government has not yet replied to the proposal to attend the conference. Admiral Kolchak, the head of the Government, however, has issued a proclamation to the army in which he says there can be no thought of an armistice with the Bolsheviki "who crushed the nation, pillaged property, defiled sanctuaries and massacred the people."

"It is possible to reach an accord with the various provisional governments, but with brigands never," the proclamation concludes.

Admiral Kolchak took a solemn oath to work for the salvation of Russia and when it was pacified to turn it over to the people, who would be free to decide the form of government they desired. He said that in the meantime the government needed every assistance in the task of rehabilitation. Leaders of the army took a similar oath.

An impressive ceremony took place in the Ministry of Justice today when the Supreme Court founded by Peter the Great was reconstituted. The Court will be the highest tribunal and also will examine into the codification of laws affecting the land. The painting of former Emperor Nicholas II. was removed and that of Alexander II., the reformer and emancipator of the serfs, hung in its place in the Auditorium. Representatives of various groups of the population attended the ceremony.

For refusing to obey an order to protect the front of the Siberian army against the Bolsheviki in the region of Kungur, southeast of Perm, 250 soldiers and ten officers have been tried by court martial and shot for insubordination, according to a report received here from Kungur. Eight officers and fifty soldiers were taken to Ekaterinburg for trial.

The insubordination of the soldiers weakens the defense of Perm against the Bolsheviki, who continue to advance toward it from the southeast.

WANTS NO WOMEN SOLDIERS.

Northern Army Chief Orders Mme. Butchkareff to Discard Uniform.

ARCHANGEL, Jan. 3. (Associated Press.)—Commander Maria Butchkareff, who led the famous Women's Battalion which was raised after the Russian revolution and took part in fighting in the Summer of 1917 on the eastern front, has returned to wearing civilian clothes by order of General Marushewski, Commander in Chief of the Russian forces in the region of the North. The General says he considers the performance of military duties by women as improper. The General's order, in part, reads:

"I do not take the responsibility of estimating the merits of Mme. Butchkareff's organization in the Russian Army, and I surmise that the efforts made and blood shed in the name of the Fatherland will be duly considered by the Central Government and by history. However, I consider it my duty to declare that within the borders of the Northern region, thank God, the time for quiet constructive work has come. I believe that the performance by women of military duties, which are improper for the sex, is a shameful mark stamped on the entire population of the region. I enjoin Mme. Butchkareff to take off her military uniform."

General Marushewski's order is the sequel to a call which Mme. Butchkareff made upon him last week, in officer's uniform with epaulettes, on her return from the Shenkursk district, where she had been working among the peasants. Her Adjutant, Lieutenant Filopoff, has been ordered to new duties.

WINDAU, BALTIC PORT, CAPTURED BY REDS

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 3.—A dispatch received from Libau says the Bolsheviki have captured the harbor and town of Windau, in Courland, on the Baltic Sea.

WARSAW, Jan. 31, (by Wireless via Vienna,) (Associated Press.)—Kiev has been taken by Bolshevist troops, General Petlura's troops partially going over to the enemy.

The Ukraine Government has been moved from Kiev to Winnitza, to the southwest. Railway communication with Kiev is cut off at Kovel, where there is a body of German troops attempting to keep order among disorderly Germans who are retiring from Ukraine.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 2, (via Montreal.)—Information has been received here of very disturbed conditions in Turkestan, where Bolshevist activity is prevalent and where some 40,000 German and Austrian former prisoners remain.

Fighting has occurred with Bolsheviki in the northern region, but details are lacking.

General Denekine's army in the region of Ekaterinodar, to which the British mission is attached, is making good progress, but in the other parts of southeastern Russia the situation remains unchanged, at least as regards the interior, where the Bolsheviki are supreme.

The Russian Black Sea ports are safe owing to the presence of allied warships, but communications between ports and the interior country are rendered difficult by the Bolsheviki.

SAYS BOLSHEVISM MUST BE OVERTHROWN

President Tschaikovsky of North Russia Scorns Mere Idea of Compromise.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Nicholas Tschaikovsky, President of the Northern Government of Russia, who passed through London on his way to Paris, said in the course of an interview to a representative of The Morning Post:

"The Allies must find some organic solution of the Russian problem and must not merely wave it away, as in fact has been done by the invitation to Princes' Islands.

"Remember that the germs of Bolshevism are today to be found in every country, and Bolshevism is not a manifestation of a political party, but a tendency that has degenerated into the tyranny of robbers and criminals. As for the masses who follow the Bolshevist leaders, they are largely mutineers, and to attempt to settle with such people by discussion is simply futile. Such an attempt would lower your prestige to the vanishing point and deprive you of all influence whatever in Russia.

"As to the suggestion that we other Russians should enter into negotiations for an accommodation with the Bolheviki, I would first point out that it is impracticable, because we have no common ground with the Bolsheviki. They deny every democratic principle that we affirm, fundamentally the liberty of the subject. There is only one settlement possible between us: either we prevail over them or they prevail over us.

"The policy of the conference is not only useless, is not only impracticable, but it is humiliating to the representatives of Russia. We cannot enter into discussions with criminals and outrage-mongers. To do so would be to recognize Bolshevism as a party or to recognize crime as a normal political weapon and to tolerate the loosening of the foundations of democracy. Their motives and principles would destroy all the accumulation of the ages, both material and spiritual, and to admit them to conference is to capitulate to anti-social forces altogether. It would be to take the first step on a disastrous road along which there is no stopping.

"At this time there is only one answer to the Bolsheviki, and it is: 'Hands off the State! Abdicate power and consent to the conditions which will allow free Russia to elect its own Constituent Assembly!'

"If the Bolsheviki refuse, then the League of Nations must organize an international force and impose their decrees. An end must be put to terrorism. Instead of this suggested conference with the Bolsheviki, it would be more straightforward and sincere of the Allies to say to the rest of Russia: 'We leave you to your fate.'

"If we are thus left to our fate to fight against Bolshevism, we shall do it to the last. Most of us will perish, but at least the future of Russia will be consolidated by our sacrifice. Something will be saved from the ruin. But under such humiliating conditions as are implied by the recognition of the conference with Bolshevism we cannot exist, and the State itself cannot exist. The sovereignty of the Russian State must be upheld at all costs."

DOWAGER CZARINA THINKS HER SONS LIVE

Refuses to Leave Russia Until Certain of Fate of Nicholas and Michael.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—Dowager Empress Marie Feodorovna of Russia has clung so firmly to her belief that her sons, the former Russian Emperor and Grand Duke Michael, are not dead, that many of her friends have been won over to that view and rumors in the European press concerning Nicholas Romanoff's alleged whereabouts are attracting much attention.

The aged Empress resolutely refuses to leave Russia until she learns positively of the fate of her son. She continues to live simply at Yalta, Crimea, declining invitations to visit the King and Queen of Rumania and even her sister, Queen Mother Alexandra of Great Britain.

Lieut. Col. J. W. Boyle, formerly of the Canadian Militia, who was commissioned by King Ferdinand of Rumania to visit Yalta with a ship to induce the Dowager Empress to seek safety in Rumania, recently arrived in Paris and told The Associated Press that the Dowager Empress's declination was most affecting. In spite of the gratitude she felt for King Ferdinand's interest, she said her duty to her family and to Russia prevented her leaving, as she and her daughters had decided to remain until the fate of Nicholas and Michael was cleared up.

Although the Dowager Empress's optimism has possibly been based on the fact that much unfavorable news has been concealed from her, Lieut. Col. Boyle says her hopefulness is convincing, and has spread to all her associates who do not believe the Bolshevist account of the murder of Nicholas at Ekaterinburg and the death of Michael at Perm.

Lieut. Col. Boyle says that a report of an investigation made by Czech officers on the murder of the former Emperor's family, which is the only reliable source of information, established that buttons and jewels belonging to the former Emperor's daughters were found in the ashes where the bodies of the entire Romanoff family were supposed to have been burned. This is not conclusive evidence, in Lieut. Col. Doyle's opinion.

Crimea is now comparatively quiet, and the Dowager Empress has an adequate guard of old officers to protect her against local Bolshevist demonstrations. Since the allied fleets entered the Black Sea there have been no disturbances at Yalta and food is plentiful there.

ENTENTE GAVE BANAT TO RUMANIA

Agreement Signed in August, 1916, When Ferdinand Entered War, Is Made Public.

RUSSIA PROMISED HELP

Rumania Was to Declare War Eight Days After a Saloniki Offensive Began.

PARIS, Feb. 3, (Associated Press.)—The text of a treaty signed on Aug. 17, 1916, between Rumania and the Quadruple Entente is published today by the Temps. It embodies the conditions under which Rumania entered the war. Following are the articles:

Article 1. France, Great Britain, Italy, and Russia guarantee the territorial integrity of the Kingdom of Rumania in the whole extent of its present frontiers.

Article 2. Rumania engages to declare war on and attack Austria-Hungary under the conditions stipulated in the accompanying military convention, and also engages on the declaration of war to cease economic relations and commercial exchanges with the enemies of all the Allies.

Article 3. France, Great Britain, Italy, and Russia recognize Rumania's right to annex the territories in the Austro-Hungarian monarchy stipulated by Article 4.

Article 4 delimits the territories to be annexed by Rumania as follows:

The line will begin on the Pruth River at a point on the present frontier near Novoselitza; it will mount the Pruth to the frontier of Galicia at the confluence of the Pruth and the Czeremosz. It will then follow the frontier of Galicia-Bukowina and Galicia-Hungary to the Point Stog. It thence follows the line separating the waters of the Tisza and Vizo, reaching the Tisza at the village of Trebusa, above which it joins the Vizo.

Thence it descends the Thalweg Tisza to four kilometers below its junction with the Szamos River, leaving the village of Uasares Nameny to Rumania. It continues in a direction southsouthwest to a point six kilometers east of the town of Liebreczen. From this point it reaches the Crisch, a few kilometers below meeting its two affluents, the White Crisch and the Rapid Crisch. It then joins the Tisza at the village of Algye, north of Szegeeden, passing west of the villages of Croshaza and Befessamson, making a small curve.

From the Algy line it descends the Thalweg Tisza to its confluence with the Danube, and thence follows the Thalweg Danube to the present frontier of Rumania.

Rumania engages not to raise fortifications in front of Belgrade in a zone to be determined later, and only to keep a necessary force in this zone for police purposes. The Royal Rumanian Government engages to indemnify the Serbians of Banta, (of Temesias,) who in abandoning their properties, wish to emigrate within two years from the conclusion of peace.

Article 5.—Engages Rumania and the Quadruple Entente not to make a separate peace. The Quadruple Entente engage that the aforesaid territories in the Austro-Hungarian monarchy shall be annexed by the treaty of peace.

Article 6.—Rumania is to enjoy the same rights as the Allies in the peace preliminaries and the discussion of questions submitted to the Peace Congress.

Article 7.—The present treaty is to be kept secret until the conclusion of a general peace.

The military convention follows. The principal of the seventeen articles are:

Article 1. Rumania engages to attack Austria-Hungary on Aug. 28, 1916. (eight days after the Saloniki offensive.)

Article 2. The Russian Army will aid by vigorous action, notably in Bukonwia, and the Russian fleet will watch the Rumanian coasts, having the right of the use of the Port of Constanza (Kustendje.)

Article 3. Russia engages to send into Dobrudja two divisions of infantry and one division of cavalry to cooperate with the Rumanian Army against the Bulgarians, the Allies to make an offensive at Saloniki at least eight days before Rumania enters the war.

Article 4.—Rumania is to receive from the Allies, by way of Russia, munitions and war material.

Article 8.—The necessities of war comradeship in arms being safeguarded, no contracting party is subordinated to any other.

Article 9.—The principal object of Rumanian action will be in the direction of Budapest through Transylvania. The Russian troops, co-operating with the Rumanian army, will be under command of the chief of the Rumanian army.

NEW HOTEL FOR SOLDIERS.

Salvation Army to Operate the Victoria, Near Times Square.

As a temporary home for returning American soldiers the Salvation Army yesterday purchased the Victoria Hotel, at 155 West Forty-seventh Street.

The property, which consists of a nine-story building, with a frontage of 120 feet and a depth of 100, was sold by the Longacre Realty Company through William A. White & Sons. It was built in 1910, the land and buildings being assessed by the city for taxation purposes at $625,000. There are two mortgages on the property, and it is understood that the Salvation Army paid about $100,000 in cash, besides assuming the mortgages.

35 SOLDIERS HURT IN ATLANTIC STORM

Transport Agamemnon, Here with 3,129 Troops, Encountered Rough Seas.

NONE SERIOUSLY INJURED

Heavy Seas Hit Deckhouse and Flying Glass Cut Men Watching Hurricane.

The three transports which arrived yesterday from France with 3,129 troops experienced extremely heavy weather in the mid-Atlantic which delayed their arrival in port.

The officers of the American transport Agamemnon, which was formerly the North German Lloyd liner Kaiser Wilhelm II., said that the gale from the westward they encountered last Thursday developed into a hurricane with a velocity of 100 miles or more an hour. The seas, they said, were fully forty-five feet high and smashed over the hurricane deck, sweeping everything movable into the water.

Two of the lifeboats on the port side broke away from their lashings and crashed against the deckhouse smashing in the glass windows behind which the soldiers were watching the storm. One of the troops galleys was flooded, and a cook was carried out and swept along the alleyway with two batches of bread, a bag of onions, and two big pans of hash he was preparing for supper. "Pepper," the ship's pet cat, was washed overboard from the vegetable locker, and brought back by a cross sea which landed the dazed animal in the butcher's shop.

Everything was upset as the huge seas came over one after another for several minutes, and when there was a lull thirty-five soldiers were discovered bleeding from the cuts of the broken glass in the deck house. They were taken to the ship's hospitals on the main deck and treated. Five were cut so severely that they were in the hospital when the Agamemnon docked yesterday in Hoboken. Many of the soldiers were hurled about the decks during the big storm on Thursday, but were not injured.

The Agamemnon carried 2,914 troops, including 1,657 officers and men of the 51st Regiment of the Coast Artillery, regular army, and 38 officers and 311 men from Base Hospital 2, which was organized at Camp Meade, Md. There were also 627 sick and wounded aboard, and 43 naval officers and several casual officers.

One of the army officers on the transport was Captain Reed G. Landis, son of Judge Kenesaw M. Landis of Chicago, who was attached to the 25th Aero Squadron and spent most of the time at the front attached to a British unit. He has a record of twelve German planes officially and claims six more. He wears the American D. S. C. and the British Distinguished Flying Cross. Another American aviator, Lieutenant G. A. Vaughan of Brooklyn, who has ten planes credited to him officially, also wore the British Flying Cross. Lieutenant D. Andrews of Denver was eight months with the 104th Aero Squadron and has two German machines to his credit.

Among the casuals on the Agamemnon were fifty wounded marines of the Fifth and Sixth Regiments, who were proud of having been in the fighting at Château-Thierry and Belleau Wood.

The 51st Regiment of Coast Artillery, which returned under the command of Colonel R. M. Mitchell, was in action at Seichprey, St. Mihiel, and the Argonne, and has only about 20 per cent. replacements, as the casualties were light.

Corporal Charles Pepper of Company D, 165th Regiment, wears the French War Cross, which he won by bayonetting fifteen Germans at Château-Thierry on Oct. 15. His home is at 1,055 Tiffany Street, the Bronx. Corporal Daniel J. Carroll of 275 Ninth Avenue, Company K, 165th Infantry, who also returned, was wounded in the ankle by a machine gun bullet at the Ourcq on July 28. He said that Major James McKenna was taken to the first aid station with him and laid down just beside him, but was beyond help.

Back Base Hospital Unit No. 2, with 40 officers and 308 men, which sailed from this city as No. 1 Presbyterian U. S. A. Hospital, returned under the command of Major W. B. Soper, with Captain Fenwick Beekman of 10 East Eighty-sixth Street as Adjutant. The unit has been stationed at Havre, and received wounded and sick British soldiers on their way to "Blighty." Dr. H. N. Vermilye of 1,229 Madison Avenue, who was with the unit, said that the hospital had accommodations for 600 patients and 60 nurses.

Another passenger on the Agememnon was Captain H. A. Hepburn, U. S. N., who has been in charge of the Third U. S. Submarine Division at Queenstown, Ireland. His division got five German submarines all told, and he said the Americans worked in perfect harmony with the British. "They are mighty fine fellows," the Captain added, "and if there is a story going around that tells of friction, I want to set it at rest forever."

The transport Samarinda arrived from St. Nazaire yesterday with 278 officers and men, and docked in South Brooklyn, where the passengers were debarked on a naval tug and landed at Hoboken. The troops included casuals of all branches of the army, including casual companies, 133 of Georgia and 446 New York.

The transport Absecon arrived from Nantes with 23 casuals.

The United States steamship Nansemond, 13,333 gross tonnage, which was formerly the Hamburg-American steamship Pennsylvania, has been taken over by the Navy Department, and will leave for Brest to bring back 5,000 troops. She has been painted the new transport colors adopted by naval officials, which consist of a black hull, white superstructure and deck houses, yellow masts and black funnels. During the war the Nansemond was used for carrying locomotives to France, and made one or two voyages with wounded.

EXTREMISTS TO JOIN IN WEIMAR RAID

main in front of Bremen until the final settlement.

The railway to the south, part of which had been destroyed by the Government troops, was restored last night, but service was again interrupted later because of some shooting affrays in the city, where the Majority Socialists and certain troops fought against the Spartacide elements.

Fears of Renewed Outbreak.

What may be expected if the Berlin Government consents to the disarmament of the Bremen workmen by the 9th Army Corps is indicated by a speech made by Pool, who acted as representative of the corps in the negotiations for peace. This speech, which Pool made to the armed Bremen workmen yesterday, is reported by the Vossische Zeitung today as follows:

"Unless Noske's answer to the demand that Gerstenberg's division be withdrawn is satisfactory, Pool told the workmen, he would mobilize the whole Ninth Army Corps for Bremen's defense. He had requested the garrison of Itzehoe to send artillery. Cuxhaven reinforcements had already arrived, but Lübeck refused to send any reinforcements except against the Spartacides.

"Pool said he was now going to negotiate with Gerstenberg. Were the workmen willing to be disarmed if Gerstenberg should insist? There was no clear answer. Pool now put the question as follows:

"'Will the armed workmen join the Ninth Army Corps in defense of Bremen if Gerstenberg does not desist from invasion?'

"The answer was affirmative and seemingly unanimous.

"After Pool, the former Governor of Bremen, Herr Eecks, addressed the workmen, advising them to make peace for the present, as it was not really intended to disarm them, but merely to make them part of the 75th Infantry Battalion, and that the arms should be kept for them at the barracks of that command and returned to the workmen when the time arrived to fight against the Government."

BERLIN, Feb. 2, (Associated Press.)—In the face of the clear intention of the extremists to oppose the meeting of the National Assembly, the Government is taking strong military measures, both in Berlin and Weimar.

Troops have been reinforced in the newspaper quarter of Berlin, and heavily manned armored cars stand day and night before the Reichstag Building, in readiness to proceed to any threatened point.

The extremists, by occupying the telegraph office at Eisenach, are able to paralyze a large part of the telegraphic traffic with Weimar.

HALTS WAR BETWEEN POLES AND CZECHS

Allied Commission Arranges Truce Pending Inquiry Into Coal Fields Dispute.

PARIS, Feb. 3, (Associated Press.)—The allied commission which leaves for Poland next Saturday to adjust controversies between the Poles and Czechoslovaks over the Teschen coalfields has been able to arrange a truce between the two nationalities only pending the arrival of the commission and personal examination by it of the situation there.

Accordingly, the arrangement prescribes the sections where the Poles and Czechs are to exercise civil administration and military occupation, and regulates the operation and disposition of the output of the mines. As soon as possible after its arrival the commission will go to Teschen to examine the matter at issue. This, although almost unknown to the outside world, has been a very important and dangerous factor affecting relations between the newly created States.

Title to the Duchy of Teschen is involved in the controversy. This duchy was formerly a part of the crownlands of Austrian Silesia and has a population of less than 500,000. It is about the size of Rhode Island. It is valuable because the coal it produces is the only coal within the boundaries of either Poland or Czechoslovakia which will coke, and it is regarded as indispensable to the manufacturing interests of each State.

WARSAW, Jan. 31, by Wireless via Vienna, (Associated Press.)—The Czechoslovaks are bitterly denounced here because of recent events in the Duchy of Teschen. Lieutenant Reginald Foster of the American Army, representing the Peace Commission, is reported to have asked Dr. T. G. Masaryk, President of Czechoslovakia, if the Allies had given permission for the Czechs to attack the Poles. Dr. Masaryk is said to have replied in the negative, but is reported to have added that the territory was necessary for the development of Czechoslovakia. It is rumored that the Czechoslovaks planned to get control of Polish oil lands in Central Galicia, and it is alleged that they have already made a bargain with this object in view with the Ruthenians.

DEFENDS Y. M. C. A.

Dr. Stires of St. Thomas's Wonders Why Salvation Army Did Not Defend It.

The failure of the Salvation Army to go to the defense of the Y. M. C. A. in connection with the charge against it, was criticised last night by Dr. Ernest M. Stires, rector of St. Thomas's Church. Dr. Stires, recently returned from Y. M. C. A. work, discussed the organization's overseas work at the Presbyterian Union in the Hotel Savoy.

"There are some people in the community," he said, "who feel that the Y. M. C. A. is the goat. When the great drive was on last Fall to raise the $100,000,000 funds I told my parishioners at St. Thomas's to put it all in one hat. My personal opinion, gained from my experiences and my observation of the way the money was spent overseas, was that I would give every cent to the Y. M. C. A. Don't let this be construed as a reflection upon any of the other agencies. It is intended only as an unqualified indorsement of the Y. M. C. A. I want to say that 90 per cent. of the criticism if traced down would disappear. Most of the other criticism would disappear when you considered the source of it."

Dr. Stires told of the many achievements of individual Y. M. C. A. workers and of the tremendous task the association had undertaken. He said he ran many of these rumors down and expressed surprise that the Salvation Army "when the Y. M. C. A. was being slandered did not come right out and say so."

MESSIMY JUSTIFIES BRIEY WITHDRAWAL

Ex-Minister Confirms Viviani's Statement of Sacrifice Made for Peace.

JOFFRE IS NONCOMMITTAL

Says He Discharged His Duties in All Circumstances, as His Report Will Show.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—General Adolphe Messimy, the French Minister of War in 1914, in an article in the Matin today concerning the declarations made in the Chamber of Deputies on Friday by ex-Premier Viviani, says that the Government on July 30, 1914, was obliged to solve the problem of protecting the frontiers while avoiding all possibility of aggression, so as to give proof of the love of France for peace and to throw the blame for hostilities on Germany. It was only for this reason, and not to obey the injunction of the Socialists, that the Government decided to establish a safety zone of ten kilometers in order to keep French patrols from entering German territory, and thus give Germany no excuse for aggression.

General Messimy says he took full responsibility for the order to withdraw. Marshal Joffre, he adds, was convinced of the diplomatic importance of the measure, and raised no objection to it. The results, he concludes, were as expected, and the German Government was forced to send out false reports to neutralize the effect on German opinion.

"That is all politics, and I am not a politician," Marshal Joffre said to newspaper men who sought his views on the Viviani statement. The Matin calls the discussion concerning the withdrawal, which affected the iron basin of Briey, the "Briey enigma."

Marshal Joffre said that he had discharged his duties fully in all circumstances, and that he was drawing up a plain historical statement of what had been done under his direction, which would contain the truth as established by documents.

General Lanrezac, who commanded the French Fifth Army at the outbreak of the war, told the Petit Journal that the evacuation of the Briey region had never been decided upon in advance, and that want of material means alone prevented the French Staff from making the basin untenable for the Germans.

General Nivelle, who at one time was in command at Verdun, the nearest point held by the French to Briey, informed the Matin that when he was at Verdun in [illegible] the French were twenty-five miles from Briey, which was out of range of the French guns. A few airplane raids were made on Briey, but they had little important result. At that time, the General added, the Germans were working the metallurgical plants in that region.

FOR A FEW GREAT RAIL CONCERNS

OPPOSES PUBLIC OWNERSHIP

Favors Government Supervision of Intensive Private Control, with Guaranteed Returns.

URGES 5-YEAR EXTENSION

Deems Longer Period of Federal Administration Essential to Proper Consideration.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Opposition to Government ownership of railroads, and advocacy, instead, of Government supervision of private ownership limited to "comparatively few railroad companies," was voiced today by Director General Hines of the Railroad Administration before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee. Mr. Hines, who already had said his views followed those of his predecessor, Mr. McAdoo, insisted that a five-year extension of the present Federal control of the railroads was necessary.

The new Director General appeared with a long statement, of which he read about one-third today. He will continue on the stand tomorrow. It is expected that the four railway brotherhoods will present their views on the future of the railroads after Mr. Hines has completed his testimony.

"From every standpoint," said Mr. Hines to the committee, "I believe it is in the public interest that there should be an extension of control to Jan. 1, 1924. This will insure public service in the meantime under the best conditions of public control, instead of under the worst conditions of private control.

"It will give opportunity for adoption of a permanent solution under conditions most favorable to perfectly fair consideration of every proposal, instead of forcing a solution in a period when the advocates of a greater social control are at a temporary disadvantage. It will make it practicable to have the results of normal operations under Government control, which, in my opinion, will not be practicable prior to March, 1921, when the results of the year 1920, as well as the results of the year 1919, will be available.

"It will relieve labor of the highly unfair inferences that are now drawn from the costs of railroad operation under Government control. It will give an opportunity to give a fair test to the proper co-ordination of railroads and inland waterways. It will not prejudice any legitimate interest in any way. Meantime, it will leave the President in a position where he can perform his primary executive function involved, that of rendering the transportation service, under favorable conditions, rather than under conditions of the most unfavorable and difficult character.

Capitalized at Real Value.

"It may be said that my observations necessarily lead to Government ownership and operation. I do not think so. I believe all the objects which I think must be achieved to obtain a permanent solution can be accomplished through the creation of a comparatively few railroad companies which will have capitalization equal only to the real value of the property, and which will have a moderate guaranteed return with the right to participate moderately in any additional profits.

"My prediction is that the more this subject is discussed the more apparent it will become that the advantages of the proposed plan of private management through the multiplicity of old railroad corporations is wholly illusory and ought not to be adopted, and that the subject must be dealt with in the radical and fundamental way which I have pointed out.

"I am forced to the conclusion either that there will be no comprehensive legislation in the next two years or that any legislation adopted will be as much like the present system as to offer no hope for a permanent solution. If, therefore, my opinion is asked as to the propriety of retaining the railroads under Federal control to facilitate a satisfactory, permanent solution, my reply is that from that standpoint we had better terminate the control and go back promptly to the old system or we should extend the control long enough to admit of an adequate opportunity to adopt a radical and new system which will really bring about a permanent solution.

"I do not personally believe in Government ownership. I believe there can be a form of radically reconstructed private ownership with such close Government supervision, including Government representation on the boards of directors, as will give the public and labor all the benefits of Government ownership and at the same time will preserve the benefits of private and self-interested initiative and will avoid the political difficulties which perhaps are inseparable from Government ownership.

"I do not believe the plans now before the committee which contemplate turning the railroads back to management by the numerous railroad corporations of the past will meet the fundamental difficulties, and I believe the more thoroughly the subject is explored the more this will be appreciated, and that it will develop by degrees that a far more radical treatment will be needed and that this treatment cannot be accorded in the crowded period of the next two years.

Speaks Only for Himself.

"On account of my responsibility as Director General, I believe it will be excusable in me to lay before you my personal views as to the permanent solution of the railroad problem. I must emphasize that I speak only for myself. I am not authorized to speak for the President, and, indeed, he has never expressed any view on the subject to me. He has shown in his address to Congress that he has reached no conclusions on the subject of a permanent solution. I do not conceive it to be my function to attempt to bring about one solution rather than another, but I feel that convictions which are the result of long years of contact with the subject may be of some value as emphasizing some of the leading requirements which I believe must be fairly faced and met before we can reach a solution which will be reasonably satisfactory to the American public.

"These conclusions on my part constitute a process of evolution. I started out believing that practically no public regulation was necessary. I came to appreciate the necessity and value of the strictest public regulation. For a long time I believed that the great number of railroad companies in this country, despite their differences in circumstances and ability, could work out their own salvation and render an adequate public service. I have been driven, however, by my contact with the subject to the conviction that this is not the case and that there must be a radical reconstruction of the whole scheme of private ownership and management if we are to avoid Government ownership."

Mr. Hines declared the methods adopted by the Railroad Administration for war purposes were entirely "open to reconstruction" for peace purposes.

"I wish to remove," he said, "if possible, any thought that my views on the duration of Federal control involve either directly or indirectly, nearly or remotely, the notion that Congress can or ought to be influenced to order an extension of Federal control for fear that unless the extension shall be granted the railroads will be relinquished without due regard to the public interest. I view the question absolutely from the standpoint of the public interest. I believe I will be able to show that unless a reasonable extension shall be granted it will be contrary to the public interest to hold the railroads for the full twenty-one months. But I concede fully and without qualification that the procedure is to be tested solely by the public interest, and it seems to me unthinkable that any suggestion of early relinquishment should be put forward as a leverage for forcing an extension."

Difficulties of Shorter Period.

"Grave difficulties" would interfere with operation during the twenty-one months' period, he said, among these being a slackening of support from officers and employes, and also an uncertainty among their forces. In addition, he said, there would, as is usual after wars, "come the normal reaction against an unusual form of governmental control," with consequent criticisms. Another "difficulty," Mr. Hines said, would be that every advocate of "any form of solution" would present it during the twenty-one months' period, and thus bring about a disturbing psychological situation.

"The country will be entering within the next twelve months," said Mr. Hines, "upon a Presidential campaign which will culminate at the election in November, 1920. Governmental operation of the railroads will be a target for a great deal of political discussion bearing upon the Presidential election. I do not see how it will be possible, despite the firm purpose of the Railroad Administration, to afford an absolutely non-partisan administration of the railroads, to avoid the Railroad Administration becoming the subject of a great deal of political discussion and criticism for the purely partisan purposes of the campaign. I do not complain of this condition. It is a part of the country's political methods which in the long run makes for the protection of the rights of the people. But nevertheless it is a condition which cannot be ignored, and it is a condition which promises to make for unsatisfactory railroad service under the present form of Government control rather than for satisfactory service."

Mr. Hines construed the Federal control act to mean that the existing rate structure should continue until "changed by orderly procedure," and that the Interstate Commerce Commission would protect the roads in this respect.

"It seems to me the railroad companies have unnecessarily taken counsel of their fears in this matter and have built up a state of alarm which is wholly without justification," said Mr. Hines.

Share of Profits for Labor.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3, (Associated Press.)—Exaggerated complaints against Government railroad operation growing out of a natural reaction from wartime patriotic tension is a "psychological" factor which makes it difficult at this time to develop a permanent solution of the railroad problem, Director General Hines said today in testifying before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee. This is one important reason, Mr. Hines said, why Government operation either should be extended five years and time given for deliberate consideration, or the roads returned back to private management before the present twenty-one months' period expires.

"If any plan of private management is to be successful," he said, "it ought to provide for the participation of the Government and perhaps of labor in the profits in excess of some comparatively moderate return."

was signed there were 4,865 planes ready in this country, and 6,472 in France, a total of 11,337.

"The major part of those in France were of foreign manufacture," he continued, "but we were producing planes more rapidly than the ships could cross the seas and the problem was to get the planes to the front, a problem of ocean transportation and not of manufacture. Our 160 employes had grown to 18,688 officers and 137,760 men, and besides that we had grounds and training schools filled with cadets.

"France told us that if we sent 4,500 airplaes from America that would insure the Allies supremacy of the air. We did in the first year more than the French succeeded in doing under the pressure of war in three years. Nothing was more superb in American business history than that American business men accepted the invitation of France.

"During our participation in the war our men actually but unofficially brought down 491 German planes. According to the severe rules of the service, however, only 350 of these were counted. The Germans got 271 of our planes. So you see we pretty nearly got two for one. We brought down fifty-seven of their balloons and they got forty-five of ours."

Secretary Baker declared that if the armistice had not been signed the German armies would have been captured and seconded the words of Major Gen. Charles T. Menoher, who had declared, prior to the address of the Secretary, that the victory of the Allies was a military victory and was not due to the internal condition of Germany.

Praises American Army.

General Menoher, who formerly commanded the Rainbow Division during the period of active warfare, was applauded warmly when he declared that it was only the surrender of Germany that saved its armies from capture, for he asserted that in the last drive there was absolutely no doubt but that the American troops would push on to the Rhine "and nothing on earth could stop us."

The Rev. Henry van Dyke, D. D., ex-United States Minister to Holland, paid a tribute to President Wilson, and then alluded to Captain Rickenbacker as the "Ace of Hearts" and presented to him a pair of wings made of platinum which were set with diamonds and sapphires, and were for the aviator's mother, he said.

After acknowledging the present, Captain Rickenbacker, who was received with enthusiastic cheering, told incidents of his experiences at the front. After fourteen victories over the German lines, he said, he had an ambition to bring down a boche flyer over the French lines.

"One night," the Captain continued, "I saw an enemy machine well over the lines and went up after him alone. I managed to wound the observer in the German machine and then manoeuvred to get at the rear, but I had to stop to clean my guns. While I was doing this Captain Arthur Chambers, who usually accompanied me, saw what had happened and flew up to assist me, so that it was fifty-fifty on the boche.

"Many times when I have felt disgusted with life in the aero squads I have gone out into the front-line trenches and sat with the chaps who lived in six to ten inches of water and suffered without a murmur more discomforts than the average American ever dreams of. I realized that I must be a slacker to complain at my lot. In my opinion every man who went through the trench life in France should have some decoration. The public should thank them and their families who let them go to serve their country."

The following message was read from General Pershing:

> Headquarters American Expeditionary Forces.
>
> The history of the American air service is as remarkable for its sound and successful development of aviation tactics as for its spirit of unselfish devotion and daredevil gallantry which is unsurpassed by anything the great war has produced. Captain Rickenbacker has written some of its brightest pages and on behalf of the American Expeditionary Forces I am proud to bear witness to our admiration for the air service and for him.
>
> PERSHING.

William Howard Taft sent this message: "As a private citizen, I tender my sincere congratulations on the opportunity you have had greatly to serve your country, and in the glorious way in which you have improved that opportunity and earned the gratitude of all."

The mother of the guest of honor, Mrs. Elizabeth Rickenbacker, was accorded an ovation when she was discovered in one of the boxes with her daughter, Emma, and a friend, Mrs. W. A. Pfeiffer.

AUTO SHOW DRAWS ARMY AND NAVY MEN

RECORD MADE AT OPENING

15,000 Persons Entered Garden During First Hour—Dealers Will Be Guests Today.

Army and Navy Day at the automobile show attracted several hundred officers, soldiers, and sailors yesterday to Madison Square Garden and the 69th Regiment Armory. In view of the special military and naval features it was natural that particular interest should be centered in the so-called General Pershing car, the big dull gray serviceable-looking machine which is the chief feature in the Locomobile exhibit in the Garden. It is known as the Overseas model, and is an exact duplicate of the original service car shipped abroad for General Pershing several months ago. Sixteen cars of a similar type are now in use by General Pershing and his staff.

The main point of difference in this military car which distinguishes it from other touring and closed types are the double disk wheels on the rear, each fitted with heavy double tires. One reason for this is that owing to the hard usage of the military cars, if one of the dual tires is damaged, the other one can carry the load without stopping to fit a new one on. An extra double wheel is carried in the rear and two single wheels on the front mud guards. The wind shield is tilted back at an angle so as to allow for minimum wind pressure and high speed. One wealthy motorist was so impressed with the car's novel features that he gave an order for one yesterday, double rear wheels and everything.

Both buildings were well crowded in the afternoon and evening and C. H. Larson, Chairman of the Dealers' Show Committee, made the announcement that during the first hour of the Saturday night opening more than 15,000 persons entered the Garden, a new high record on the first night for a New York automobile show. Another sign that pleases the dealers and which indicates that the present year will witness an unusual demand for motor cars was the large volume of early buying.

Coupe for a Bride.

No show may be called perfect without a variety of bridal coupes, and there are several of this type that never fail to arouse the interest of women visitors. The Maxwell shows a wonderful creation finished in white with nickel-plated trimmings and the interior upholstered in dainty cretonne. The tendency to enlarge the coupe capacity is noticeable in some makes, the Dodge Brothers showing a new type equipped for three, the additional room being obtained by advancing the driver's seat a few inches.

The Oakland open-frame chassise, with its mirror attachment beneath the running six-cylinder motor, is always surrounded by a curious group, the mirror, it being explained, having a special interest for the women motorists. Among the fully equipped Oakland cars are a sporty yellow roadster, a sedan with wire wheels and a coupe finished in rich maroon.

Two of the genuinely palatial cars in the Garden are the Owen-Magnetics, one being a richly finished dark blue limousine-sedan and the other a seven-passenger light blue touring car. Added interest in the value of the electric transmission, which is the chief feature of this make, is given in a recent letter received by E. S. Partridge, President of the New York Owen-Magnetic Company, from his son, Corporal George S. Partridge, now in France, and who saw active service in the 330th Battalion Tank Corps.

One-Finger Emergency Brake.

One of the distinctive cars in the Armory is the Lexington five-passenger touring car, with its light blue body and cream-colored finish for the lower portion, giving a very stylish effect. The maroon-colored Sedan and other closed models are richly designed with mahogany interior fittings.

One of the most valuable features is what is called the "one-finger emergency" brake, constructed with an eight-inch drum, mounted upon the front universal joint directly behind the transmission case, and controlled by a hand lever at the driver's right. It does away with the double-brake rods and linkage necessary under the old method which applied the braking power to both rear wheels, and eliminates the uneven pull often caused by an improperly adjusted rod.

The high-hood straight-line type continues to be favored by the body builders, and due to the employment of a shorter wheelbase, the interior of the body has been more carefully designed than formerly. The super-elongated tonneau with the close front compartment is disappearing and a better balance is being struck between the driver's space and the passengers' compartment. Slanting windshields are growing in popularity. The advantage is a shortening of the top by several inches while giving better vision to the driver and it reduces the head-on wind resistance.

Today will be Dealers' Day and several hundred invitations have been extended to the visiting members of the National Automobile Dealers' Association.

IMMIGRATION BAN HEARING.

Rules Committee Will Today Consider Priority for Burnett Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Opponents of the plan to prohibit general immigration for four years, as provided in the Burnett bill, are scheduled to appear here tomorrow, when the Rules Committee will consider a request to fix a special day for the consideration of the bill by the House.

Representative J. L. Burnett of Alabama will urge that the committee fix such a day for some time next week, while Representatives Siegel and Sabath, who are against the bill, will appear in opposition to giving the bill a priority place, when the House has before it so much important legislation that should be enacted before March 4. Senator Penrose, who is also opposed to the measure, says there is little likelihood of the Senate considering the measure this session.

O'LEARY ARTICLES IN COURT

The trial of Jeremiah A. O'Leary and others for violation of the espionage law was continued yesterday before Federal Judge A. N. Hand, and the day was spent in reading articles and editorials from Bull, O'Leary's magazine. In one issue O'Leary could not see any hope for the allied cause because of the wonderful military machine of the Germans and the German spirit. There was plenty of criticism of President Wilson and of the war program, at a time when the American Expeditionary Forces were already beginning to land in France.

One article criticised the Liberty Loan drives and stated that they had been forced by various methods which are not employed by freemen. Food conservation was attacked on the ground that it was to feed the Allies while Americans at home went hungry. Many editorials expressing the deepest dislike and distrust of England were read into the record. The trial will be continued this morning.

SWIFT MEMORANDA USED AGAINST HIM

"SHOWS US UP ROTTEN"

So "L. F. S." Wrote of Charge That Food Administration Man Was a Dummy of Swift & Co.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Memoranda found among the papers of Louis F. Swift, the Chicago packer, after his examination last Saturday before the Senate Agricultural Committee, were produced today by Francis J. Heney, before the committee, to show that Mr. Swift had expressed regret that evidence touching upon the alleged relations of W. F. Priebe, of the Food Administration, with the packers had become public. Mr. Priebe is a dollar-a-year man, and was accused by Mr. Heney of having been the head of a dummy poultry firm actually owned by Swift & Co.

Mr. Heney had alleged that Mr. Priebe used his position with the Food Administration, in which he was head of the poultry division, to aid the packers in disposing of storage fowls. The investigator charged that Mr. Priebe had stopped the sale of live fowls to bring this about.

Before the committee today, Mr. Heney produced a pamphlet embracing evidence before the Agricultural Committee which, he said, had inadvertently been put with his own papers when the committee adjourned on Saturday. The pamphlet belonged to Mr. Swift, he said, and inside of it Mr. Heney found a card bearing the name of L. A. Carton, Treasurer of Swift & Co. On the card were two memoranda, one evidently written by Mr. Carton and the other by Mr. Swift. One read:

"L. F. S.—It is embarrassing—the whole poultry business is. Whether it would be less so by changing the name to Swift & Co. is matter I have mentioned to you and the others and is without conclusion. L. A. C."

The other memorandum, written across that signed "L. A. C." read:

"Priebe matter shows us up rotten—I am ashamed it got this way and sorry we cannot change over to Swift & Co., or sell out. Think we must. L. F. S."

Senator Page disputed the propriety of the memoranda being put in the records, saying they were "strictly private and confidential."

"They came into Mr. Heney's hands through a mistake, and to put them into the record is entirely unjustifiable," insisted Mr. Page.

"The Federal Trade Commission has the power to go into the packers' files," said Mr. Heney. "This is legitimate evidence."

"I insist that they were private memoranda, and that we have no justification to use them," replied Mr. Page.

"Then if a burglar leaves his tools, you wouldn't be justified in using them to convict him?" suggested Mr. Heney.

"This doesn't meet my sense of propriety," replied Mr. Page. "I think it is a piece of dishonesty to use them and wouldn't think of doing such a thing."

"I assume full responsibility," retorted Mr. Heney.

Senator Gore, Chairman of the Committee, remarked that they touched upon a public matter solely and could hardly be regarded in a confidential light. The committee voted to allow them to become a part of the record.

L. D. Weld, counsel for Mr. Swift, after looking at the memoranda, said they "did not prove anything," and that he regarded them as "unimportant."

It was recalled that after Mr. Heney had alleged, some time ago, that Mr. Priebe was the head of a dummy concern that was in reality owned by Louis Swift & Co., Mr. Hoover and Mr. Swift had denied it. At that time Mr. Heney also charged that Mr. Priebe had warned banks not to extend large credits to independent poultry men, so that they might not be able to move poultry supplies to the disadvantage of the five big packing firms.

STRIKE TIES UP TUBES IN LONDON

Even at Belfast there are signs of returning sanity, and strikers' womenfolk are said to be getting indignant with the general anarchy.

It is also noticeable that newspapers of all shades of opinion are insisting more strongly every day that the disturbances are not the work of legitimate trade unionists, but of agitators of foreign birth or extraction and are asking why they should be permitted to stir up trouble in a country that has shown them hospitality. Thus W. A. Appleton, a noted trade union leader, in an article in The Evening Standard against Government intervention and the men's extreme demands, says:

"The men behind the present disturbances are the same men who formed the 'Friends of Germany' Party and who tried their hardest to prevent guns and munitions reaching Flanders at the time the soldier were enduring indescribable misery and daily facing death. While he was saving the Empire on a shilling a day some of these strikers were jeopardizing the Empire on £1 a day."

Cabinet Against Intervention.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The British Cabinet held a session today to discuss the labor situation. It is said, however, that the Government is still against any intervention.

The Parliamentary Committee of the Trades Union Congress decided to summon a special meeting to consider the whole question of industrial unrest.

The Board of Trade issued a statement today on the tube strike, in which it said that when the eight-hour day was granted the union conferred with the Government and agreed that it meant an eight-hour working day. If time for meals were taken out, the statement added, it would mean that the tube men would work seven or seven and one-half hours, and on other railways as low as six and one-half hours in some cases.

The buses and the street cars were still running today, but for some time these means of conveyance have been unable to cope with the ordinary traffic because of the shortage of buses and cars and of men to operate them. The result was that thousands of people today had to make their way as they best could over the slippery sidewalks to their places of work.

The workmen of Glasgow who remain loyal to their unions, which have not sanctioned the strikes there, were returning gradually to work this morning, according to The Evening Standard, as a result of a promise by the authorities to give them complete protection. Many works which had been forced to close down in consequence of a lack of electric power were provided with sufficient current to resume operations.

At Belfast the second week of the strike begins, according to reports received here, with increased uneasiness, although there are no signs of any disposition on the part of the men to resort to further violence.

The Steck
SMALL GRAND PIANO

THE STECK is one of the three great American pianos, the universal demand for which has been so great as to make it necessary to manufacture them both in America and Europe. The other two are the Steinway and the Weber. The international fame of the Steck has been won through sheer merit. The result of the painstaking effort of George Steck, musician and master craftsman, the instrument has made and maintained a reputation that is second to none in piano history.

The Steck possesses a wonderful tone—pure, liquid and exquisitely rounded and a delightfully flexible, responsive action. These features, together with its unexcelled durability, combine to make the Steck without question the greatest piano at its price, obtainable today.

The instrument illustrated is but five feet in length, yet powerful and resonant in tone. A veritable "Grand Piano" in every sense of the word.

The Steck Piano is obtainable in three styles. The Steck Upright, at $550. The Steck Small Grand, at $800. The Steck Louis XV Grand, at $950. Convenient Monthly Payments if Desired.

JONAS SUES HEARST PAPER FOR LIBEL

Bases Action on Article Dealing with Meeting at Academy of Music.

IS OUT AS CHAIRMAN

President Riegelmann Accepts His Resignation from Celebration Committee.

Those identified with the interests of W. R. Hearst won yesterday what they considered to be a victory in the row over the control of the policies of the Brooklyn Victory Celebration Committee when Borough President Edward Riegelmann accepted the resignation of Nathan S. Jonas, a banker, as Chairman of the Executive Committee, and appointed Congressman John J. Delaney in his place. Mr. Riegelmann took this action notwithstanding the fact that the committee, at a meeting on Friday, gave Mr. Jonas a vote of confidence. It is expected that many of the members will follow Mr. Jonas out of the committee. Mr. Jonas announced that he had begun a libel action against the publishers of The New York Evening Journal, based on an editorial article which appeared in that newspaper on Friday.

The article in question was entitled "Throw Those Irish Out." It dealt with alleged happenings at the mass meeting held under the auspices of the committee at the Brooklyn Academy of Music on Wednesday evening last when Commissioner of Records Edmund O'Connor, a Hearst political leader in Brooklyn, and John E. Sullivan were ejected from the auditorium. The controversy which has upset the committee started over the appearance of James M. Beck as the chief speaker at the academy meeting. O'Connor and Sullivan were present to protest against Mr. Beck speaking. When they attempted to assert themselves they were told to keep quiet, and were finally escorted to the lobby of the house.

"The article headed, 'Throw Those Irish Out,' which appeared in last Friday's Evening Journal," said Mr. Jonas yesterday, "was so entirely false and so absolutely malicious in its diatribe against me, that I have already commenced a suit for libel. I seek no personal gain from this suit, but I want this man to know that he cannot with impunity spread lies broadcast about me and about the most public spirited and most honored men in Brooklyn. Whatever damages may be awarded, I shall take great pleasure in donating to the fund for a Brooklyn permanent memorial, dedicated to our soldiers, sailors, and marines."

Mr. Jonas challenged Mayor Hylan to establish the truth of a statement attributed to the Mayor and published on Sunday that Mr. Jonas had offered to arranges a Hylan mass meeting when Mr. Hylan was running for Mayor, but that the offer had been declined.

"As I have had no quarrel with the Mayor," said Mr. Jonas, "I want to be quite sure that he was correctly quoted before I answer him. Perhaps he will confirm the interview over his signature, stating just when and by whom this offer to hold a meeting for him before the last election, was made in my behalf. Then I shall be pleased to make my response in writing. Or, if the reporters who wrote the story will make affidavits as to its correctness, I shall be glad to present my compliments to his honor as well as to his master and his crew."

Mr. Jonas has placed the libel action in the hands of Jonas & Newburger of 115 Broadway, Manhattan. At the offices of that firm yesterday afternoon it was said that the summons in the action had been served, but that the complaint had not as yet been drawn. It had not been decided what sum Mr. Jonas would ask in damages.

In accepting the resignation of Mr. Jonas, which was offered at the meeting of the committee on Friday, Borough President Riegelmann said that he did so, believing that it would put an end to the controversy.

Congressman Delaney is a Democrat, and a friend of County Leader John H. McCooey. He is Exalted Ruler of the Brooklyn Lodge of Elks.

It was at the Elks Club that soldiers were entertained after the meeting in the Academy of Music last Wednesday night and told of the virtues of Mr. Hearst. Buses were on hand to take them to the club as they left the meeting hall.

Bill for State Welcome to Fighters.

Special to The New York Times.

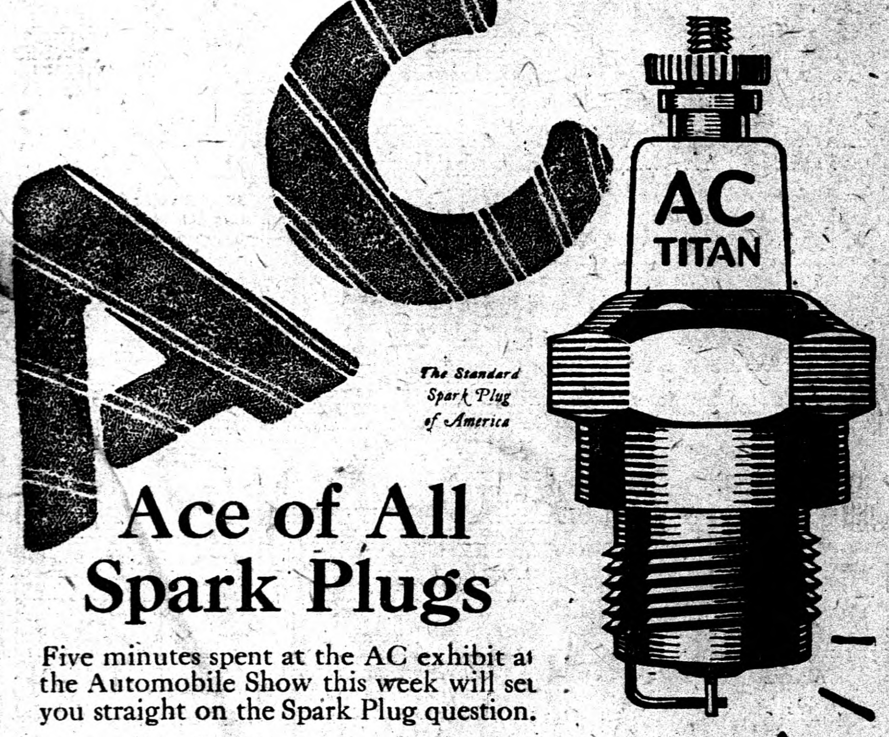
ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 3.—Responding to a demand from returning officers and men, Assemblyman Joseph Steinberg of New York tonight introduced a concurrent resolution providing for the appointment by the State of a committee to welcome the repatriated fighters when they land in New York City. Mr. Steinberg explained that the controversy over the appointment of William R. Hearst on the welcoming committee named by Mayor Hylan was in part responsible for its introduction.

Under the Steinberg resolution the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, President pro tem. of the Senate, and Speaker of the Assembly would be members of the committee, with power to add to its membership "desirable, representative citizens."

HYLAN ASSAILS BULLOCK.

Says He Seeks to Interfere with Proper Administration of City.

In a letter to all his department heads Mayor Hylan declared yesterday that William Bullock, director of the Good Government League, was seeking to interfere with the proper conduct of the city administration. The Mayor declared that Bullock had requested that he be appointed Commissioner of Accounts, and because he had refused to appoint him Mr. Bullock was now attacking him.



The Standard Spark Plug of America

Ace of All Spark Plugs

Five minutes spent at the AC exhibit at the Automobile Show this week will set you straight on the Spark Plug question.

Here you will see cross sections of two AC Spark Plugs.

One is an AC Aircraft Plug, used on Liberty and Hispano-Suiza airplane motors during the war. The other is the AC Titan Plug which has for years been standard equipment on most makes of motor cars built in this country.

Basically, the plugs are the same.

Now, the army engineers selected AC Plugs for aircraft service only after the most exacting tests in which every spark plug made had the opportunity to qualify. It led all others in the high compression test, conducted by aircraft experts.

Most automotive engineers reached the same conclusion years ago. They have been equipping their cars with AC Plugs ever since.

Can you imagine more conclusive proof of AC superiority?

AC Plugs will be found on most of the cars at the show.

They should be found on your car also.

PALISADES SUICIDE LAID TO REST HERE

RED CROSS AT FUNERAL

Brother Attributes Her Action to Nervous Breakdown, Caused by Overwork.

The funeral of Miss Azeele Packwood, the Red Cross automobile driver, who committed suicide on the Palisades near Englewood, N. J., was held yesterday from the Trinity Episcopal Church at 155th Street and Broadway.

The Episcopalian service was read by the Rev. M. H. Gates. In addition to the members of the family, twenty-five members of the Motor Corps of America, of which Miss Packwood had been a member, attended the service. The representatives of the family were George H. Packwood, Jr., of St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. S. M. Udaele of Buffalo, N. J., a sister, and her husband, who is an officer of the Engineering Corps of the United States Army. One of the floral pieces was a large wreath bearing a Red Cross. The interment took place in the Trinity Cemetery at 155th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, where the Packwod family has a vault. After the funeral, Mr. Packwood made the following statement:

"The vault in which my sister was buried today has been in possession of the Packwood family. My father served as an Acting Brigadier General in the Northern Army during the civil war, and is at present a member of the Loyal Legion of the 7th Regiment.

"My sister's body was identified by me yesterday at Englewood. Due to overwork in the Red Cross Motor Corps, my sister suffered a nervous breakdown in October, for which she was under the care of a physician for some time, and I can attribute her suicide to no other cause. She worked very hard in the Motor Corps, frequently from 5:30 o'clock in the morning until late at night. On Nov. 1 she transferred her property, consisting of real estate in Florida, stock and other personal property to my father, and stated that she intended to go to France as a nurse, which we thought she had done.

"My sister was of independent means, and I know of no marriage or affair which would account for her taking her own life."

KILLED BY EXPLOSION AT COLGATE WORKS

BUILDING IS WRECKED

Dr. George Pierce, Who Was Directing the Chemical Processes, One of the Victims.

An explosion in the laboratory of Colgate & Co., 72 and 74 Grand Street, Jersey City, yesterday wrecked the building and caused the death of two men and the injury of seven others.

The Dead.

PIERCE, Dr. GEORGE, Godfrey Road, Upper Montclair.
SWITZER, WALTER, 44 years old, 948 Hill Street, North Bergen.

The Injured.

COTTRELLO, GUARDO, 372 First Street, Jersey City, burns and shock.
EGAN, WILLIAM, 244 Montgomery Street, Jersey City, burns, bruises, and shock.
GORGAS, KONSTANTINE, 233 Grand Street, shock and burns.
GOLDERT, ROBERT, 120 Danforth Av., perhaps fatally burned.
HAFELE, WILLIAM, 23 Bergen Avenue, shock and burns.
McGEE, Lieutenant EDWARD, Engine Co. 3, overcome by smoke.
SUTTON, WILLIAM, Engine 2, burned in a second explosion.

In a laboratory on the first floor of the building Dr. Pierce, a chemist, was working with chemicals used in the manufacture of toilet preparations. The only account of what happened was contained in a statement made by William Egan, his assistant, later, in St. Francis' Hospital. A solution containing ether was in a retort. Egan said that he noticed an unusually heavy smell of ether in the air and walked to a window and threw it up. He had his hands still upraised when the explosion came. Next he found himself on top of the gate of St. Joseph's Home, in the rear of the laboratory, and wedged in the iron work.

Egan said he saw the body of Dr. Pierce lying in the yard. The clothing of the chemist was on fire, but Egan was unable to go to his help. The doctor was rescued and was taken to St. Francis Hospital, where he died. Following the explosion, the building burst into flames. Those who were uninjured and those who were slightly injured got out in safety, and with the coming of the firemen the more seriously hurt were carried out.

In the main factory building, connected with the laboratory by a covered passage way, several thousand persons were at work. Colonel Austen Colgate, President of the Company, had the fire drill call sounded, and the employes left the building without undue excitement.

The main explosion occurred at about 10 o'clock. Half an hour later when the firemen were at work there was a second minor explosion that injured several firemen.

Then Came France—and Her Choice, Too, Was Marmon

THE triumphant rise of Marmon engineering to its present place of dominance has, as we predicted a year ago, gained the recognition overseas that America long has given it. But this international favor has come in a manner more impressive and from councils more qualified to judge than we foresaw or even dreamed of.

It was in the hour of peril, when French motor car factories were engaged in war work, that France, the birthplace of the modern motor car, turned to America for help to supply her great army staff with means of reliable transportation.

France knew what she wanted—roadability with light weight, speed with endurance, ease of riding, and long range of fuel and tires.

We consider it the highest endorsement that in this crucial time the French governmental motor car experts chose the Marmon 34 as the American product suited to their needs.

Likewise Marmon owners may well consider this a tribute to their judgment. For their choice has received the most substantial form of confirmation from the fountain head of motor car learning.

The policy behind the Marmon stabilizes the buyer's investment now, just as it has in the past.

With no reduction in the cost of labor or materials, no over-supply of Marmon cars, no inflated price, no substitution of inferior parts or workmanship—there has been no shrinkage in the value, and no reduction in the price.

Nor can the casual observer distinguish any difference in the Marmon design of 1916 and the Marmon of 1919.

Scientific Construction and Advanced Engineering in the beginning have stabilized the Marmon design as well as the Marmon value.

PARKHURST DENIES DEBT.

Clergyman Says $20,000 Note Was Without Consideration.

The Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst has been sued in the Supreme Court on a note for $20,000 made by the American Educational Alliance, which he indorsed. The plaintiff is Robert H. Kintner, present holder of the note, who sued the American Educational Alliance, Charles S. and Bessie E. Huntley, and John T. Prout, who also indorsed the note.

The answer of Dr. Parkhurst, filed yesterday, says that the American Educational Alliance, of which Charles S. Huntley was President, was founded in 1909 to publish and deal in books, and under its by-laws was forbidden to issue its promissory notes without consideration. Dr. Parkhurst alleges that the paper he signed, which is described in the complaint as a note, was indorsed by him at the request of Huntley for the accommodation of the corporation, with the understanding that it was to be delivered to the defendant, Prout, as consideration for assigning contracts for subscription books to the American Educational Alliance. Dr. Parkhurst declared that the note was given without consideration because Prout did not, on Sept. 17, 1917, or at any other time, assign to the corporation the contracts for the purchase of books.

We couldn't make the Maxwell any better; so we made it better looking

An artist never frames his masterpiece until he finishes it.

So the new Maxwell, a completed work, is now robed in new garments.

They do not make it run any better. They make it look better.

Mr Whistler, himself, were he here today and saw a new Maxwell pass on the street, would probably give it a second look.

A little touch here, the straightening of a line there, the bringing of a fender a little closer to the wheel, a circassian walnut dash before you as you sit at the wheel, the strength lent by putting the gas tank in the rear, the multiplication of bonnet vents, the adding of three more painting coats, the increased thickness of the seat cushions—these, though but a few of the many changes made,—show the tendency of the new beauty.

It is in the sum of many little things that the full story is told.

The car was first checked off in squares, as a doctor sometimes marks off a man's chest and back to test every square inch of the lungs.

And there was an improvement made in nearly every square.

When the task was done it looked like a different Maxwell.

But it wasn't.

It was the same, sound, go-get-there chassis built to stand the gaff of rough and ready driving, built to endure, to "stay put", to stand all the erratic moods of the careless driver.

It was a five year drive to reach this present peak of Maxwell efficiency. But the engineers, and the manufacturing men knew that building a chassis without fundamental change in design year after year would ultimately tell in results. For every one knows that doing one thing results in doing it well.

So in five years 300,000 Maxwells have come forth, all built on the original chassis plan—each new one better than the last.

There is no self-starting automobile in the world that has such a manufacturing record.

Think what it means to a man who owns one:

He has not paid for a false overhead.
He has not paid for manufacturing mistakes.
He has not paid for experimental work.
He has not paid for the changes of mind of another man.

Today you get a better Maxwell than any of the 300,000, and a better looking Maxwell. It is a finished work, a completed task, a thing well done.

You run no risk—and when you cast your eyes on it you are tempted to feel that the price might easily be $200 more.

OPERA

By James Gibbons Huneker

Opera "Isabeau."

"Isabeau," dramatic legend in three parts, libretto by Luigi Illicu, music by Pietro Mascagni, was revived by the Chicago Opera Association last night at the Lexington Theatre with the following cast:

King Raimondo	Georges Baklanoff
Isabeau	Anna Fitziu
Ermyngarde	Myrna Sharlow
Ermyntrude	Irene Pavloska
Cornelius	Constantin Nicolay
Folco	Forrest Lamont
Giglietta	Carolina Lazzari
Faidet	Auguste Bouilliez
Roger	Desire Defrere
An Old Man	Vittorio Trevisan

Conductor—Giuseppe Sturani.

The opera was sung in Italian.

The touching tale of Isabeau and how she rode, as did the fair Lady Godiva, not even wearing her smock, once more illustrates the inclination shown by librettists to the Eternal Feminine unadorned. A pretty legend this, yet it centres on a theme that dates from Eve and the fig tree, running through the ages to that deathless lyric which ends with the motherly advice: "Hang your clothes on a hickory limb, but don't go near the water." Isabeau is but a variation. Unlike Godiva she loves her Peeping Tom, whose name in this instance is Folco. It is a pity they must die at the end. Such curiosity as his, such heroism as hers—how any actress or opera singer would hate the ordeal of publicity!—should have been amply rewarded by marriage. And has not Ouida said that after a few years it doesn't make much difference to a man whether he is married to a Venus or a Hottentot?

When Mascagni knew less about the voice and little or nothing concerning the handling of the orchestra, he composed "Cavalleria Rusticana." It was a thunderbolt that startled the musical world. It still startles. But now that he is a master of his material, literally a musical maestro, his power of invention is exhausted. He has nothing new to say. And when most eloquent it is with borrowed thunder. The score of "Isabeau" is interesting for a musician, notwithstanding its desultory, nay, fragmentary character. The old febrile glow is there; also the urge and dynamic surge, and when the smoke has cleared away after some successful firing we admire the marksmanship but look in vain for the target.

There is none. All the grandiloquent proclamations go for naught. The book casts up some opportunities for pomp and circumstance and the spinning of such themes as sex, fidelity, idealist, tortured souls, & Co. Yet we never feel the music under our skins. It is cerebral with mock-passionate trimmings. Bathos not pathos. The last scene is the best, the first the worst. The undraping is simply stupid. Adam's first wife, Lilith, on a Christmas card. Folco's scene is near-Wagnerian and was almost sung by Forrest Lamont in the same artificial style.

Miss Fitziu gave us no notion of her capabilities in "Goyescas," by the ill-fated Spaniard, Granados, when the opera was heard at the Metropolitan Opera House. She certainly sang more effectively as Isabeau. She is handsome. She has a brilliant voice, and a showy method of acting. In a word, operatic. She received plenty of applause. But the artist of the evening was Baklanoff in a rôle that would drive any King to pluck out his royal whiskers. Mr. Lamont has temperament, excellent vocal resources, and a plentiful lack of stage presence.

At times he seemed to emulate the pianissimo of Caruso—who was sitting with Scotti in a box—and then he would explode. It was very disconcerting. The orchestral playing was generally noisy, ragged, and without atmosphere. But "Isabeau" is charmless and the performance followed suit. "Lodoletta" is inconceivable without Caruso. "Isabeau" is pretty pallid stuff without Rose Raisa—who is unhappily still indisposed. As to the comparative musical worth of the two operas, we fear it is a case of "cinquanta-cinquanta."

"ROBIN HOOD" DELIGHTS.

American Singers Earn Many Encores of Songs of Early 90s.

"Robin Hood," the most revived of comic operas, had its positively last pre-prohibition production by the American Singers at the Park Theatre last night, and the well-known "Brown October Ale," the famous "Promise Me," and all the other songs of the vintage of the early nineties earned so many encores that only the second act in Sherwood Forest had ended when other theatres were turning out their crowds on Broadway.

Orville Harrold soared to supertopnotes in Robin's serenade thrice over. Anne Bussert twice sang the flute cadenza from "Lucia," which the prima donna or composer had interpolated in Maid Marian's air. Cora Tracy was called back to resing the promissory notes of the contralto classic, and so was Waterous with the "Nine Tailors," while other glees and dances were repeated till the company, not the audience, was tired.

William Danforth, for the first time as Sheriff of Nottingham, made a personal success even with many who recalled the Bostonians and Barnabee. Gladys Caldwell, Kate Condon, James Stephens, Bertram Peacock, and other sang, and John McGhie conducted. A first-night awkwardness was soon speeded up to good effect, and the singing was so good throughout as to promise a run for Mr. Hinshaw's latest revival.

"La Reine Fiammette" Sung Again.

Xavier Leroux's "La Reine Fiammette" had its second performance before a socially brilliant house at the Metropolitan last evening, when Miss Farrar, Messrs. Lazaro, Didur and Mardones sang, and Mr. Monteux conducted. The death of the composer, reported yesterday from Paris, where he had been a well-known musician for twenty years, was remarked by local operagoers as a striking coincidence at the time when his works had just come to a hearing on the New York stage. His "Le Chemineau" will be repeated by another company in town next Monday.

Helene Romanoff, Soprano, Sings.

Helene Romanoff, a soprano of explosive though dramatic style and good stage presence, made her début here in song recital last evening at Aeolian Hall. She sang many songs in Russian, which were appreciated by her compatriots in the audience, and by others with the help of translations by Cecil Cowdray and Sigmund Spaeth. Richard Hageman assisted at the piano. Among songs marked "new" were lyrics by Arensky, Vassilenko, Sachnowsky, and Rachmaninoff.

The Shows Only New Car

Don't Fail to See and Ride In It—Sells $1395

The Essex—Is Now Ready

The most interesting exhibit at all of the automobile shows this year is the only new car—the Essex.

Its coming has been looked forward to for more than a year. And so when the first showing was announced on January 16 every Essex sales room was crowded by motorists who wanted to see the car about which they had heard so much.

Thousands have since ridden in it.

Note the praising words they have for it. It combines the wanted qualities of both the light weight cheap car which appeals because of its low cost and economy of operation with the endurance, performance, elegance and easy riding qualities of the large costly cars. It does this in a way that no other car has ever done.

You Should Not Only See It—
You Should Ride in the Essex

No sensational claims are made for the Essex, except those that are made by the thousands who have learned to know its qualities.

As you view the various exhibits at the automobile shows you will be reminded of the cars you know intimately from having seen them on the streets. A few changes in body designs, perhaps, but nothing of importance mechanically, has been produced during the past year.

The Essex, therefore, is the distinctive car of the year.

ESSEX MOTOR CARS DETROIT USA

It is light in weight. It has all the qualities that make the light cheap car attractive. But it also has the easy riding qualities, and the performance, the long endurance and the refinement of the large and costly cars.

It has poise and will retain its rigidity throughout long hard service.

These are things which any observer will immediately notice. And that is why instead of advertising the claims as is usually done, we merely ask you to come, see and ride in the Essex.

THE BRITISH EMBARGO.

The calmness and patience with which Englishmen receive our outburst about their embargo is praiseworthy. The impatience and irritation which some of us, including officials, show on the same subject is otherwise. The curious thing about it is that the protectionists think that they have a vested right in protectionism, but do not concede the same right to British free traders. Yet an embargo upon our exports is only an obscure phase of protectionism. If we cannot export we cannot import, and that is the object of exclusionist tariffs. We have proved this by selling the world's markets to a standstill. We have not sold them all that they would like to buy, but we have sold them more than they can pay for. Never in the history of the world has there been such a demonstration of the folly of the old notion that the welfare of a nation consists in selling so much more than is bought that the difference must be paid for in gold. We have more gold than is good for us, more than any other country ever held. Other nations are proportionately short of gold to maintain their credit basis. Yet we are demanding that they shall buy from us, and at the same time are lending them less freely. How is the trade to be paid for, if we compel it to be done?

The motives for the embargo are candidly set forth in the cable message to THE TIMES published yesterday. First on the list of embargoed goods, nearly all of large importance to our trade, are food and raw materials. England thinks that in the present condition of the world's short supply of both they ought to be dealt in under restriction. How is the good faith of that to be doubted here, where appeals about "four million starving" are freshly posted, and tell but part of the truth? England needs our food and materials, and can better afford to pay our prices than others. But England denies itself that others may have more, and allows us to realize the top of the market, moderated only by our charity.

Mr. HOOVER's message makes it clear by what a judicious mixture of business and charity our practical monopoly of relieving the world wants is to be administered. If we were to act otherwise than advised by him, and not in the way controlled by England, we should be subject to censure by the representatives of the world at Paris. Not yet can the food of man, beast, and manufactories be dealt in as a prize to the longest purse. We may ask what buyers are willing to pay—and none who are starving are so poor that they cannot promise to pay—but there should be priority among buyers, and gifts to those whose promissory notes are unacceptable. The incident is a demonstration of the necessity of some standard by which to measure and limit the fierceness of American protectionism and German competition. Certainly for the immediate future, and perhaps even in full peace, the Paris Conference will have an economic phase as well as military and political.

The next important class of goods mentioned is boots and shoes. The entire industry in England is Government operated, under stress of war demands, not only for herself but for those better supplied by England than by us during blockades and other interruptions of normal trade. Is not an industry under such conditions entitled to a breathing time for reconstruction? Looking at the matter from the point of view of our interests, are not the prices of boots and shoes high enough here so that our consumers would welcome an increase of our domestic supply, withdrawn from foreign buyers? Our domestic trade is twentyfold our maximum exports of this sort. The embargoed portion is a trifle to us, but much to those whose market would be demoralized by the surplus which we could spare, and could better use. What folly it would be to retaliate by refusing to allow England to use our raw materials! We are masters in our own market, and are best judges of whether it is to our interest to sell or consume raw materials. Why put ourselves under restrictions for such poor reasons when we resent England putting us under restrictions for such good reasons? Why start an economic war before the greatest war is over? Why start anything of which we cannot see the end? Why start something which would put us among the first nations of the world to be disciplined by the league to enforce right by force of reason used in the interest of humanity?

PEACE IN THE ADRIATIC.

No one can profit from the continuance of recent disagreements between the Italians and the Jugoslavs but those who are the enemies of both. That this racial feeling was deliberately incited by Austro-Hungarian authorities before and during the war is indisputable, and the difficulties that have recently made so much trouble, while traceable in part to lack of tact among representatives of both sides or to unwise methods pursued by friendly Powers, have undoubtedly been fostered by German, Austrian, and Magyar influences which are hostile alike to Italian prosperity and Jugoslav stability.

The Congress of Rome last April, which was a brilliant demonstration of the possibility of harmony between Italians and Jugoslavs, is recalled in the letter from Mr. SAVITCH, former head of the Press Bureau of the Serbian Foreign Office, which is published elsewhere on this page. The friends of both peoples can wish nothing better than that the two Governments might follow the policy which he suggests, and which is also advocated by strong liberal elements in Italy, of getting together once more, without intermediaries, to settle their difference on a basis of give and take. It seems quite unlikely that either side could obtain its maximum demands, and it is quite certain that for either side to do so would mean continued ill-feeling. But it is wholly possible that a territorial and economic settlement might be reached which would be readily accepted by the great majority of Italians and the great majority of Jugoslavs.

The chance of such a settlement will be much greater if negotiations are carried on directly between the representatives of the two peoples than if any foreign mediation, however well disposed, is invoked. The complicated questions of the Adriatic coast can best be settled by the peoples who live there, who will have to go on living together, on whatever basis, after the peace treaty is signed, and who have the greatest possible interest in making such arrangements that neither will be embittered against the other. Foreign influence, unless expressly requested by both sides for purposes of arbitration, is likely to do more harm than good.

It cannot be forgotten by reasonable men in Italy and in Jugoslavia that the Jugoslav territories will require great economic development and that by geographic necessity the greater part of the foreign assistance in this development must come from Italy. It is not to the interest of the Jugoslavs to alienate the people who will ordinarily furnish most of the engineers and capitalists to develop Jugoslavia, nor is it to the interest of the Italians to make enemies in the country which will offer the most profitable field for Italian enterprise. The hotspurs of both sides have made enough trouble; the reasonable men, if they get together once more without suspicion of outside influence, can in all probability reach a decision which will satisfy the great mass of both peoples.

MAJOR CASUALTIES IN FRANCE.

The table of major casualties of thirty combat divisions given out by General MARCH, Chief of Staff, should have the effect of silencing those critics of the military operations in France who have complained that units in which they were interested suffered enormous losses, because they did not get the benefit of adequate artillery preparation, or were not supported by other divisions in the same operation. Major casualties are said to include the killed, those who died of wounds, the missing, and prisoners taken by the enemy. The War Department's list made up to Jan. 10, and therefore not complete, shows these casualties to be 56,592, divided as follows: 27,762 killed, 11,396 died of wounds, 14,649 missing in action, and 2,705 prisoners. The missing, with few exceptions, may be accounted as dead; their bodies could not be found, and there were cases of men killed but so dismembered as to be unrecognizable. From every army there are deserters, not necessarily to the enemy, but the American Expeditionary Forces had very few of them.

According to the table furnished by General MARCH, the 1st Division, a Regular organization, had more major casualties than any other division. The total appears as 5,248. But if the major casualties of the 5th and 6th Regiments of Marines, which were attached to the 2d Division, should be added to the casualties given for that division, 2,965, its total would be almost equal to, if it did not slightly exceed, the sum of the major losses of the 1st Division. The 2d Division was composed of Regulars and Marines. The major casualties of the Marine brigade, according to a late dispatch from Washington, were 1,562 killed, 697 missing, and 35 prisoners, a total of 2,294, but they are incomplete. In all reports of losses in France those of the Marines have been kept separate from the combined casualties of other American regiments, an arrangement that has caused a good deal of confusion in tabulating. The only explanation seems to be that the Marines are a navy and not an army force.

The 1st and 2d Divisions (the latter including the Marines) had the heaviest major casualties because they were a long time at the front and were in the thick of many battles. A National Guard division, the 28th Pennsylvania, was harder hit than the 3d Division of Regulars, the totals of major casualties being, respectively, 3,890 and 3,617. New York's 27th (National Guard) Division and 77th (National Army) Division are twelfth and tenth on the casualty list, with 2,194 and 2,692 losses, incurred chiefly in the great assault on the Hindenburg line in the one case, and in the desperate drive through the Argonne Forest in the other case. The 77th arrived in France long after the 1st and 2d Regular Divisions; and the 27th reached the scene of operations after a detention of many months at Spartanburg. A division of much promise, the 81st, (Wildcat,) saw very little fighting, having only 370 major casualties. It was the fortune of war. And so it was with several other combat units on General MARCH's list. Those divisions that lost heavily were either a considerable time in France, or, on arriving at the front, they were thrown into some of the fiercest battles of the war. This is the key to the major casualty list. All fought with indomitable resolution, whether National Army, National Guard, or Regular regiments. Intensive training and a good cause soon made invincible troops of raw material. It must be borne in mind with regard to the regiments of the Regular Army engaged that there were comparatively few old soldiers in their ranks.

In its issue of Jan. 17 The Stars and Stripes, the organ of the American Expeditionary Forces in France, declined to decide which was the best division in the American Army, because "we do not feel equal just now "to a fight to the death with the en-"tire A. E. F. minus one division." The divisional spirit is so robust—and shall we say sensitive?—that the question of primacy will never be settled. The number of casualties suffered will not be accepted as a test of efficiency and as a measure of prowess.

AN OMISSION.

Long words are one of the recognized decorations of diplomacy. Their use comports with the diplomatic temperament. Moreover, in recent years diplomacy has found a special use for long words which by common consent mean nothing at all. They are convenient in many kinds of diplomatic literature, particularly in what is known as a "formula"—which means a sonorous sequence of words that looks well in the papers, and conceals for some time the fact that you have had to leave a difficult question unsettled. But when diplomats and correspondents writing about diplomacy use long words they ought to agree beforehand either on the meaning of those words, or else that the words have no meaning.

Otherwise there will come up some such difficulty as appears in certain dispatches about the mandatory principle in dealing with the German colonies. We have been used to seeing the word "mandatory" used as descriptive of the nation which takes over the government of a colony, and "mandate" as meaning the decision of the Peace Conference authorizing it to do so.

But now we have the suggestion that the United States "may have to accept mandatories," meaning on the face of it that we might have to reconcile ourselves to being governed, in the name of the League of Nations, by Liberia, Siam, the Republic of Schwarzburg-Sondershausen, or the Anti-Saloon League.

Since it is impossible that our famous three truckloads of documents did not include an English dictionary, it must be that some of our conferees are giving new meanings to words. The conference has made a great mistake in not appointing at the outset a Committee on Definitions, Punctuation, and Diacritical Markings.

THE NEW PARLIAMENT.

It is an interesting Parliament that meets today. It is curious enough that the five-year term dates from a Liberal Government—that of 1911. Originally the Septennial, then the Triennial or Annual, Parliament was the desire or hope. At least, this is a new Parliament, its "mandate," whatever this much-abused and unexplained word may mean, is still to be made fact. Mr. LLOYD GEORGE's election, for his it was, proved not too much in regard to what the electorate wants, at least not the soldiers and sailors, not too strongly represented. Transportation, housing, the settlement of the soldiers on the land, the solidity of efforts for the retention of the "key" industries, these were parts of the hurried program of Mr. LLOYD GEORGE, not looking forward to or really responsible for any program. He had won the war. His return to power was the unconditional answer of Great Britain to that.

That Mr. LLOYD GEORGE is busy with the great international settlements abroad; that old Unionists like Mr. BONAR LAW and Lord CURZON still seem to occupy coigns of vantage, to which their political experience seems not to entitle them, is mere matter of formula and official routine. What can Mr. LLOYD GEORGE himself, one of the shrewdest observers as well as one of the most powerful changers of political and economic and social conditions, do or think?

With the old conditions of labor, with everything that the "intellectualists," SIDNEY WEBB and his crowd, have done, with unionism and all the peculiarities of syndicalists, internationalists, and the rest, the course of things in Great Britain must have made him familiar. With the new race, not so new to him, of "shop stewards," the young, uneasy megalomaniac race of labor lords in Great Britain, he has still to deal; and he seems to be "observing" them.

That there is an exterior Bolshevist compulsion on these people seems hard to believe. A lot of new labor leaders have taken loud precedence of their elders. Hours must be shortened, wages must be raised. It is the old story of a class that amid all the rationing has survived and been most prosperous. That a class, not too sure of itself, and temporarily the best-to-do in England, should arrogate to itself the measures to be pursued by the new Parliament, will doubtless interest Mr. LLOYD GEORGE, to the extent of its votes.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Making Much Out of Very Little.

Many, and far too many, people, some of them in uniform and others in civilian dress, are coming back from Europe, these days, with stories and reports that illustrate the truth of the old, old saying in regard to comparisons. These people balance the merits and demerits of the several races or nations with which they have been in contact—usually for only brief periods and in conditions wholly abnormal—and almost all of them show the tendency, condemned by every logician, to argue from the particular to the general. The result is the usual—the almost inevitable—one of reaching conclusions entirely wrong and of exaggerating enormously the importance of the irritability and antagonism that invariably arise when the representatives of unlike civilizations rub up against each other.

Human beings, or the great majority of them, are so constituted that differences in habits and standards from themselves seem to be evidences of inferiority, and it is this fact that accounts for the dislikes which not a few of our soldiers have developed for the French and English troops with or near whom they have been brigaded. Doubtless the French soldiers have done the same thing as regards both the English and the Americans, the English soldiers as regards the Americans and the French.

Those who retail this sort of talk forget that ill-tempered gossip of the same sort can be collected in any amount right here at home by anybody with time to waste in listening to what our city and country folk say about each other or to the mutual criticism in which folk living in different parts of the country constantly indulge. Really, however, the inhabitants of the several sections neither hate nor despise one another—they are only bothered and fretted because their ideas on a good many subjects, most of them trivial, are unlike.

And that is all there is to the so solemnly exploited hostility between the soldiers who only a few weeks ago were risking their lives side by side in equally heroic and effective defense of the cause in which they all believed.

Comparing Germans and French.

Closely related to the reports about discords among the late associates in fighting Germany are the deductions hastily drawn as to the discovery by the men in the American Army of Occupation that the German, when on his good behavior, is a kindly and companionable person, and that when conditions are favorable, as they were and are in Treves and Coblenz, his municipal and domestic housekeeping is not equaled in French towns where the conditions have been much worse.

We are asked to believe that, as a result, the American soldiers have forgotten all that they have read and heard, and all that they saw for themselves, as to the behavior of the German when he is waging war on land and sea. That, too, is a case of reasoning from the particular to the general, complicated by failure to remember that what the less thoughtful of the "doughboys" are now really comparing is not the German with the Frenchman, but the comfort and safety he is now enjoying with the hardships and perils of war in its most desperate form.

Something of an inclination toward fraternization is the natural consequence, and the Germans are quite intelligent enough to seek and obtain what advantages they can by bearing themselves courteously toward men whom, not long ago, they were calling "pig-dogs"—men whom now less than ever have they any reason for liking.

An Expert Discusses Assimilation.

More in detail than ever before, perhaps, were the facts in regard to certain alien elements of our population presented in the testimony given by LAJOS STEINER of the War Trade Board when called before the Senate Propaganda Committee. Speaking from much knowledge based on personal observation, Mr. STEINER emphatically declared that of the almost innumerable foreign language newspapers published in this country, many were anti-American and practically all the rest non-American. He gave as the reason for this the fact, well enough known long ago, but not sufficiently appreciated, that the very existence of these papers depends on preventing, or delaying as long as possible, the Americanization of their readers.

As soon as the immigrant can read the papers printed in English he not only does it, but he soon loses interest in the others, and with full assimilation his subscription lapses. In exceptional cases the foreign-language paper performs its one legitimate duty—that of assisting the newly arrived immigrant to meet the difficulties encountered by him in a strange land, the speech of which is incomprehensible to him, but to persist in this policy requires an amount of self-sacrifice and an indifference to private interest not common to humanity, and the most often chosen alternative is an effort to perpetuate "colony" life, the more or less exclusive use of the old tongue.

Other agencies antagonistic to the Americanization of the immigrant mentioned by Mr. STEINER were the foreign-language churches and schools, and the "bankers" whose interest lies in persuading the foreigner to make frequent ocean journeys and to deposit his savings in the old country instead of in the United States. He offered no suggestions as to what should be done to minimize or abolish the evils he described. That problem, and it is not a simple one, he left to the Senators for solution.

Freedom Only in Russia!

When a man, speaking in an American city, excites the applause of numerous auditors by telling them that "Russia is the only place where men and women can be free," the fact raises a good many rather serious questions.

The first of them—Why did he make a statement at once so stupid and so false?—is easily answered. The speaker was JAMES LARKIN, who is himself as much of a Bolshevik as he can find time to be in the moments when he doesn't have to be a Sinn Feiner and an exponent of what in this country is called the I. W. W. But this statement was made in Boston, and it is difficult to understand the existence there of more than a small handful of out-and-out lunatics that are desirous to have the only sort of freedom now existing in Russia. It is the freedom of a small class to kill and steal, and the freedom of everybody else to be murdered and robbed.

Of course Mr. LARKIN would not put the case exactly that way, but no other way suggested itself to him, so he abstained from what he knew or felt would be the dangers of definition. Mr. LARKIN has been credited with ability of a kind and with moving eloquence. That is what makes him dangerous, but one observes that he prefers America to Russia as a place in which to do his preaching.

AN ADRIATIC SETTLEMENT.

It Can Best Be Reached by Direct Negotiation Between Italians and Jugoslavs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Italo-Jugoslav controversy over the territories ceded to Italy by the secret treaty of London is going on, embittering the feelings on both sides. Whatever might be the decision of the Peace Conference at Versailles with America as an umpire, the present controversy might result, if not stopped, in a deeper misunderstanding between the Italians and the Jugoslavs, prejudicial to their best interests. They are neighbors and very much interdependent. Their co-operation in the future on those now disputed shores offers to both nations many and obvious advantages. Jugoslavs and Italians have repeated to satiety their arguments before the public of this country in behalf of their respective attitudes, and nothing more can be gained by further arguing.

A fair and honorable issue, however, remains open to them. Is not their quarrel at least partly instigated and secretly managed by an enemy who sees in the Italo-Jugoslav dispute the best opportunity for asserting again his own mastery over the Adriatic? Are they not both, perhaps, victims of a cleverly planned intrigue, which adroitly exploits a superficial antagonism of two very susceptible peoples, not allowing them to see their real and permanent interests pointing to friendship and co-operation?

In spite of everything that has been done and said to estrange the Italians and the Jugoslavs, and, if possible, to create an unbridgable gulf between them, is it not very encouraging that when these two peoples met each other directly and spoke openly, as was the case last April at the Congress of Nationalities in Rome, they were able to arrive easily at an agreement and to create an atmosphere of perfect mutual confidence. Let us, the Italians and the Jugoslavs, be chary of high words, but let us make a sincere effort to resuscitate the spirit which presided over and inspired our mutual discussions at Rome last April.

Under the protection of that white dove of peace and trust, Italians and Jugoslavs may by direct negotiations of their representatives reach an agreement more valuable to both of them than even a decision imposed upon them by the Peace Conference at Versailles. A solution of all principal questions surely could be found by themselves, and the minor details which might present difficulties for settlement by direct negotiations should be referred to the Peace Conference at Versailles. Then the Peace Conference would not act as an outside authority imposing a judgment upon unruly parties, but as a friend invoked in to help two other friends to find an issue without the susceptibilities of either being hurt. In such a case we shall have not only a solution of the Adriatic difficulties, but also a basis of friendship between Italy and Jugoslavia promising well for a durable peace and a speedy recovery of their countries, so terribly visited by the evils of the war.

Not Educated in Germany.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have recently read your editorial article entitled "Queer Results of German Education," and find in it this statement: "Professor Clarence Aurelius Skinner of Tufts, Berlin, 1896-9."

I feel that you owe a double apology for this statement. In the first place, Clarence Aurelius Skinner's name was not on the list of sixty-two recently published by the Senate, nor is he a professor at Tufts College.

In the second place, my name, which was on the list, is used wrongly by yourself. Your implication is that I was educated in Germany and that I received a degree from the University of Berlin. I was never in Berlin in my life, and during the years when you gleefully imagined me drinking in Kaiserism pure and undefiled I was attending a high school in the City of Brooklyn.

The nearest I ever came to a degree in a German educational institution was in the Summer of 1913, when my wife and I visited Europe. We spent about ten days of this time in Germany and spent one night in the City of Heidelberg. I was shown through the college there with some other American travelers. That is the extent of my education in Germany.

I have written to the committee of the United States Senate challenging them to prove that I have had anything to do with German propaganda. I challenge you to make a thorough investigation of my record as an American citizen.

Art and Morals.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

How can one be a music lover and yet a pirate?

They were all such refined music lovers in my section in the parquet at Carnegie Hall Saturday evening, at the symphony concert. Noble strains ought to bring out the best in human nature. Yet, when, on leaving, I dropped my opera glasses, valuable to me on account of associations, (first Parsifal performance in New York, Ober-Ammergau, 1910, &c.,) some one among these nice people picked them up and took them home.

WANTS WHEAT PRICE GUARANTEED TO 1920

But Van Dusen Opposes Operating of Elevators by Food Administration.

WOULDN'T OPEN EXCHANGES

Thinks Closing Them and Controlling Exports and Imports May Reduce Loss to Public.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—F. C. Van Dusen of Minneapolis, appearing today before the House Committee on Agriculture, which is considering a bill to appropriate $1,250,000,000 to make good the guarantee of the wheat price in 1919, urged that the war powers of the Food Administration should be continued until June, 1920, when the $2.26 guaranteed price expires.

Mr. Van Dusen, who is a large wheat dealer, opposed granting authority to the Food Administration to build, buy, or lease grain elevators or warehouses. He said that there was no good reason for opening the Grain Exchanges during the period of the Government's guarantee, as, in his opinion, there would be no futures to deal in. Other witnesses took the opposite position, and urged that the bill contain a provision to permit the Exchanges to do business under a Government license.

"The Government's guarantee to wheat producers should be made good," said Mr. Van Dusen, "and this should be done through a fund administered by a Government agency sufficient to take care of any loss and to establish credit on which to carry on business. The Grain Corporation of the United States Food Administration is the best agency for making the guarantee effective. It is too early now to make a specific plan under which this agency should operate, as any plan must be governed to a large extent by the size of the wheat crop to be handled, and of course that is problematical."

The bill proposes to pay the farmer the guaranteed price of $2.26 for wheat offered for sale up to June, 1920. Some experts have estimated that the loss to the Government or consumers will reach more than $5,000,000,000. Wheat prices generally are fixed by the Liverpool market, and the belief exists that there will be at least a difference of a dollar a bushel between the guaranteed price and the market price in 1919. The consuming public will demand that wheat be sold at such a figure, experts for the Agricultural Department assert, that bread can be bought for 5 cents a loaf when normal times return some time next year. The problem now before the commitee is how this loss shall be met.

"A good many people think it would be better to let the loss come through the Treasury than through the consuming public," observed Chairman Lever in the course of the hearing.

"If the President is authorized to control imports and exports," replied Mr. Van Dusen, "and close produce exchanges to future trading, this loss will be to some extent minimized."

"Do you think the end could be accomplished through a licensing of produce exchanges by the Government?" the witness was asked.

"I think that such a move would be unwise," he replied. "If you want the Government to take the maximum loss, the place for the Government to settle with the farmer is at the country elevator. It would seem, however, that it might not be unwise to leave the price for export, and for the miller and the cost of flour, to be worked out by a Government agency, according to world conditions."

"But if the Grain Corporation is to control all exports of wheat and is to buy all the grain in the country," interjected Representative Anderson, "it can sell at any price so that the price in the United States will be fixed by the President instead of by the world market price."

"I can hardly conceive that the President will not give due consideration to the living conditions here and aim to see that the price of bread is fixed upon that basis," replied the witness.

"Determining of the world market level on an economic basis would be through the exchanges," asserted Representative Anderson, "and not by any arbitrary methods of the President's dictum."

"I am afraid it would be disastrous to open the exchanges," insisted the witness.

"We are faced with one of two horns of a dilemma," said Mr. Anderson. "Either we must accept the proposition that the Government must maintain the guaranteed price and pass the charge on to the consumer through fixing the price on wheat products, or we must accept the other horn and admit the difference between the fixed price and the normal price and get some method of determining how that difference shall be met."

There is a wide difference of opinion as to what methods the Government shall adopt to guarantee the price to farmers and keep down the price of wheat products. There is a general agreement in Congress, however, that the Government must keep its promise to the farmer and pay him the guaranteed price for all wheat offered up to 1920 grown in 1918 and 1919.

MAY APPLY FOR DISCHARGE.

Pershing Asked to Send Back Men Whose Families Need Them.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3. — General Pershing has been authorized by the War Department to send home for immediate discharge from the army any drafted or enlisted man who presents convincing evidence of sickness or other distress in his family. The department announced today that men may make their own requests for discharge, or the request may be made direct to General Pershing by letter or cable by a member of the soldier's family or other interested and responsible persons, accompanied by sufficient testimony that sickness or other distress exists.

General Pershing also has been authorized to discharge in Europe, on their own application, men who have good reasons for leaving the army and who waive any claim for sea travel allowances from Europe to the United States. Men so discharged will be paid travel allowances from their station in Europe to the port of embarkation and from Hoboken, N. J., to the place of induction into the service.

These instructions apply to enlisted or drafted men who entered the service after April 1, 1917. Men who entered the service before that date may be furloughed to the United States when sickness or distress in the soldier's family is clearly indicated.

"It must be understood," says the department's announcement, "that discharges or furloughs of this kind will be given only in exceptional cases. Requests for discharge must clearly show that the sickness is of such a critical nature as will require the soldier's immediate presence or that distress in a man's family is such as cannot be relieved by allotments of money made under the War Risk Insurance act."

NEW FIGHT FOR SUFFRAGE.

Anthony Resolution Is Up for Senate Action Next Monday.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHIGTON, Feb. 3.—The effort of supporters of woman suffrage to put through the Susan B. Anthony resolution for a suffrage amendment to the Constitution will be considered again in the Senate next Monday, Senator Jones of New Mexico, who is handling the fight, having given notice today that he would call it up on that day. At the same time it became known that the suffrage proponents had gained one vote since the resolution was defeated two months ago—that of Senator Pollock, who succeeded Mr. Benet of South Carolina.

With Senator Pollock's vote the suffragists would lack but one vote of the two-thirds necessary to adopt the resolution. This vote they are working hard to get. Senator Pollock's vote would make 63 for the resolution, and it requires 64 for its adoption. It was defeated by two votes before.

Pressure has been brought to bear on Democratic Senators in the last few days. Senator Trammel of Florida, who was recorded against the resolution at the last vote, is particularly one of these upon whom the suffrage proponents have turned their forces. It became known tonight that President Wilson had sent a cablegram to the Florida Senator urging him to vote for the resolution. Mr. Trammel declined to say tonight what his attitude would be when the resolution came up Monday.

Senator Trammel was visited on Sunday by a delegation of suffrage advocates from Florida. The Florida Legislature is said to be in favor of the resolution by any appreciable majority, but it is not in session and will not meet before this session of Congress ends. So, in the delegation that called upon Mr. Trammel, were a number of legislators from both Florida houses, who told him that the Legislature was anxious to have him support the resolution.

If the suffrage advocates cannot prevail upon Mr. Trammel they have hopes that some other Democratic Senator, persuaded by the President's efforts, will swing into line. However, they are making no forecast as to how the vote will stand.

The suffrage leaders had hoped that Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, who succeeded Senator Drew, might come to their support, but Senator Moses told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today that he would vote in the negative.

"The Legislature of my State has not asked me to vote for suffrage," said Mr. Moses. "That leaves me free to exercise my own discretion. I am opposed to woman suffrage and intend to vote against the resolution next Monday."

Senator Borah of Idaho is another Republican whom the suffrage supporters have half counted upon since the resolution was defeated. The Legislature of his State has indorsed woman suffrage, but the Senator is opposed to it. He would give no indication today of how he intended to vote on the resolution on Monday, but the anti-suffrage leaders were insisting that he would be against it.

Miss Alice Paul of the National Woman's Party said tonight that the Democrats would take the responsibility in their own hands if they failed to adopt the resolution on Monday.

"This is the last chance the Democratic Party will have to take advantage of the opportunity they have neglected for the last five years to pass the amendment enfranchising the 20,000,000 women of the country," said Miss Paul. "Women recognize that it is entirely in the hands of the Democratic Party to pass the suffrage measure, and will hold them responsible if it is not passed."

SEND RELIEF TO NEAR EAST.

Committee Appropriates $1,054,000 for Use in February.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Committee for Relief in the Near East, after a luncheon for workers in the $30,000,000 drive, held yesterday at the Bankers' Club, $1,054,000 was voted to supply immediate relief to sufferers in the Holy Land during the month of February. The committee also decided to aid the State Department in getting and transmitting information to American citizens concerning relatives and friends in the Near East.

Relief commissions, it was announced, will open offices for this purpose in Jerusalem, Constantinople, and Erivan. Lists of persons with American connections will be cabled to the headquarters of the committee here. Of the allotment made yesterday, $250,000 will be forwarded to Constantinople, $50,000 to Syria, $50,000 to Palestine, $200,000 to the Caucasus, $100,000 to Erivan, $200,000 to Tabiz, $200,000 as an emergency fund for Mosul Bakuba and the Caucasus, and the remaining $4,000 to the Syrian Relief Fund.

A resolution asking that Arthur Curtiss James, who is in Paris, request President Wilson and Herbert Hoover to devote the largest possible share of the $100,000,000 appropriation of Congress for relief in the Near East was submitted to Alexander J. Hemphill, Chairman of the Executive Committee. Team workers reported at the luncheon yesterday that $59,000 had been contributed since Saturday. The All-Greek team reported $7,000 in small contributions.

The first contribution from a New York corporation was also reported. This was a check for $2[illegible]000 from the Phelps-Dodge Corporation, $10,000 of which is to be credited to New York, the remainder for Arizona and New Mexico. At the suggestion of Cleveland H. Dodge the campaign will go on for another week.

ASKS JUDGES TO AID WOMEN

Mrs. Rippin Says That Delinquents Should Be Investigated by Court.

The National Committee on Prisons and Prison Labor began a three-day conference on problems arising from the reconstruction period yesterday in the home of Adolph Lewisohn, 881 Fifth Avenue. Mr. Lewisohn is President of the committee. Miss Helen Varick Boswell presided, and the speakers included Mrs. Jane Deeter Rippen, Mrs. Jennie Griffiths, Mrs. Margaretta Neals, Mrs. Sara Conboy, Dr. Mary B. Harris, and Mrs. Jessie D. Hodder.

Mrs. Rippen, who is Director of the Law Enforcement Division section on Women and Girls, of the Commission on Training Camp Activities, spoke of the need of greater co-operation among the Judges, police, and institutional heads. She declared that Judges should cease to look on delinquent women brought before them as criminals, but should acquaint themselces with the circumstances back of the delinquency. She asserted that of all our institutions, the courts were the slowest to become socialized.

Industrial training for women prisoners was discussed by Mrs. Hodder, who is Superintendent of the Massachusetts Reformatory for Women. She said many of the State, Federal, and service flags flying both in her State and abroad were made by the women prisoners, who had given more than 2,000 pairs of socks to the army. The conference will be continued today.

BOWLES OUT OF SHIPPING.

Rear Admiral's Resignation Will Be Effective on March 15.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The resignation of former Rear Admiral Francis T. Bowles as assistant general manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation was announced today by the Shipping Board.

Mr. Bowles wrote to Director General Piez on Jan. 25 asking to be relieved March 15. Mr. Piez accepted the resignation with expressions of regret and with congratulations upon Mr. Bowles's work. The board's statement made public with the corespondence said Mr. Bowles probably would retain his connection with the board in some other capacity.

R. E. Moore Art Sale Ends Today.

The seventh and last afternoon's sale of the Rufus E. Moore Oriental art collection, which was to have been held yesterday in the rooms of the American Art Association, 6 East Twenty-third Street, was postponed on account of a fire in Dorland's restaurant, which occupies the first floor of the building and filled the place with smoke. The sale will be concluded this afternoon.

MOVE TO KEEP ALIVE SPIRIT OF ROOSEVELT

Permanent Memorial National Committee Opens Office and Asks Suggestions.

APPEAL TO BE NATION-WIDE

First Gift Comes from a Policeman Friend, Who Was Also a Soldier Under the Colonel.

The Roosevelt Permanent Memorial National Committee opened headquarters yesterday at 1 Madison Avenue, with Herman Hagedorn as Acting Secretary. It was announced that all contributions would be promptly acknowledged and turned over to the Treasurer, Albert H. Wiggin of the Chase National Bank. It is expected that branch committees will be established over the country. All the money contributed toward the memorial, it was said, would be spent for that purpose, as administration expenses were being borne by separate subscriptions.

The first man to send his subscription after the opening of the office yesterday was Captain Edward F. Bourke of the 33d Precinct, an old friend of Theodore Roosevelt, who subscribed $10. The honor of establishing the first local branch of the committee goes to Greenfield Hill, a hamlet three miles north of Fairfield, Conn. The committee announced that the type of memorial had not been decided upon, and that all suggestions would be gratefully received and considered. The committee issued the following statement:

The Roosevelt Permanent Memorial National Committee consists exclusively of men and women who were in one way or another closely associated with Colonel Roosevelt. They knew him in public life and at home; they knew better than any one else outside his immediate family what he loved and what he hated, what he stood for and what he stood firmly against; among them they represent every phase of his extraordinary and many-sided career. If any group, therefore, can say what would be the wish of Theodore Roosevelt in regard to a national memorial to him, this committee should be able to do it.

The committee is absolutely open-minded with regard to the form which that memorial shall take. It expects to remain open-minded for many months to come. It not only promises to give all suggestions from sources outside the committee the most careful consideration, it solicits such suggestions.

Theodore Roosevelt believed in the people; that means that he believed in the sound horse sense of the average American. It is only just to his memory, therefore, that the American people whom he implicitly trusted and who trusted and followed him should have every opportunity to express their preference concerning the form that their memorial to him should take.

The committee has no idea what that form will be. It knows only this, that the memorial which the American people ultimately dedicate to Theodore Roosevelt must not be merely a thing of stone and bronze. Like Theodore Roosevelt himself, it must be dynamic. Roosevelt never stood still, and it would be treason to his spirit if this memorial should not have in it some of the creative energy of the man it seeks to honor. In some way it must help to build the new and better America. Roosevelt the man is dead, but Roosevelt the energizing spirit is very much alive. It is the aim of the Memorial Committe, with the aid of Colonel Roosevelt's friends and supporters all over the country, to find some effective way of putting that spirit to work.

Contributions to the memorial fund should be made to the Roosevelt Permanent Memorial National Committee, twenty-ninth floor, 1 Madison Avenue, New York City. They will be promptly acknowledged and deposited with the Treasurer, Albert H. Wiggin, of the Chase National Bank, and inscribed in a memorial volume for permanent record.

The committee wishes to emphasize that every penny given for a memorial will be spent for a memorial. Expenses of collection and administration will be covered by special gifts of personal friends of Colonel Roosevelt.

Captain Bourke sent this letter with his subscription:

Feb. 3, 1919.
To the Roosevelt Memorial Committee, 1 Madison Avenue, New York City.

Gentlemen: I have the great honor to inclose herewith $10, being my little mite toward some fitting memorial to my valued and dear personal friend, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt.

Colonel Roosevelt embodied to me and to all of us who were his subordinates on the police force when he was Police Commissioner all that was good and great in a man over men.

I was not two months on the police force when in making an arrest my very future was direly threatened. Colonel Roosevelt came to my assistance with all of his impetuous ardor and saw that no one, or any of my enemies, could hurt me for performing my work, and I always attribute to Colonel Roosevelt at that time my safety and permanence in the Police Department. He became one of us, worked with us, felt for our little errors, and raised and ennobled wherever possible.

I had the honor of serving in the Spanish war with Colonel Roosevelt, and we both bore memories of that brief but successful war.

Our country has lost one of the greatest statesmen and finest and most human men ever in its history in the death of Colonel Roosevelt. Yours very truly,

EDWARD F. BOURKE,
Captain Thirty-third Precinct, New York Police Force.

The Greenfield Hill Branch was formed in memory of a tea party the late President took part in when visiting a friend in the vicinity a year and a half ago.

Presbyterians Call for Gifts.

The National Service Commission of the Presbyterian Church has issued an appeal for a special after-war offering to be made on Roosevelt Sunday, Feb. 9. Presbyterians are asked to contribute $1,750,000 as their share of the Interchurch Emergency Campaign Fund of $10,000,000. This is all to be used immediately in vital work resulting from the war. In case the Presbyterians exceed their quota, the surplus will be contributed to the Presbyterian New Era Movement. Roy M. Hart of 156 Fifth Avenue is Treasurer of the special fund.

MUSEUM FIFTY YEARS OLD.

Trustees of Natural History Institution Hear of Great Need for Money.

The American Museum of Natural History held its fiftieth annual meeting last evening. There were no ceremonies to mark the occasion, the celebration of the golden jubilee being postponed for five years because of war conditions. The meeting was held at the Metropolitan Club where the Trustees were the guests of President Henry Fairfield Osborn, who emphasized the need of funds.

"While during the last fifty years the Trustees of the Museum have presented to the people of the city collections valued at $7,250,000, with gifts to the permanent fund amounting to $7,322,707, the city has contributed only $5,318,820 for building purposes and $4,241,492 for maintenance," said President Osborn. "The maintenance question is more critical than that of building."

President Osborn showed in detail the large increase in the cost of the city Government and the small increase for the maintenance of the Museum. During the time that President Osborn has been at the head of the Museum city expenditures have increased 30.47 per cent. per capita, while the cost of the museum maintenance has actually decreased 8.74 per cent. The city's appropriation for the American Museum has been actually decreased by $25,000 for 1919, a decrease being in effect $50,000 because of mandatory increases in the wages of employes who have been earning $1,800 or less per year. In 1918 the Trustees contributed $88,348 for salaries and other maintenance expenses, which the city budget would not cover.

Retrenchments contemplated include closing half the exhibition halls, keeping the museum open only during daylight, cancelling all evening lectures and discontinuing the distribution of nature study collections to the public schools, a line of work developed after years of study and which has been considered indispensable.

PROF. PICKERING DIES GREAT ASTRONOMER

Director of Harvard Observatory Devised New Method of Astronomical Photography.

ESTABLISHED PERU STATION

In His Long Study of the Light and Spectra of Stars He Secured 1,400,000 Measurements.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 3.—Professor Edward Charles Pickering, Director of the Harvard Observatory and one of the most widely known astronomers in the country, died late today after a brief illness.

Professor Pickering was Professor of Practical Astronomy at Harvard and ranked in seniority all but one of the other active professors of the university.

Under Professor Pickering's direction the observatory greatly widened its scope, until it had built up a system of correspondence with observatories and private astronomers all over the world through which discoveries and observations were compared and verified. He established the observatory's auxiliary station at Arequipa, Peru, and devised new methods of astronomical photography.

For a long time he made a study of the light and spectra of stars. During this period the laboratory in conjunction with the Harvard Observatory has secured 1,400,000 measurements of the light of thousands of stars. In recognition of his researches in astronomics he received the Henry Draper Gold Medal in 1891. The work of extending the star catalogue of the Southern skies, begun at the Cape of Good Hope by the younger Herschel more than a century ago, was continued under Professor Pickering's direction and that of his brother, Professor William H. Pickering, at the Peru auxiliary station, since when 240,000 photographs have been obtained.

Professor Pickering was born at Boston, Mass., July 19, 1846, a son of Edward and Charlotte Hammond Pickering, and as a youth attended the old Boston Latin School. He got his science degree from the Lawrence Scientific School at Harvard, from which he later received the honorary degree of Master of Arts. In 1874 he married Miss Lizzie Wadsworth Sparks, daughter of Jared Sparks. In addition to membership in many other kindred organizations, he was a member of the National Academy of Sciences, an honorary member of the scientific societies in Mexico, Cherbourg, France, Liverpool, Toronto, Christiana, Upsala; a member of the Royal Geographical Society, the Royal Astronomical Society, the Astronomical Society of France, the Italian Spectroscopic Society, the Institute de France, and the Royal Society of London.

XAVIER LEROUX DEAD.

Composer of "Le Chemineau" and "La Reine Flammette" Dies in Paris

PARIS, Feb. 3.—Announcement is made here of the death of Xavier Leroux, the composer.

Probably the best known of Leroux's operas is "Le Chemineau," a work which was performed here last Friday night by the Chicago Opera Company, and "La Reine Flammette," which was produced at the Metropolitan Opera House for the second time last night, although "L'Ingenu," his latest operatic work, which is announced for its initial production at the Opera Comique in Paris this month, may find still greater favor here.

The composer was born of French parents at Velletri, in what was then the Papal States, on Oct. 11, 1863. His full name was Xavier Henri Napoleon Leroux, and the boy early displayed a talent for music. He was admitted to the Paris Conservatoire, and won a first Prix de Rome in 1885. In 1890 his first opera, "Cleopatre," was performed. In addition to "Le Reine Flammette" and "Le Chemineau" other operas have been "Evangeline," "William Ratcliff," and "L'Epave." "Le Chemineau" was first performed at the Paris Opera Comique on Nov. 6, 1907. It was produced at New Orleans in 1911, in Chicago last month, and again last Friday night.

FRENCH ACT "L'AMI FRITZ."

Jacques Copeau's French company at the Theatre du Vieux Colombier appeared last night in Erckmann-Chatrian's pleasant little three-act comedy, "L'Ami Fritz," familiar also to American playgoers by reason of its use by Mascagni as the basis for one of his popular operas and a recent English production by John Mason.

The play is quite thin and loosely put together, with many monologued asides in which, after the dramatic style of the time, the actors very frequently take the audiences into their confidence by thinking aloud. But it is extremely pleasant, nevertheless, and abounds in a light, humorous charm, providing an evening of excellent amusement.

M. Copeau appeared in the title rôle of Friend Fritz, the well-to-do bachelor, beloved of his bachelor friends, and in his bachelorhood so happy that he fails to realize that he is miserable until he falls in love. Romain Bouquet, as the genial and wily Rabbi Sichel, who rests not until he weaves a lovesnare round friend Fritz, and Renée Bouquet, the sweet and pretty daughter of Fritz's farmer, who does more than the rabbi to make this pious hope of the latter come to fruition, divided the honors of the evening with Director Copeau before a well-pleased audience.

Musical Velvet.

THE VELVET LADY, a musical comedy in three acts, based upon "A Full House," by Fred Jackson; adapted by Henry Blossom, music by Victor Herbert. At the New Amsterdam.

Parks	Ernest Torrence
Ottilie Howell	Marie Flynn
Susie	Georgia O'Ramey
Miss Winnacker	Eleanor Gordon
Bubbles	Minera Coverdale
Nicholas King	Jed Prouty
Ned Pembroke	Alfred Gerrard
George Howell	Ray Raymond

Vera Vernon	Fay Marbe
Mrs. Pembroke	Eda Von Buelow

Up to the last quarter of an hour of "The Velvet Lady," which opened last night at the New Amsterdam, the velvet was mainly supplied by Victor Herbert. The score, which ranges easily from patter song and spooky humoresque to sentimental ditty and languishing waltz, enveloped the none too novel book and lyrics with an atmosphere of gayety and charm which may well spell success. The waltz in particular seemed to delight the audience, striking the note of youthful love and longing with a persuasive, romantic melody in the very best mood of the Viennese composers. It is a tune which we are doubtless destined to hear for many months.

Then, during the final fifteen minutes, the Velvet Lady herself appeared, in the person of Fay Marbe, and with her a radiance of charm and a freshness of physical coloring which brought the whole to a climax. Owing to the exigencies of the plot, which is taken from Fred Jackson's farce, "A Full House," it was impossible to introduce Miss Marbe earlier; but in her single costume she combined the splendors of many changes, and in her few dances she irradiated a spirit which had been lacking except in the music. It was very far from a bad quarter of an hour.

For the rest, the production is notable mainly for uniform competence and a rather extraordinary good taste. Marie Flynn and Ray Raymond as the bride and bridegroom, with Minerva Coverdale and Alfred Gerrard as the young lovers, sang and danced acceptably, the dancing of Miss Coverdale being rather exceptionally spirited and graceful.

Georgie O'Ramey's talent at grotesque comedy, which when blessed with proper material to work with, is as delightful as it is rare, was largely spent upon a very conventional slavey part. In a spooky Halloween dance, however, she momentarily found herself as a sort of Robin Goodfellow, and she sang a humorous extravaganza, "What a Position for Me," in a way to delight the audience.

The three scenes and the many gowns attained the high level to which audiences at the New Amsterdam are accustomed. One of the Hallowe'en choruses proved a very delightful novelty—or is it only an inspired revival? The young ladies came on with little bowls and pipes and filled the stage with soap bubbles which floated in iridescent splendor for what seemed many minutes.

If an effect which is at once so simple and so gracefully fantastic has waited all these years for its Christopher Columbus, there is still hope for something new under the spotlight.

Mr. Herbert conducted, and was warmly received by his many friends in the audience.

LAWYER MUST PAY $48,207.

Court Finds Rinehart Acquired Woman's Money for His Use.

Findings by a referee that J. Brice Gordon Rinehart, lawyer, member of a prominent Pennsylvania family, Harvard graduate, and member at various times of the Union League, Harvard, and Republican Clubs, induced an aged woman client, who confided in him, to give him $42,000 in cash for investment in "enterprises that were safe and productive, and were a rare opportunity," whereas Rinehart "intended at all times to acquire the money for his own personal use, and for his personal interest and advancement," were filed in the County Clerk's office yesterday by Malcolm Sumner, appointed to determine a suit brought against Rinehart by Miss Nancy Sanborn of Detroit for an accounting.

The referee finds that Rinehart at all times deceived his aged client by misrepresenting the value of stock in which he had invested her money, and by paying her fictitious dividends upon the pretense that they came from her stock, which not only failed to pay the 150 per cent. profit which Rinehart represented the company was earning, but failed to pay even an ordinary dividend. The dividends and other payments made to Miss Sanborn, as found by the referee, reduced Rinehart's debt to $36,216, for which he must account, with interest on various sums during the period from 1909 to 1916 aggregating $11,990, making the total sum of $48,207 which Rinehart is ordered to pay Miss Sanborn.

The principal investment made by Rinehart with Miss Sanborn's money was in stock of the W. T. Littig Company, a photo-engraving concern in Fulton Street, Brooklyn, in which Rinehart also induced Frederick Bauer, a florist, who was in business near Evergreens Cemetery, Brooklyn, for sixty years, to invest $9,000. Bauer went to the criminal courts with his complaint and had Rinehart arrested in May, 1916.

One Car You Should Surely Examine

As the pioneer and most successful example of high-powered scientific light-weight construction, the Oakland Sensible Six models on view at the Show deserve your serious attention.

Into them has been built a value and a capacity for economical service impossible at so moderate a price under any other manufacturing plan than that of Oakland.

The standard Oakland Sensible Six chassis, which is the foundation of all Oakland models, is the result of concentrating the entire manufacturing energies of one of the largest producers of automobiles in the world upon a single design.

Upon this remarkable chassis has been contrived so much of roominess, comfort and good appearance, as to make the Oakland as pleasurable to drive as it is profitable to own.

Oakland occupies Space 22 at Madison Square Garden. The models on display are: the Touring Car, $1177; the Roadster, $1177; the Sedan, $1766; and the Coupé, $1766. Additional for wire wheel equipment, $75. All prices delivered in New York.

GALAXY OF WOMEN TENNIS STARS COMPETE IN INVITATION TOURNEY AT HEIGHTS CASINO

WOMEN NET STARS BEGIN TOURNAMENT

Miss Eleanor Sears and Miss Goss Are Easy Winners in First Day's Play.

MANY ARE ELIMINATED

Miss Molla Bjurstedt Wins by Default, but Will Be Ready to Enter Competition Today.

With an array of women tennis players, second only to a national championship, the annual women's invitation tournament started yesterday on the indoor courts of the Heights Casino in Brooklyn. The first round eliminated many players in the upper and lower halves of the draw and when the third round begins tomorrow the outstanding players in the upper half will be Miss Eleanor Sears, Miss Molla Bjurstedt, Mrs. De Forest Candee and Miss Claire Cassell. The prominent winners in the lower half are Miss Eleanor Goss, Miss Marie Wagner, Mrs. Rawson Wood and Miss Helene Pollack.

The tournament last season was won by Miss Bjurstedt who defeated Miss Eleanor Goss, the tall Brooklyn girl in the finals. It would not be surprising if this same pair fought it out for the final honors this season also. It now looks as if the semi-final competition in the upper half of the draw would come down to a battle between the phenomenal Norse girl and Miss Sears, the talented Bostonian. In the lower half the semi-final may bring together Miss Wagner and Miss Goss.

The two Boston entries, Mrs. George Wrightman and Miss Marion Zinderstein, both defaulted their matches yesterday. Miss Molla Bjurstedt was on hand to play in spite of a hard cold contracted in Boston last week. Mrs. E. B. Shattuck, however, defaulted the match to the Norse girl. Miss Bjurstedt's illness affected her game in Boston last Saturday and it was feared that she would be unable to compete in the Casino tournament. Although she has not fully recovered from the cold, she is ready to play today, however.

Miss Sears had things pretty much her own way in her match with Mrs. Sohst. The first set was rather slow but in the second set the Boston girl brought into play a strong wrist movement and put so much speed on the ball that there was no question about her victory. There was a hard-fought match between Miss Cassel and Mrs. D. C. Mills. In the first set Mrs. Mills was within a point of winning on more than one occasion, but each time she missed that honor by an error on an easy smash, or because Miss Cassel thwarted her efforts on a shot down the side lines. This match was carried to three sets, Mrs. Mills rallying in the second set to win 6—3. Miss Cassel came back strong in the third set, however.

Mrs. Rawson Wood's experience gave her an advantage over Miss Barbara Hooker and she won at 6—4, 6—4. Miss Hooker at times forced Mrs. Wood at top speed but the cleverness of the more experienced player was too much for the young girl. Mrs. De Forest Candee played a splendid net game in her match with Mrs. Hartmann, and in the first set Mrs. Hartmann didn't get a point.

Miss Eleanor Goss's game was not extended in winning from Mrs. R. Earle. Mrs. Earle has been driving a Red Cross ambulance and and has not been in competition for more than two seasons. Because of lack of practice she did not display the cleverness with the racquet that she did a few seasons ago. Miss Goss was at the top of her game and drove a swifter ball than any of the contestants yesterday. Miss Helen Hooker fell before the superior playing of the more experienced player, Miss Wagner, while the third of the Hooker sisters, Miss Adelaide, was defeated by Mrs. Prichard.

The summaries:

First Round—Miss Claire Cassel defeated Mrs. D. C. Mills, 9—7, 3—6, 6—2; Mrs. Samuel Waring defeated Mrs. M. B. Huff, 6—4, 6—3; Mrs. Albert Humphries defeated Mrs. M. D. Strafin, 6—1, 6—2; Miss Marie Wagner defeated Miss Helen Hooker, 6—0, 6—1.

Second Round.—Miss Eleanora Sears defeated Mrs. E. H. Sohst, 6—1, 6—3; Mrs. De Forest Candee defeated Mrs. Ingo Hartmann, 6—0, 6—2; Mrs. B. Briggs won from Mrs. George Wrightman by default; Miss Adele Cragin defeated Miss Julie Brown, 6—4, 4—6, 6—4; Miss Molla Bjurstedt won from Mrs. E. B. Shattuck by default; Mrs. W. H. Prichard defeated Miss Adelaide Hooker, 6—0, 6—3; Miss Bessie Holden defeated Mrs. T. Cassebeer by default.

Second Round, Lower Half of Draw.—Mrs. Rawson Wood defeated Miss Barbara Hooker, 6—4, 6—4; Mrs. Edward Gott won from Miss Marion Zinderstein by default; Mrs. Edward Raymond defeated Mrs. Stuart Green by default; Miss Helene Pollack defeated Miss Gertrude Della Torre, 6—2, 6—2; Mrs. Percy Wilbourne defeated Mrs. Edward V. Lynch by default; Miss Eleanor Goss defeated Mrs. R. Earle, 6—1, 6—0; Miss Caroma Winne defeated Mrs. Chisholm, 6—2, 7—5.

SMALLWOOD IN GERMANY.

Yankee Pitcher Does Not Expect to be Back for Season.

The Yankees may be deprived of the services of one of their most promising pitchers next summer for the simple reason that he will be busy with the Army of Occupation in Germany. Walter Smallwood, who used to pitch for Newark, and who joined the Yankees last season, is the pitcher and he sent word to Secretary Harry Sparrow yesterday that the artillery company to which he belongs is being held in readiness to relieve part of the army now occupying a strip of the Rhineland.

Smallwood had finished at an artillery school just before the armistice was signed. He thought that was the end of his military career, but he now finds that it was just the beginning, for if present plans materialize he will be impressing the German populace with the importance of America's fighting strength just about the time when he expected to be flinging over a fast one at Babe Ruth at the Polo Grounds. Walter admits that it's a long cry from Germany to Harlem, and he is afraid he will not be among those present when the umpire yells "Play ball!"

TEX RICKARD IN TOWN.

Hopes to Hold Championship Bout in New York.

Tex Rickard, who will promote the championship bout between Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey on July 4, arrived in town last night from Texas and will confer today with Jack Kearns, manager of Dempsey, relative to arranging the match. Rickard said he had received many offers from cities anxious to have the bout, but had not decided on a place yet.

The promoter expressed the hope that he might stage the bout in New York if a boxing bill was passed by the Legislature. "I would prefer New York for several reasons, if it is possible to hold the affair here," said Rickard. "I have received many offers but there has been no guarantee that the places willing to take the match will be able to carry out their plans. I expect to meet Kearns today and talk over the details with him. There is no reason why I should not come to terms with Dempsey since he is anxious to have a try at the championship.

Poly Prep Takes Up Lacrosse.

The Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute has taken up lacrosse and has entered the field against several other Brooklyn schools. John O'Rourke has been engaged as coach, and Albert Dopple has been elected Captain. Poly already has four players who have played the game at other schools, so Coach O'Rourke expects to have his team ready for competition within a short time.

LANGDON FALTERS WITH VICTORY NEAR

Three Misplays Cost Him Game with Neustadt in National Class C Billiard Tourney.

J. R. Langdon came very close to upsetting the accepted calculations in the Class C amateur 18.2 billiard tournament at Lawler's Academy in Brooklyn last night, when he surprised the large gallery by carrying Joseph Neustadt close to defeat. Langdon, playing better balkline than he had previously shown in the tournament, led the promising Brooklyn player up to the thirty-second inning, when he held the lead by a score of 134 to 127.

With the game within his grasp, Langdon's good form suddenly deserted him, and he made three misses in succession, which gave Neustadt a chance to rally, and well-gathered clusters of 3, 13, and 7 pulled him out of the hole and sent him into the lead. He finally pulled the game out of the fire in the thirty-fifth inning by a score of 150 to 143. Langdon's play most of the way was consistent, and had it not been for his erratic work in the last three innings he would have carried off the most sensational game of the whole tournament.

Charles Steinbugler and J. Blaisdell played one of the closest matches of the tourney. Blaisdell had only four points to make to go out in the last inning when he missed an easy chance after scoring two points. Steinbugler took advantage of this break in the game, and in the last inning he rolled up an unfinished run of 11 and won the match 150 to 146. It was a nip-and-tuck game all the way, with both players showing flashes of good form. Steinbugler had an average of 3 15-45, while Blaisdell's average was 3 14-44.

In the other game last evening Sidney Brussel defeated Gus Gardner by a score of 150 to 108.

COLLEGE HOCKEY FEB. 8.

Harvard and Yale Meet on Ice in Brooklyn.

The first important competition to mark the resumption of college hockey will be the match between Harvard and Yale at the Brooklyn Ice Palace Saturday night, Feb. 8. Cold weather at Cambridge and New Haven has given the college sevens a chance to get in several practice games.

The Yale-Harvard hockey games before the war were among the most important college events of the indoor season. This match is the first of a series among the big three—Harvard, Yale, and Princeton.

Ollie O'Mara Signs Contract.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 3.—Ollie O'Mara, third baseman with the Brooklyn Baseball Club, who is visiting here, today signed for another year and mailed the contract to President Ebbets. O'Mara said the contract was the same as last year's. He will depart for Brooklyn next week, he said.

BOXING BILL UP IN SENATE TODAY

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 3.—Senator Leonard Gibbs of Buffalo will attempt to bring boxing back in this State tomorrow through the introduction of a bill calling for ten-round bouts with an official decision, and the supervision of the sport by a one-headed commission to be appointed by the Governor. Senator Gibbs intimated tonight that he might change his bill to provide for a supervising commission of three members.

The Gibbs bill has some chance of passage, according to legislative leaders tonight. Democrats will support it, and if the measure is passed, Governor Smith is expected to give his signature, which will make it a law.

The provision in the measure for a decision is regarded by followers of the game to be the wedge by which it can be successfully pushed through the Legislature.

Rendering a decision, according to Assemblyman Martin G. McCue of New York, is practically the only way that the boxing game can hope to find favor in the State. It is a provision, he believes, that will eliminate many of the objectionable features to boxing as conducted under the old Frawley law.

Howey Wins Handicap Race.

Joe Howey, with a handicap of ten yards, won the 300-yard handicap, which was the feature event of the members' games at the West Side Y. M. C. A., last night. E. H. Church was second and H. F. Davis third. The time was 0:36 4-5. In the other events Church won the 20-yard dash; G. E. Wilson and H. Beck were tied for first place in the 600-yard novice run, and E. Roesch won the 1,000-yard handicap, with O. Dolder second and H. Beck third.

LYNCH DEFEATS NOBLE.

New Yorker Wins Decision Over English Bantam Champion.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Joe Lynch, bantamweight, of New York, beat Tommy Noble, the British bantamweight, on points in twenty fast rounds here today. Lynch does not win the championship as the fight was not held at the National Sporting Club and as the Lonsdale belt was not at stake.

The American bantam fought a losing battle during the first nine rounds when he seemed to lack all knowledge of distance and fell easy prey to Noble's straight left, which was his best offensive weapon. In the tenth round Lynch got over several good punches, including a left hook, and Noble apparently was in trouble at the end of the round. Lynch carried off the honors in every round after that. The referee repeatedly cautioned Noble for hanging on and holding. Lynch had much the best of the infighting in the last half of the fight, doing telling damage to Noble's mid-section.

When they weighed in before the fight Lynch was under 120 pounds, the stipulated weight. Noble refused to be weighed and lost the forfeit which he had posted.

DEMPSEY ISSUES DENIAL.

There Was No Agreement Before Harrison Bout, He Says.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Feb. 3.—Jack Dempsey, potential opponent of Jess Willard in a proposed contest for the world's heavyweight pugilistic championship, today returned to this city and issued a denial to charges alleged to have been made in San Francisco last Saturday by Fred Fulton, that a fight between Dempsey and Fulton at Harrison Park, N. J., July 27 last, had been prearranged, and that Dempsey had "double-crossed" Fulton.

"There was no such agreement," he said. "There was no chance for such an agreement. Fulton and I had an argument before we left the dressing room, and we nearly came to blows then."

All-Hallows Defeats Hamilton.

Owners Are Better Guides Than Specifications

With each succeeding year the public appreciation of Overland cars becomes more prevalent as increasing numbers of people learn to know the ideal to which the vast Willys-Overland resources are dedicated. This ideal goes far beyond the production of an efficient Motor Car—even of an economically efficient motor car—it comprehends every factor, including Nation-Wide service facilities, that makes for the complete satisfaction of owners. Sales of the Overland Model 90 cars alone now number more than one hundred and fifteen thousand.

Sales of Men's Neckwear.

Although there are a number of manufacturers of men's neckwear who are complaining about the dullness of business due to the buyers holding off for lower prices, others express an entirely different opinion. It was said by some firms in this line that the sales this season have shown a decided increase over those of the previous year, especially on the higher-priced lines.

Line of Children's Hats.

A line of children's hats ranging in price from $48 to $144 per dozen, is one of the offerings, according to the bulletin of the Retail Millinery Association of America. Many of these little models in butter-color milan have an edge of navy milan. A little short-back poke is shown in a butter-color body with edged trim of brown or navy. Roll-brim effects are extensively displayed in a fine quality of solid milan in flexible shapes that can be arranged to suit the wearer. The victory colors of red and cherry are also featured.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Drift with Public Utility Issues Among Few to Show Strength—Railroad Views.

The stock market was devoid of influences to promote price movements yesterday, and consequently another indifferent session was added to the many which had gone before. At the end of the day there were more gains than declines, with the automobile stocks reflecting, as they have in other years, something of the attention drawn to the industry by the annual display of motor cars. In the bond department of the Stock Exchange a firm tone of Brooklyn Rapid Transit and Interborough Rapid Transit paper was noted, and some of the public utility stocks also gained ground. Consolidated Gas, People's Gas, and Twin Cities Rapid Transit shares advanced rather easily under light bidding. If the market as a whole had developed strength equivalent to these stocks and certain specialties to the accompaniment of equally moderate business, the story of the day would have been quite different, but as it was the progress of trading presented no indication of a broad increase of constructive interest.

The railroad group was lacking in response to the suggestions of the new Director General before the Senate committee for a continuation of Government control for five years. This was hardly surprising, inasmuch as Mr. Hines's arguments paralleled many of those which his predecessor in office held, and therefore were received as reiterations of former points. The Director General's views on the position of the railroads after five years of present control probably received more study in the financial district than anything else that he said before the committee. His contention that the carriers would be in more favorable condition for return to their owners after contemplated improvements and betterments had been completed by the Government is one over which the ideas of antagonists and protagonists of the plan divide sharply. Those who oppose a prolongation of the stipulated period of Federal management assert that the different properties might become so completely welded together that it would be exceedingly difficult to separate them into the original entities. Mr. Hines's statements in regard to the length of time necessary for forming a comprehensive program and his belief that serious difficulty would not follow a return to the old order without special legislation tended to take the edge off some of the fears recently expressed in financial circles and emphasized the degrees of opinion which maintain in respect to railroad handicaps. The public as well as the Senate committee received additional material in the Director General's observations, which may be worked over at length in the task of drawing up a program which will meet the railroad needs.

The money market continued easy, the bulk of call loans being placed at 4 per cent., with some going at a lower figure. New financing announced during the day included $10,000,000 secured 6 per cent. notes of the Philadelphia Company which are to be offered on a basis to yield the buyer about 7.30 per cent.

SHORT TERM NOTES

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Conversion of Liberty 3½s.

The Liberty 3½ per cent. bonds are closely related to the next Government loan, as they are the only issue now outstanding which has a conversion right. The law provides that they are convertible into the bonds of any succeeding loan during the period of the war. This would make the first Liberty issues convertible apparently into the forthcoming loan, except that there is this proviso, that the bonds cannot be converted into short-term notes. Hence if the new loan is a short-term issue at a higher rate of interest than 4¼ per cent., the 3½s might not be convertible. There is a question, however, whether the courts might not hold that a five-year note, say, at 5 per cent., was a bond, and there is some talk now that the next loan may not be put out until after the actual signing of peace, which would eliminate the 3½s from consideration. The Government undoubtedly will need money before the actual signing of peace, but it is held that this could be secured by the issuing of Treasury certificates. This solution might not be to the satisfaction of the holders of the 3½s, but it would relieve the Government of the possibility of having to pay any increased interest rate, which the new loan may carry on all of the outstanding 3½s.

John D. Ryan in Washington.

John D. Ryan, Director and former President of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company, is representing the copper producers at the conferences which are being held in Washington between the miners' delegates and Secretary of Labor Wilson. The conferences were under way last week, but at that time no representative of the producers had been invited to attend, a fact which was considered with some surprise in trade circles here. The announcement that the producers were preparing to put in force the sliding wage scale, which operated before the war, may have resulted in the producers having something to say about wage adjustments.

Auto Trade Optimistic.

There has been considerable activity in the automobile stocks recently, apparently caused by optimistic reports on the outlook for the future. Representative men in the industry expect to see the readjustment of the plants from a war to a peace basis brought about without great delay. Many companies even now are reporting that their production of automobiles is increasing rapidly. The expectation seems to be that there will be a large public demand for cars, partly owing to the curtailment in the industry during the last year, and partly because of the natural increase in the number of owners of automobiles with each succeeding year.

United Kingdom 5½s.

While no announcement has been made of the amount of United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland 5½ per cent. notes converted into the United Kingdom twenty-year bonds, it is understood that a big majority of the maturing notes have been converted. While the due date was past, the bankers did not adhere rigidly to it, and there was a rush yesterday to change the issue into the bonds. Figures were not obtainable as to the actual amount converted, chiefly because of this final effort. It is expected that a definite statement will be made within a day or two.

⁂

New South American Tonnage.

At a special meeting of the stockholders of the Oriental Navigation Company yesterday an increase in the concern's capital stock from $2,000,000 to $5,000,000 was authorized. It was reported after the meeting that the proceeds from the sale of the new stock would be used to purchase new tonnage for the South American trade.

⁂

Railroads Optimistic.

There have been recent indications in railroad circles, both locally and out of town, that the gloom surrounding the present situation of the carriers may disperse. Some railroad operators, and an occasional railroad banker, have expressed optimism as to the outcome of the deliberations of Congress on the problem of legislation for the return of the properties to private ownership.

⁂

Oil Exports Lower.

Preliminary figures issued by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce show that exports of mineral oils from the United States in December last decreased both in value and in volume. Total exports for the month are reported to have been 186,723,651 gallons, valued at $29,027,415, as compared with 219,172,535 gallons, valued at $30,962,637 in November. The figures also indicate that the volume of exports last December was the lightest in the course of the year. In March the previous low mark was reached, when 211,000,000 gallons were shipped. Shipments of gasolines and naphthas gained more than 6,500,000 gallons in December, and there was a gain in the amount of crudes exported amounting to approximately 4,400,000 gallons, but these were more than offset by losses in the amount of other mineral oils exported.

Plan to Salvage Wooden Ships.

One of the most difficult problems the United States Shipping Board has to solve in the near future is the one of disposing of the wooden ships which were constructed to take their place in America's bridge of ships across the Atlantic, without relegating them to the junk heap. It is understood that the Board has asked for the opinion of shipping experts, and that every effort will be made to salvage as many of the vessels as possible. Suggestions are known to have been made to the Shipping Board by practical shipping men that the engines should be removed from the hulls and the latter converted into barges. This the board, it is reported, is loth to do, and in view of the condition of the ships themselves there seems to be a consensus of opinion that the wooden ships will see ultimate service in rivers and other inland waters.

Shortage of Clean Money.

A number of the big trust companies and banks in the financial district report that calls from large depositors for clean, or new money are difficult to accommodate, and it was rumored in banking circles yesterday that the reason the usual accommodation was difficult was because the Government Printing Office in Washington is behind in its orders. The big demand for clean paper money comes from the restaurants and big hotels which make a point of making change only in new or clean bills.

⁂

Railroad Executives to Meet.

The Standing Committee of the Association of Railway Executives will meet in Washington on Friday to receive reports from different committees, and to decide upon further action regarding the legislation necessary to allow a return of the railroads of the country to a modified private control and operation under responsible Government regulation.

⁂

Cities Service Common Moves Up.

A buying movement in Cities Service common caused a sharp advance yesterday, carrying the stock as high as 318, a price higher than any recorded in some time. The issue closed at 310. The gain was accompanied by reports that the Directors again had under consideration a plan for dividing the shares into a greater number. This was later officially denied by H. L. Doherty, President of the company.

⁂

Steel Trade Conditions.

Apparently there is no degree of uniformity in the operations of the steel companies at the present time. Some of them, as for instance United States Steel, have been running many of their mills at between 80 and 90 per cent. of capacity. In the case of other companies the curtailment in operations has been more drastic. The tendency in steel centres now seems to be toward greater production. Certain companies, which only a short time ago were running at about 60 per cent. of capacity, are now approaching 75 per cent.

Kentucky Bank Merger.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 3.—A national bank merger, notable in financial circles in the South, formally was accomplished here today when the National Bank of Commerce, the American Southern National Bank and the National Bank of Kentucky became one institution and their respective former Presidents, James B. Brown, Earl S. Gwin, and Oscar Fenley, were elected respectively President, Vice President, and Chairman of the Board of Directors. Deposits of the combination total $42,000,000, with resources of $52,000,000. Business was continued under the name of the National Bank of Kentucky, which has been in existence since 1834.

Votes $35,000,000 Bond Issue.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Feb. 3.—The stockholders of the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad Company today authorized an increase in indebtedness by the issuance of $35,000,000 of debenture gold bonds. They also authorized the purchase of the Indianapolis & Frankfort Railroad for $6,000,000, which gives the company a direct line of its own between Louisville and Chicago. The contract with the Government for the operation of the company's railroad during the period of Federal control was not ready for action, and the stockholders adjourned to meet on Feb. 17, 1919, to take up that question.

Dependence on Investments

Almost all successful Americans hope sometime to be more or less free from business cares and to benefit in later years from their early thrift and foresightedness. Financial freedom can ordinarily be gained only through good investments.

We invite attention to the extraordinary income now available from many securities that can be depended upon for years to come. At the moment $1,000 can be made to buy as large an income as $1,500 would a few years ago.

FEDERAL BALANCE IS ALMOST NORMAL

BEHIND FOR FISCAL YEAR

Spent More Than a Quarter of a Billion More Than Received for Seven Months Since July 1.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—During the month of January the grand total disbursements of the Treasury Department were $3,613,020,900.32. In the same period, according to figures available today, the Government's receipts were $3,858,005,721.06. The excess of total receipts over total disbursements during the month was $244,984,820.74.

Including the figures for January the grand total disbursements of the Government for the present fiscal year—from July 1, 1918, to Jan. 31, 1919—aggregated $22,474,574,215.02, while the grand total receipts during that period were $22,214,608,491.87. For the seven months' period the disbursements exceeded the receipts by $259,966,723.15.

During the month of January the Government took in $43,141,373.49 from income and excess profits taxes and so far in the fiscal year of 1919 the Government has obtained $728,615,035.89 from income and excess profits taxes. This represented the largest section of its ordinary revenue. Miscellaneous internal revenue receipts during the seven months of the present fiscal year have aggregated $701,706,932.35. Customs brought in only $89,184,097.02, and the miscellaneous revenue amounting to more than a quarter of a billion dollars brought the total ordinary revenue—that derived from direct taxation—up to $1,804,322,815.62. The bulk of the receipts so far during the last seven months came from bond sales and the funds borrowed on treasury certificates of indebtedness.

The receipts for the first seven months of the present fiscal year, shown in comparison with receipts during the corresponding seven months of the fiscal year 1918, follow:

As dividends for the year amounted to $1,077,180, there was a deficit of $126,277 for 1918, against a surplus of $1,072,614 in the preceding year.

HEAVY BUYING IN COTTON.

Solution of Labor Difficulties Drives Prices Up from 28 to 75 Points.

After having been more or less unsettled, and the price trend irregular during the closing days of last week, or since the announcement of the cut in ocean freight rates, which sent the market up to new high levels for this movement, the cotton market yesterday turned strong on the satisfactory turn of the labor trouble which had been an instrument in the depression of the market last week, and scored gains ranging from 110 to 135 points. The outlook in the textile centres underwent a change over Sunday by the acceptance by the operatives of the forty-eight-hour pay for that amount of labor. At some points this difficulty has not been entirely settled, but on the whole general conditions have been bettered.

The Liverpool cables, indicating a strong market there, played a part in the enthusiasm displayed around the ring; cotton futures in that market, after opening 4 to 10 points higher than Friday's closing, maintained a firm undertone through the day and closed with a net advance of 28 English points on February, and from 57 to 75 points on the later months.

First prices here were 32 to 45 points higher than Saturday's closing, and on the favorable development in the labor situation this gain gradually broadened on a buying movement, which caught the professional shorts entirely unprepared for the buying which came from all quarters.

SHELVE OIL CODE.

Trade Journal Says Mexican Congress Postponed Action.

The proposed new petroleum code which came up during the recent session of the Mexican Congress was not pressed for adoption and the Congress adjourned without having taken any action, according to The Oil Trade Journal. The publication says: "This code, which had been proposed by President Carranza and his advisers, contained provisions reaffirming the confiscatory features of Article 27 of the Mexican Constitution, and if made into law meant the possible loss to the oil companies of 80 per cent. of their properties, in the opinion of those well qualified to know.

"It was this proposed legislation that caused the oil companies to break off negotiations with the Mexican officials.

May Redeem French Bonds Here.

Reports were current yesterday that the French Government two-year 5½ per cent. notes, which mature on April 1, would be paid off with money already in this country, the amount necessary being invested in Treasury certificates of indebtedness. This, it was said, precluded the possibility of the formation of a banking syndicate either to advance a loan to the French Government or to underwrite the conversion of the notes into the twenty-year 5½ per cent. bonds. The total issue involved was $100,000,000, and of this amount is was said that only about $2,000,000 had thus far been converted.

Nova Scotia Bank Report.

The eighty-seventh annual report of the Bank of Nova Scotia shows that net profits for the year ended with last December were $1,411,925 or 21.72 per cent. on the paid up capital, which amounts to $6,500,000. Quarterly dividends of 14 per cent. were paid during the year. The surplus fund amounts to $12,000,000, the highest proportion of surplus to capital of any Canadian bank, and there is a total of $749,694 in undivided profits account.

Speedometer Profits Cut.

The Stewart-Warner Speedometer Corporation in its annual report for the year ended Dec. 31, 1918, shows net profits, after expenses, depreciation, and Federal taxes, of $1,594,665, a decrease of $266,109 from the preceding year. The earnings are equivalent to $15.94 a share on the $10,000,000 capital stock, as compared with $18.60 a share in 1917.

URGES A WORLD TAX TO MEET WAR DEBTS

Crespi Would Have Neutrals Help Allies to Pay What Enemies Cannot.

PLANS TO POOL INDEMNITIES

And to Distribute Shares Proportionately to Sacrifices—Provision for a Sinking Fund.

PARIS, Feb. 2, (Associated Press.)—A universal tax, the proceeds of which would be put into a common fund along with the indemnities Germany should be made to pay, is proposed by Signor Crespi of the Italian delegation to the Peace Conference, in the proposition he has made for the establishment of a "single financial front" for the Allies. The tax would furnish interest on that portion of the debts of the Allies which Germany had not paid and provide a sinking fund for ultimately canceling the debts.

After declaring that the Central Powers must compensate the Allies for the damage suffered during the war, Signor Crespi said:

"All the Allies have suffered immense losses, and they must all benefit from the indemnities which the enemy is to pay. Each one should receive in proportion to the effort it has made. Thus, smaller States that have spent more than larger ones in comparison to their wealth ought to receive larger indemnities in proportion. Absolute fairness ought to be preserved in the division of indemnities.

"The simplest way to carry out the actual distribution would be to put the entire fund into a common pool which could be periodically apportioned among the different nations. The fund should be augmented by taxes of a universal character levied on all States, enemy, allied, or neutral, the last named having benefited from the sacrifices made by the Allies. Such taxes might be levied on exports and imports, and also on coal and raw materials. It seems to me only fair that countries which have benefited, and even grown rich, through the suffering and sacrifice of the Allies should be made to help compensate the Allies.

"The enemy should be forced to pay as large a sum as possible of the Allies' debts. The international tax would furnish interest on the rest, and a sinking fund for paying it off eventually. In my opinion the enemy ought to be allowed to pay, not only in gold, but in raw materials and finished products. Part of their debt might be covered by bonds, which they would take up gradually in exchange for goods delivered to the Allies.

"The supply of raw materials is another important question to be considered. If they are furnished to enemy countries at the same time and at the same prices as to the Allies, the Austrians, and Germans, whose industrial plants have not been destroyed and who are ready to return to a peace basis in their production more rapidly than the Allies, would reach foreign markets more quickly and under better conditions than would be possible for the Allies. This we must avoid at all costs. I therefore propose that distribution of raw materials be internationally controlled in such a way that allied countries may be served before enemy countries.

"Another important question involved is that of the length of the working day. A day's labor in Germany before the war was very long. If it continues so now they will be able to produce more cheaply than we can. Therefore, international laws on this question have become essential."

Anaconda Copper Output Drops.

A sharp falling off in production is shown in the January report of the Anaconda Copper Mining Company, the amount of the red metal mined being only 15,900,000 pounds as compared with 21,900,000 pounds in December of last year. Last month's production was the lowest since September, 1917, and represents a falling off of 17,400,000 pounds from the output of 33,300,000 pounds in April, 1916, the record month in the company's history. In May of last year the production of the company was 28,400,000 pounds, this being the highest of any month of 1918. Production now is on the basis of about 45 per cent. of capacity.

Internal War Loan.

CABLE SUITS ADVANCED.

Supreme Court Advances Hearing on Control Litigation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—The United States Supreme Court today advanced to March 3 the hearing of arguments in the suits the Mackay Company has brought in an endeavor to force Postmaster General Burleson to relinquish that company's cables and return them to private ownership. There are two suits upon the calendar, one brought by the Commercial Cable Company, and the other by the Commercial Pacific Cable Company, both companies being subsidiaries of the Mackay Company, which is the holding organization for thirty-nine companies. Each action was brought against Postmaster General Burleson and Newcomb Carlton, President of the Western Union, now assisting Mr. Burleson in the Federal control of the cables.

The advancing of the suits was upon application to the court by agreement of the cable companies and the Post Office authorities. Neither the cable company nor the Government made appearance in court through attorneys, and a formal written order was handed down by the court announcing the date, which will be the first day the Supreme Court will sit again. Ordinarily without being advanced, the suits probably could not have been reached on the court calendar in less than eighteen months.

The offering of Philadelphia Company three-year 6 per cent. notes will probably be made today or tomorrow at 96½ to yield more than 7.20 per cent.

The report which covers twenty-seven pages was made public yesterday when the Stock Exchange Committee, at a special meeting, acted favorably on the application. At the same time the committee recommended the listing of $1,560,000 first and refunding mortgage 5 per cent. twenty-five-year bonds of the Northern States Power Company.

Bergen

THIS well fortified seaport of Norway has an unusually mild temperature for so northern a latitude. Also a heavy rainfall, averaging 72 inches. It presents a most picturesque appearance from the sea. Its principal industries are shipbuilding, barrel making and fishing. In March and April several hundred vessels loaded with fish and other commodities may be seen in the harbor at one time. As a Norwegian port, Bergen is next to Christiania in commercial importance. Up to the end of 1917 Norway had lost by submarines and in other ways 714 ships, aggregating 1,100,000 tons. This is a great loss for such a small maritime country. Bergen's total imports in 1912 were valued at £4,700,000, against £5,000,000 in 1913. This was about 15% of Norway's total imports. Its exports are about two-thirds its imports—wooden goods and fish goods constituting over one-half. There is keen demand in Norway for fine imported shoes, the demand for the coarser grades being supplied at home.

A PERFORMANCE AND A PROMISE

Common Stock

Earned during the past year $61.67 on the outstanding issue. The present price of $310-$313 seems absurdly low. In the last eight years Cities Service Company, as an operator of Public Utility properties and one of the country's largest producers of Crude Oil, has advanced earnings on its common stock from $8 a share in 1905 to the present large return. And it is only beginning to grow. This group of properties, distributed through twenty-three States and operating also in Canada and Mexico, stands upon the threshold of still greater successes.

The common stock should be bought now for ultimate large profits. Will pay 12% stock dividend and 6% cash dividend in 1919—more next year.

FUR AUCTION HERE BRINGS HIGH PRICES

Advance of More Than 20 Per Cent. in Most Pelts on Opening Day at Sale.

DEMAND CAUSES SURPRISE

Buyers from Three Continents Bid for $6,000,000 Worth of Raw Skins.

The prices for furs prevailing yesterday at the opening of a six-day auction of $6,000,000 worth of pelts by the New York Fur Auction Sales Corporation at the Masonic Temple, Sixth Avenue and Twenty-third Street, were said to indicate that furs would remain in the premier luxury class during the country's readjustment period.

Yesterday's offerings included 227 Wolverine, 641 Fisher, 368 Russian sable, 7,937 beaver, and 547 silver fox skins, for which the receipts were approximately $750,000. It was found impossible, due to lack of time, to dispose of all of the silver fox skins, and the balance left from yesterday will be the first offerings to go under the hammer today.

The upward movement of prices at yesterday's sale came as a surprise to even the most optimistic of the shippers, particularly in view of the large offerings disposed of last week, when the total sales at the auction in St. Louis ran close to $10,000,000. Prices obtained yesterday were said by officials of the fur sales corporation to have exceeded those at St. Louis for similar goods, while in practically all instances surpassing price levels established at the sale held in New York last October. The prices were held to be all the more remarkable, because, with the war ended, normal importations of fur skins may be expected soon.

Advances recorded yesterday over prices obtained in October were officially stated to be as follows:

Wolverine, 20 per cent.; Fisher, 25 per cent.; Russian sable, 25 per cent.; beaver, 15 per cent.; silver fox (fresh, clear skins,) 20 per cent., and silver fox (stale and low-grade skins,) unchanged.

The range of prices for the day were: Wolverine, $4.50 to $17.75 per skin; Fisher, $25, to $100; Russian sable, $45 to $275; beaver, $4.50 (cubs) to $27.25 for the large skins, and silver fox, $75 to $640.

Among the buyers yesterday of silver fox skins were C. G. Gunther, H. Jaeckel & Sons, J. Clugman, New York; Mandel Bros., Chicago, and Goetze Frèes, Paris. Buyers were present from all sections of the United States, Europe, South America, and other distant points, most of trade factors making purchases. Some of those who had come for "bargains" left after the morning session, convinced that low prices would not develop at this stage of the auction.

Experts who viewed the merchandise in the warehouse prior to the sale asserted yesterday that the silver fox collection was unusually good, with fewer stale skins than ordinarily found at sales, while the beaver collection was described as especially rich in Alaska and Northwest skins. Russian sable offerings were described as "good," with some Mongolian and Chinese skins, a large proportion of the collection being Siberian and Russian skins. Russian skins, it was stated, were just beginning to make their appearance in the American market after having been practically excluded during the four years of war.

In addition to the American buyers present yesterday, a large contingent of Canadians were on hand, together with V. Victorson, London; Manuel Gonsales, Mexico City, and Felix Gluckman, Paris. W. W. Felter made the trip from Fort Yukon, Alaska, to attend the auction here. Among those from St. Louis attending the sale were Marcus Harris and G. L. Harris. Chicago had a strong delegation present.

Following a conference held last night at the McAlpin between a committee of employers and workers, it was stated that the threatened strike in the New York fur industry probably would not take place. According to available information, the manufacturers agreed to meet the workers' demand for a 44-hour week and a wage increase. The representatives of the unions conceded the right of manufacturers to hire and dismiss employes without review by the union. Full pay for legal holidays was also agreed upon.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

There was a firm tone to values at the close of the market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Final prices, particularly in the steel and kindred stocks, showed substantial gains. The general market tone was improved as the result of a fairly active demand in the final hour. Earlier losses were recovered in the rally.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

That the real estate market is in the boom both from an investment and speculation standpoint was very evident from the unusual number of large deals closed yesterday.

It was one of the busiest days the market has experienced in many months, and among the more important transactions was the sale of a $2,000,000 block front of apartments on the heights, the purchase of the Victoria Hotel property at 155 West Forty-seventh Street, by the Salvation Army, and a $700,000 sale in the Times Square section. The Bronx, Brooklyn, and suburban markets were equally active.

Riviera Apartments, Held at $2,000,000, Sold to Dasc Realty Company.

One of the largest recent deals in the Washington Heights section was closed yesterday when the Riviera Apartments, occupying the block front in Riverside Drive from 156th to 157th Street, was sold to the Dasc Realty Company for about $2,000,000.

The property consists of a thirteen-story modern fireproof apartment house containing 150 apartments, and showing a gross annual rental of about $200,000.

It was built by the sellers, the Riviera Realty Company, several years ago on land purchased from the Sound Realty Company. Slawson & Hobbs sold the property through Sonn Brothers.

$700,000 Seventh Avenue Corner Bought for Large Building.

By far the largest Seventh Avenue deal, just below the Times Square section, that has been made in many months has been closed in the purchase of a large plot at the southwest corner of Thirty-ninth Street by Herman D. Goodstein, representing a large corporation, which will erect a big building for its occupancy on the site. The property consists of nine old houses at 528 to 536 Seventh Avenue and 200 to 212 West Thirty-ninth Street, fronting 107 feet on the avenue and 146 feet on the street. It was sold for various owners through Alfred C. Marks. The holding price for the parcels represented about $700,000. With the completion of the proposed building, the investment will aggregate nearly $2,500,000.

The property is opposite the rear of the Metropolitan Opera House and St. Chrysostom's Episcopal Church, the latter on the northwest corner of Thirty-ninth Street. On the street the plot is separated by a twenty-foot house bought to protect the light of the adjoining twelve-story Pictorial Review Building.

John Jacob Astor of London Files Plans for $1,500,000 Wall Street Building.

Plans were filed yesterday for the erection of a thirty-one-story office building at 8 to 12 Wall Street, the estimated cost being given at $1,500,000. The property, which is owned by John J. Astor of London, has a frontage of 66 feet on the north side of Wall Street, running back to a depth of 98 feet. The architect is Charles E. Birge. The building when completed will be 440 feet high.

Joseph F. Cullman Adds to His Downtown Holdings.

The Townsend estate sold to Joseph F. Cullman 72 and 74 Beaver Street, corner of Hanover Street, one of the most desirable sites in the new marine insurance district. The plot contains 2,500 square feet, with frontages of 63 feet on Beaver Street and 39 feet on Hanover.

With the exception of a property on Pearl Street owned by Charles E. Rushmore, the balance of the block is owned and improved by the buildings of the New York Cotton Exchange and the New York Coffee Exchange.

In close proximity to this building is the Seligman Building, recently purchased by Wilcox, Peck & Hughes, the former Delmonico Building purchased by insurance interests and renamed the Marine Building, and the homes of Chubb & Co., the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, the National City Bank, and Brown Brothers.

Mr. Cullman paid all cash for the property, and appointed the Charles F. Noyes Company, which negotiated the sale, as agent, with instructions to cancel all leases on May 1 next, at which time the property will be improved with a new structure to be used exclusively for marine insurance underwriting. The property was valued at about $175,000.

TEXTILE WORKERS OUT AT LAWRENCE

Demand 54 Hours' Pay for 48 Hours' Labor — Day Reduced Elsewhere.

SOME MILLS CLOSE DOWN

Lack of Orders and Raw Materials Given as Reason in Case of Up-State Factories.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Feb. 3.—The first day of the strike in the textile mills of this city passed off quietly. Pickets posted about all the plants confined themselves to shouting "Fifty-four hours' pay for forty-eight hours' work!" and handing to workers cards bearing the figures "54—48."

Members of the General Committee of textile workers estimated that 75 per cent. of the 30,000 operatives went on strike. Mill agents placed the number of strikers at different plants at various percentages, ranging from 10 to 40.

The four mills of the American Woolen Company were practically closed in the afternoon. Other mills remained open throughout the day, and most of them carried on a reduced amount of work. Late in the day the agent of the Everett Mills, employing 4,000 operatives, announced that the mills would be shut down tomorrow for an indefinite time. All the other mill agents said that their plants would open at the usual time tomorrow.

No attempts at conferences between representatives of the strikers and the manufacturers were made today. The strike leaders reiterated their determination to accept nothing less than a forty-eight-hour week with fifty-four hours' pay. Some of the manufacturers expressed the opinion that after a day or two the workers would gradually filter back into the mills.

Strike Not Sanctioned.

BOSTON, Feb. 3.—Operatives in textile mills in many sections of New England were working today on a basis of forty-eight hours a week, a reduction of six hours from the schedule which had long been in effect. In most cases the reduction in working hours had been agreed to by the manufacturers with the stipulation that the operatives should receive forty-eight hours' pay and time and a half for overtime work.

Frank H. Carpenter, general agent of the American Woolen Company, in a statement issued today regarding the situation at Lawrence, said:

"The situation is being handled to the entire satisfaction of the company by the Lawrence agents and their reports to us are most encouraging. Of course we regret the fact that Lawrence should again be picked for an industrial strike demonstration, particularly as the American Woolen Company's agents in that city were the first to answer the demands of the workers and grant fully their original demands.

Jamestown Mills Shut Down.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 3.—Two thousand men and women employed in Jamestown textile industries are out of work. The large mill of William Broadhead & Sons and the Jamestown Worsted Mills, owned by the Broadhead interests, shut down at noon today, following similar action on Saturday by the Empire and Acme Worsted Mills. The manufacturers state that they have closed indefinitely because of lack of orders and trouble in obtaining raw materials.

ALBANY, Feb. 3.—Between 4,000 and 5,000 employes of twenty-three textile plants at Albany, Cohoes, and vicinity villages were idle today. When they reported for work they were greeted with printed notices informing them the plants were closed because of "lack of orders and insufficient work." The employes' representatives said the closing of the plants was in reality a lock-out, as, they declared, never before in the history of the mills had so many found it necessary to close simultaneously.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Feb. 3.—Notices were posted today in the shoe factory of the W. H. McElwain Manufacturing Company in this city, announcing that beginning Feb. 10 the plant would be operated forty-eight hours a week instead of fifty as at present. There will be no reduction in pay for the 6,000 operatives.

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 3.—Every union man in Seattle will walk out on a general strike at 10 A. M. next Thursday, according to an announcement issued today by a publicity committee named at a meeting yesterday of representatives of 110 unions.

FUR STRIKE AVERTED.

Paterson Silk Manufacturers Submit to War Labor Board.

The threatened strike of more than 6,000 New York fur workers was averted last night at a conference between representatives of the Associated Fur Manufacturers and Morris Kaufman of the Fur Workers' Union. The settlement, however, does not affect fur workers in independent shops and those of the Manufacturers' Mutual Protective Association, who are expected to strike at 10 o'clock today.

The settlement provides for the 44-hour week, elimination of the slack season price, a minimum scale throughout the year and an increase of 40 per cent. on the minimum scale. The manufacturers are prohibited from giving finishing work to contractors without sanitary certificates, and the workers shall receive pay for all legal holidays.

Officials of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union yesterday declared that more than 10,000 strikers against the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association were on the picket lines yesterday. Benjamin Schlesinger, President of the union, said an agreement had been made with the Wholesale Dress Manufacturers' Association under which about 8,000 workers would return to work provided the general assembly of manufacturers ratified the agreement today.

In Paterson last night, it was declared, that the strike of 27,000 silk workers there would be settled probably within a week. The manufacturers met yesterday and announced that a committee had been appointed to submit the entire question to the War Labor Board. Louis Magnat, Chairman of the Workers' Eight-Hour Day Committee, said this move promised an early settlement. The 27,000 workers on strike represent more than 90 per cent. of those employed in the industry. About 2,000 workers employed in smaller mills have won the forty-seven hour week and were at work yesterday.

TUBE TIEUP IS SPREADING

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, Feb. 5.—The Daily Chronicle says it understands that a further meeting of the Cabinet was held last night to consider the labor situation, and that as a result the Government contemplates taking immediate action, the nature of which is not specified.

In the confused record of yesterday's labor developments one new complication was averted. The Railway Clerks' Association secured "recognition" from the Government, and the threatened strike by its members, which would have dislocated traffic on the big main-line railway systems, has been averted.

On the other hand, the London tube strike extended to the District Railway, not because the District Railway employes decided to cease work, but because a strike by a comparatively few electrical workers at the system's generating station shut off the electric power. The case is one more illustration of the enormous power wielded under the conditions of modern industry by very small groups of workers.

The tube railways normally carry about 500,000 passengers daily. This vast public is deprived of transit without warning because a few hundred workmen decided that it should be so, and the same thing applies to the district railway, which carries some hundreds of thousands of people every day.

The strike, which has paralyzed London's elaborate underground railway system, is not supported by the men's principal organization, the National Union of Railway Men, but has the support of the Associated Society of Locomotive Engineers and Firemen, which has 4,300 members. The Secretary of this society has declared that unless "more honorable treatment" is given a national strike on all the railways will be called in a few hours.

One of the complaints made by the members of the society is that some of the electric railway systems affected by the strike are attempting to relieve the situation by substituting steam trains, and it was stated that all steam engine drivers on these lines are being called out.

Electricians' Demand Refused.

The threat of the Electrical Trades Union to close down London factories and shut off the capital's street lighting seems nearer fulfillment. An interview between the men's deputation and the Ministry of Labor is said to have been unsatisfactory, and an announcement issued by that Ministry in reply to the electrical engineers' demand for Government intervention in the Glasgow, Belfast, and London disputes declares that the circumstances do not justify such a course of action.

There is, however, a brighter side of the question in the attitude taken by the Electrical Power Engineers' Association, which numbers some 700 members in London and about 3,000 in the whole kingdom. This body unanimously passed a resolution expressing the view that the proposed strike was a blow aimed at trade unionism and the Government and calling on all its engineers to do their utmost to maintain the supply of electricity.

An official of the society said he was confident that its members, if they could secure sufficient labor, could keep all of London's power stations going.

It is stated that in the event of a general strike of electrical workers steps have been taken by the authorities to maintain the postal, telegraph, and telephone systems. A Government official pointed out that under the defense of the realm regulations the authorities had power which would enable them to maintain a fairly efficient service.

In the event of a breakdown in the transport system the Ministry of Food has already made arrangements to insure adequate distribution of food supplies. A host of motor lorries is standing by to fill the breach immediately on any serious disorganization of traffic.

London's latest strike, that of the waiters and other hotel servants to

German Societies Organized to 'Save Kaiser' from Allies

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 4.—Societies to "save the Kaiser" from being handed over to the Allies are being organized in Germany, according to the Volks Zeitung of Osnabruck.

Eitel Friedrich, second son of the former Emperor, is said to have written a letter to Premier Ebert demanding that the Government assist in the plan.

COSTIGAN DEMOTED ON ENRIGHT ORDER

Foe of the Vicious Reduced from East Side Inspector to Captain in Beach Street.

NO SURPRISE TO FRIENDS

"Honest Dan" in Disfavor, They Say, Ever Since Hylan Administration Took Office.

Police Inspector Daniel E. Costigan was relieved from duty as head of the First Inspection District yesterday afternoon and assigned, with the reduced rank of Captain, to the command of the Beach Street Station, Manhattan. The chief reason ascribed by Commissioner Enright for his action in demoting Costigan was that he was compelled to do so by the police budget.

"I have one inspector over the number allowed by the budget, and that is one of the reasons I have reduced Costigan," was the only comment he would make.

No Surprise, It Is Said.

Following the announcement of Costigan's reduction, it was said that there was rejoicing on the east side among gamblers and bookmakers. Among those familiar with police politics it was said that his demotion caused no surprise, as it has been known for a long time that he has been in disfavor with the present régime. Costigan, it was said, has long been noted for his independence, and that ever since the Hylan administration took office it was expected that efforts would be made to force him into the background.

One recent incident mentioned as having aroused animosity against Costigan was told by his friends. This had to do with a meeting of Inspectors and Captains called by Deputy Commissioner Frederick A. Wallis several weeks ago, ostensibly to discuss plans for raising funds for the Victory Arch.

According to Costigan's friends, Commissioner Wallis left the meeting in charge of Chief Inspector John Daly. The business for which the meeting had been called having been transacted, Inspector Daly suggested that it was an opportune time to take up the matter of a wedding present for Commissioner Enright, who had just been married.

Inspector Daly, it was said, told the assembled police officers that while he supposed some of the men might desire to make individual gifts, still there might be others who favored the idea of making one gift in their behalf. He asked, it was said, that if there was any objection, for those opposed to stand up. Costigan, it was said, was the only one among the Inspectors and Captains to arise. And after an exchange of glares, it was reported that the Chief Inspector said: "It seems to be unanimous."

After the meeting adjourned, according to Costigan's friends, several of those present said they would have liked to follow his example, but were afraid to do so, and congratulated him on his stand. Commissioner Enright himself, however, vetoed the police gift plan on his return to the city from his honeymoon.

District Attorney's Protest.

Costigan's vice squad gained fame throughout the city for its work in scotching various forms of unlawful doings in the Tenderloin, on the east side, and elsewhere. Then the vice squad was dispersed, and attention was first drawn to this by District Attorney Swann. Mr. Swann also conferred with Commissioner Enright on the subject. He said at that time that the demotion of the members of the vice squad, coming when it did, was "a very unfortunate incident." He said he wanted Costigan, and that he stood squarely back of him.

"If Costigan is provided with a roving commission," District Attorney Swann said, "no Inspector of Police will be able to give immunity to any gambler and no one—corrupt police official or gambler—will know at what minute to expect a call from him. Still, I am not going to assume that anybody is wrong, but that the only difference of opinion is in regard to method."

At one time during the war Edward N. Hurley, Chairman of the United States Shipping Board, made a direct request to Mayor Hylan for the services of Inspector Costigan. Mayor Hylan referred the request to Commissioner Enright. Inspector Costigan filed application for leave of absence and took his annual vacation, believing that his request would be granted. He went to Washington, where he spent his vacation in the office of the Shipping Board working out a police protection system for the shipyards that were turning out vessels to help win the war. On his return to New York Costigan was refused the leave of absence sought.

Costigan won the sobriquet of "Honest Dan" many years ago because of his fearlessness. He joined the police force in 1889. He figured prominently in the Rosenthal murder investigation and other big police cases. He is 51 years old, married, and lives at 990 Ogden Avenue, the Bronx.

Other changes announced yesterday by Commissioner Enright were as follows:

Inspector William Boettler, transferred from the Tenth Inspection District to the First District, made vacant by Costigan's demotion; Captain Michael J. Reidy of the Beach Street Station, transferred to the Sixth Avenue Station, Brooklyn; Captain Bernard J. Hayes of the Sixth Avenue Station, which is in Commissioner Enright's home district, made Acting Inspector and placed in command of the Tenth Inspection District.

Berlin Rejects Terms to Which the Rebels Assented and Sends an Ultimatum.

BERLIN, Feb. 3, (via Copenhagen.)—The People's Commissioners left for Weimar this morning accompanied to the railway station by thousands of their supporters and a guard of honor. Premier Ebert thanked the soldiers for defending Berlin so effectively, expressing the hope that in the absence of the Commissioners they would preserve order in the capital.

Die Rote Fahne, which had been suppressed since Spartacus week, again appeared in Berlin this morning in its old form. It declares that there will not be any coups in the capital for some weeks, perhaps months, until the proletariat has been convinced that only when allied with the Spartacides and the Soldiers and Workers' Councils will it be able to resume the dictatorship in Germany.

Until that time the paper begs its partisans to desist from riots, but it openly threatens the Government with sanguinary revenge and general terror as soon as the Spartacus element has recovered its strength. The proletariat, it sets forth, need not be afraid that events in Weimar during the next few months will be allowed to decide Germany's fate.

Weimar Soviet Subdued.

The latest reports from Weimar are that the situation is now completely in the Government's hands. It is stated that only fifteen men were disarmed by the local Soldiers' Council there and that two officers were arrested. When members of the Soldiers' Council tried the same coup on a company of 200 men arriving at the station they were driven off and their barracks surrounded. The choice was then given to them either to fight or deliver their arms to the Government troops.

After some deliberation the Council decided on the latter course and was then expelled from its own quarters, which were taken possession of by the Government troops. One young Spartacide, who had assumed control of the District Governor's office, was arrested.

It may be mentioned that a few weeks ago several members of the Weimar Soldiers' Council, taught the former Grand Duke Wilhelm a lesson. Wilhelm had come to visit Weimar from his country seat in the neighborhood one sunny day. As he passed

$200,000,000,000 Estimated as Direct Cost of the War

LONDON, Feb. 4, (British Wireless Service.)—The direct cost of the war is estimated at £40,000,000,000 in a special article in The Daily Telegraph today. The author estimates the indirect cost of diminished trade and of financial disturbance at £50,000,000,000.

"Vast sums," he says, "have been used for sheer destruction and vast public debts have been incurred for which there is no corresponding property. Throughout two-thirds of the world the work of useful production has been suspended during four years and its place has been taken by the slaughter of human lives and the annihilation of accumulated wealth."

PALMER SLATED TO ENTER CABINET

TODD ALSO IN THE RACE

But President Is Said to Have Decided Against Appointing a Southerner.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—There is every probability that A. Mitchell Palmer will be nominated by President Wilson to be Attorney General in succession to Thomas Watt Gregory, who recently resigned.

The statement was made in a well-informed quarter tonight that the selection had narrowed down to Mr. Palmer and George Carroll Todd, who is now assistant to the Attorney General, with every indication that Mr. Palmer would receive the appointment from the President.

Mr. Palmer, who was formerly a member of Congress from Pennsylvania, has been a member of the Executive Committee of the Democratic National Committee since 1912, and was mentioned for Attorney General when President Wilson formed his original Cabinet. At that time it was understood that the President was ready to appoint Mr. Palmer to be Secretary of War, a post which Mr. Palmer did not care to take. In the Spring of 1915 the President appointed Mr. Palmer to be a Judge of the United States Court of Claims, which he held until the Fall of 1917, when the President appointed Mr. Palmer to be Alien Property Custodian.

For a while Sherman Leland Whipple of Boston was considered for the appointment, but it was said tonight that he has been virtually eliminated, and that Mr. Palmer would probably receive the appointment, his closest contender at this time being Mr. Todd, who has been Attorney General Gregory's candidate for the position.

Mr. Todd is a native of Virginia, and has been identified with the work of the Department of Justice since 1902. For three years after that date he was with the department here, engaged in proceedings under the Anti-Trust act. He moved to New York in 1905, and was later special assistant to the Attorney General in proceedings under the Sherman act and the commodities clause of the Interstate Commerce act against the anthracite railroads, also in proceedings leading to the final decree in the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific merger case.

President Wilson appointed Mr. Todd as assistant to the Attorney General in August, 1903, and he has been the "trust buster" of the present Administration, in charge, under the Attorney General, of the enforcement of the Sherman law.

At the outset of the consideration of a successor for Mr. Gregory it was decided that a Southern man would not be appointed, and this is understood to be a bar to the serious consideration of Swagar Sherley of Kentucky, Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, who was strongly recommended for the Attorney Generalship.

Ford People Say France Wont Resell Cars At Big Profit Nor Let Them Import Metals

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.
Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—The Ford Automobile Company publishes an advertisement in a Paris newspaper containing correspondence showing that through the Minister of Reconstruction the French Government had declined to sell back at a large profit the Ford cars sold to the Government or permit the importation of material that would enable the Ford Company to resume manufacturing at the plants established at Bordeaux and Levallois-Perret before the war. The Ford Company asserts that this action prevents the resumption of business amounting to more than 32,000,000 francs.

The matter is important as bearing on the attitude of the French Government toward foreign concerns, which have established or desire to establish manufacturing plants in France.

The Ford Company, according to the letters it sent the Reconstruction Minister, offered to buy back about 4,500 cars which had never seen service. About 3,500 of these had not been delivered from the company's works at Bordeaux and 1,000 others were delivered but were lying in automobile parks where, the company says, they were exposed to damage from the weather.

For these automobiles the French Government agreed to pay 1,375 francs ($375) each. The company offers to buy them back under these conditions: Payment of the price paid by France plus 187 francs, covering the cost of transportation, plus 70 per cent. ad valorem, plus the 10 per cent. luxury tax which the ultimate purchaser would be obliged to stand.

It was also suggested by the company that it would sell the cars for 6,500 francs ($1,300) each. The company pointed out in a letter to the Minister of Reconstruction that in addition to saving the cost of storage the French Government would receive nearly 9,000,000 francs in customs and luxury taxes, and more than 8,000,000 francs, paid by France for the cars, giving France a very large profit. In addition the company says French automobile dealers would make a gross profit of 5,850,000 francs.

Other advantages cited are that the acceptance of the offer would give continuous employment to a large number of demobilized soldiers, thus putting 4,000,000 francs into circulation.

In the advertisement the company says: "The interests of French citizens seem to be sacrificed to the whims and pedantries of bureaucratic officials and vested monopolies."

The company contends that the release for sale or resale to the Ford Company of these automobiles is necessary to help overcome the existing embarrassing transportation situation. These cars, it is asserted, are not needed for military purposes.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 4.—Probability of a further postponement of the trial of the $1,000,000 libel suit brought against The Chicago Daily Tribune by Henry Ford was strengthened today by the minute detail in which documentary evidence was introduced in argument on the motion of the newspaper for a change of venue. The defendant contends that the prominence of Mr. Ford would tend to bias prospective jurors if the case, which is set for Feb. 10, is tried in Detroit.

The greater part of two days have been consumed by attorneys for The Tribune in presenting their case, and much documentary evidence remains to be introduced. Two motions by the plaintiff, one requiring presentation of the files of The Tribune for the period of the war, and another permitting the taking of depositions throughout the country, also are to be heard.

Several witnesses testified today as to the extent of the Ford Motor Company business in Detroit, and editors of Detroit newspapers were questioned in an effort to show that not all publications here are favorable to the plaintiff.

Tchitcherin Complains Invitation to Meeting Is Not Direct and "Official."

HELSINGFORS, Feb. 4.—A decree issued by the Central Soviet of Moscow has called to the colors all men between the ages of 29 and 45 years.

The men will be ordered to prosecute the war in case the proposed conference on the Island of Prinkipo fails.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—The Russian Soviet Governmnet will take "all measures" to bring about an agreement with the Entente, according to a wireless message sent out from Moscow on Sunday.

It complains that the Bolshevist authorities have received no "formal invitation" to Princes' Islands conference, the only word regarding it being a wireless message "containing press news." The text of the message, which was addressed "To Berlin, Paris, and everywhere," reads:

"M. Tchitcherin, the People's Commissary for Foreign Affairs, has made it known to the College of Peoples' Commissaries that he had received a wireless message containing press news, according to which the Entente at Paris had proposed to the different Governments of Russia a conference at the Princes' Islands. The People's Commissary added that no formal invitation to the Conference had arrived from the Entente. All measures will be taken to bring about an agreement with the Entente."

President Wilson had nothing to do with the transmission of the reply of M. Longuet to Bolshevist Foreign Minister Tchitcherin concerning Bolshevist participation in the proposed Princes' Islands conference, according to M. Longuet's newspaper Populaire. M. Longuet had received a semi-official statement from the Bolshevist Government concerning the conference, and the French Government refused to permit the use of its wireless in sending a reply.

"The refusal of the French Government," says the article, "to allow us to communicate freely with Russia compelled us to use another form of transmission without being compelled to undergo the censorship which we combat.

"Whose fault is it if a press wireless is sent from Paris to New York that it is also received by all wireless stations, including that at Tsarkoe Selo?"

David R. Francis, American Ambassador to Russia, who was recently summoned from London to Paris by Paul Dutasta, Secretary of the Peace Conference, and has held conferences here with Secretary of State Lansing and General Tasker H. Bliss on Russian problems, probably will be called upon soon by the Supreme Council to aid the committee which will discuss Russian affairs.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Bolshevist forces are now masters of almost the whole Eastern Ukraine, including the important centres of Kharkov, Poltava, Ekaterinoslav, and the Konetz mining region, according to a Helsingfors dispatch to The Mail. It is reported that a Soviet Government has been established at Kharkov, the President being M. Rakovsky, one of the signatories to the Brest-Litovsk treaty with Germany.

ARCHANGEL, Feb. 3, (Associated Press.)—Advices to the Allied Intelligence Department reveal some of the methods by which the Bolsheviki have been able to organize their army in such a way as to make possible the carrying on of a strong campaign in Northern Russia.

The principle of these methods, according to information received from the interior, lies in compelling the Generals and staff officers in the old Russian Army to serve the Bolsheviki by holding their families as hostages for the officers' conduct. Cases have occurred of officers' families being placed under close arrest, the women being treated as badly as the men.

The position of former Russian officers in the ranks of the Soviet Army is extremely difficult. They occupy posts as commanding officers and are trusted in

GREAT AND SMALL POWERS DIVIDED ON LEAGUE EXECUTIVE AND TRIBUNAL; DOMINANCE OF GREAT POWERS FEARED

TWO DIVERSE PROPOSALS

One Gives Small Nations 9 on Executive Branch to Large Nations' 10.

OTHER EXCLUDES SMALL

Allows Them Representation Only When Special Interests Are Concerned.

TRIBUNAL ALSO CHANGED

Revised Plan Would Make the Large Powers Judges of International Issues.

PARIS, Feb. 4, (Associated Press.)—President Wilson presided tonight over the Commission of the Society of Nations, which had before it the completed project for constituting the League, discussing it article by article. While there is no authoritative information concerning the details of the project, the distribution of printed drafts among the members has disclosed the main features, and these can be summarized as follows:

Two main plans have been presented, which the members of the commission regard as embodying the American views, though both plans are composite, containing the best features from various sources—American, British, French, and Italian.

Both plans are being considered together. In its original form the first plan is generally considered more democratic and therefore more acceptable to the small powers, whereas the revised plan is not so acceptable to the small powers, as it eliminates them from the executive branch of the proposed organization and is a long step toward the creation of an international Supreme Court, with a fundamental basis of codified international law.

The first plan had three main features: First, a legislative branch on which the great and small nations were equally represented, each as a unit.

Second—An executive branch, consisting of two members from each of the great powers—the United States, Great Britan, France, Italy, and Japan—and nine members chosen from the small powers. This gave the executive body a total membership of nineteen, of whom ten represented the great powers and nine represented the small powers.

Third—Arbitration was provided for the determination of international issues. In case of a dispute between two nations, each nation named arbitrators, and these two selected a third arbitrator. The three arbitrators thus chosen constituted a tribunal for determining the issues.

The foregoing, on broad lines, is the project which meets with most favor among the small nations, as they would be represented both on the legislative and executive branches. It is to be noted that such an organization would follow somewhat the lines of that of the present Peace Conference, as the legislative branch is analogous to the plenary session of the conference, while the executive branch is similar to the council of the great powers now holding daily sessions.

Revised Plan Less Democratic.

The revised plan makes several important changes. The legislative branch remains the same, with the great and small nations represented. The executive branch is modified, however, so as to consist chiefly of the great powers, with two representatives from each, to which others from the small powers may be added when interests especially affecting them are at issue.

The third branch is entirely changed, so as to eliminate the plan of arbitrators and substitute an executive council of the great powers as a tribunal for judging international issues, analogous to the international Supreme Council.

It is the two latter features which are regarded by the small powers as tending to concentrate the executive and judicial branches in the hands of the great powers, whereas the small powers prefer the plan giving them a status on the executive branch, and arbitration as a means of judicial determination, instead of a tribunal of the great powers.

The question now before the commission is one largely between the great and small powers.

Several of the small powers are understood to be preparing amendments to the revised plan, with a view to giving them representation on all branches of the organization, and it is

Britain and America Speed Up the Conference Work; May Settle Some Peace Terms Before Wilson Leaves

PARIS, Feb. 4, (Associated Press.)—The progress made by the Peace Conference Committees, as an outcome of the energetic Anglo-American campaign for quicker action, has strengthened the hope among the most optimistic delegates that the League of Nations may be established, and that even certain peace terms may be settled before President Wilson leaves for the United States.

The President and Premier Lloyd George are understood to be agreed that there should be no further delay, and they are urging speed.

Some opposition is being encountered in some quarters; but the general sentiment of the delegates who have expressed themselves is for prompt action.

SENATE ORDERS REDS HERE INVESTIGATED

Directs Overman Committee to Turn the Light on American Bolshevism.

MASS OF EVIDENCE AT HAND

Walsh, Borah, and Others Attack Congressmen Who Attended a Soviet Meeting.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The sub-committee of the Senate Committee on Judiciary, which, under the chairmanship of Senator Overman of North Carolina, has been investigating German propaganda in this country, was instructed by unanimous vote of the Senate this afternoon immediately to begin an investigation of Bolshevism and all other forms of anti-American radicalism in the United States. The resolution was offered by Senator Walsh of Montana and covers every phase of the radical propaganda which is now being preached in various parts of the country.

Major E. Lowry Humes, who has handled the investigation of the German propaganda, will direct the investigation of Bolshevism. Major Humes said tonight that he hoped to be ready to call the first witnesses Thursday or Friday.

The Walsh resolution passed by the Senate reads as follows:

> Resolved, That the authority of the Committee on the Judiciary conferred by Senate Resolution 307 be and hereby is extended so as to include the power and duty to inquire concerning any efforts being made to propagate in this country the principles of any party exercising or claiming to exercise any authority in Russia, whether such efforts originate in this country or are financed from abroad, and further to inquire into any effort to incite the overthrow of the Government of this country or all government by force, or by the destruction of life or property, or the general cessation of industry.

The action of the Senate was hastened as a result of several radical meetings recently held in this city and also by a speech delivered yesterday by Senator Thomas of Colorado, who said that there was a powerful organization at work in this country to overthrow the present American system of Government.

Senator Weeks of Massachusetts, in supporting the Walsh resolution, said he was confident that Bolshevism would have no force in this country once the evil was understood by the rank and file of Americans. Senator Borah of Idaho, in his remarks, referred to the meeting held in a theatre Sunday night at which Congressman Mason of Illinois was one of the speakers.

"I am informed that at the meeting held in a theatre Sunday," said Senator Borah, "among the things advocated was the overthrow of our form of Government and the substitution in its place of a form of government known as the Soviet Government. It is but fair to say that the statement has been made to me that so far as the advocacy of the overthrow of our Government was concerned no such doctrine was preached at that meeting; that it was a defense of the Soviet Government in Russia under conditions and surroundings which confront the people of that country. But if the propaganda which seems to have been fathered at that meeting be the beginning of a movement in this country we may well consider how we are to meet such a serious situation."

Senator Overman called Senator Borah's attention to a bill which is in Congress to repeal the Espionage law. Senator Overman said that other laws must be placed on the statute books to deal with Bolshevism if the Espionage act was repealed. Senator Borah said that he did not regard the Espionage act as effective.

"I am opposed to Bolshevism," he said, "whether it is in tatters and rags or whether it is clothed in broadcloth. It is wholly immaterial to me from what source the attack comes upon the American Republic. These men may be hammering and battering away with a pickaxe and dynamite at one pillar of the republic, while other men in more powerful places are battering and hammering away at other pillars of the republic.

"The Soviet Government has its enthusiasts throughout the land and throughout the world, but who in this hour is preaching Americanism and the great fundamental principles of Americanism in this country? They held a meeting at the Poli Theatre. The League to Enforce Peace will begin its campaign in Boston on the 6th day of February, and if they succeed they will ultimately land us precisely where the Bolshevists would land us, and that is under the control of internationalism. They would tear down the fundamental principles of this republic just as successfully in the end and just as efficiently as the men who met at the Poli Theatre."

Immediately following the passage of the resolution the committee which will direct the investigation went into executive session. The committee comprises Senators Overman, Nelson, King, Sterling, and Wolcott.

Tomorrow Major Humes will confer with Secretary Baker, and he is expected to request that the entire evidence in the possession of the Government regarding radical propaganda be turned over to the committee. A member of the committee said tonight that he was certain Secretary Baker would give the information asked. The report referred to is said to be one of the most complete ever compiled by the War Department.

OFFERS THREE WAYS TO SETTLE DISPUTES

Modified League Plan Would Let Nations Choose Arbitration, Mediation, or Inquiry.

BOYCOTT STILL AVAILABLE

While Resort to Force Is Not Barred if Majority of League Members Favor It.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—The League of Nations Commission is understood to have modified the provision for compulsory arbitration contained in the draft of the League program under consideration, so as to leave any nation free to determine whether to submit its dispute with another to arbitration, mediation, or an inquiry—one of which must be chosen.

An early report that the provision for compulsory arbitration had been entirely eliminated caused depression among Americans here, although they were inclined to believe that if such arbitration were prescribed in the constitution of the League as finally adopted by the Conference the Senate would not sanction it.

It was pointed out by some of those who credited the first report that several alternative means of adjusting disputes might be employed—such, for example, as a tribunal of conciliation and mediation—and that there was nothing to prevent the League from employing an economic boycott or even resorting to force if any nation should refuse to abide by the League's judgment. As has been stated in these dispatches, the proposed constitution does not permit a majority of the League to insist that any nation join in a general resort to force unless it so elects.

The Japanese representatives have abandoned their silence, and now give assurance that they are in accord with the principles of the League, and will join the new world organization.

GREEK CLAIMS SENT TO EXPERT COMMISSION

Supreme Council So Rules After Hearing Venizelos — Two Americans Are Members.

PARIS, Feb. 4, (Associated Press.)—The Supreme Council at today's meeting at the Foreign Office agreed that questions in the statement of Premier Venizelos concerning Greek territorial interests should be referred to a commission of experts, including Americans, to make recommendations for a settlement.

The official statement on the proceedings of the council reads:

> The President of the United States, the Prime Ministers and Ministers of Foreign Affairs of the United States, the British Empire, France, Italy, and Japan met this morning at the Quai d'Orsay from 11 to 1 o'clock. M. Venizelos made a statement regarding Greek territorial interests in Asia Minor.
>
> The following resolution was approved:
>
> "It is agreed that the questions raised in the statement by M. Venizelos on the Greek territorial interests in the peace settlement shall be referred for examination in the first instance to an expert committee composed of two representatives each of the United States of America, the British Empire, France, and Italy. It shall be the duty of this committee to reduce the questions for decision within the narrowest possible limit and make recommendations for a just settlement. The committee is authorized to consult with the representatives of the peoples concerned."
>
> The next meeting will take place tomorrow, Wednesday, Feb. 5, at 3 P. M., when the Czechoslovak delegates will be heard.

Foreign Minister Sonnino of Italy and Premier Venizelos have been in conference in an effort to settle the conflicting ambitions of Italy and Greece, particularly with reference to the claims of Greece to islands in the Aegean Sea. It is understood that Italy would be willing to turn over to Greece the islands in the Aegean which Italy took from Turkey in the Tripolitan war, if Italy, in turn, should receive mandatory power for part of Asia Minor. Italy, it is understood, would like to have this power for the Vilayet of Adalia.

said that the tendency among the great powers is to give every reasonable consideration to these desires, while preserving to the major powers such voice as their larger interests and responsibilities warrant.

No Fear for Monroe Doctrine.

The American delegates to the Peace Conference, it is said, are satisfied that the project for a Society of Nations as it will emerge from the commission now handling the subject will not conflict with or impair the vitality of the Monroe Doctrine.

Indications are that the commission's plan will provide that the landing of troops with hostile intent on the soil of another nation will automatically constitute a state of war between the aggressor and all the States in the Society of Nations, unless the period of probation has expired before the landing. The method of making such a war would be left to each State for settlement.

No consideration has yet been given by the commission to the question of the freedom of the seas, it is learned, on the theory that regulations on that subject will be unnecessary if a Society of Nations is created.

President Wilson is concentrating his attention upon the work of perfecting the constitution for such a society. While less than two weeks remain before the date set for his return to Washington, it is still regarded as within the range of possibility not only that the great project will be reported from the commission, but also that the Peace Conference in plenary session will ratify the plan and thus put it fairly in the way to be registered in treaty form within the time limit. This would make a record for international conferences, but the Paris gathering has already done that in several instances.

There is a growing feeling here that the treaty of peace should be speedily perfected, now that the principle of the Society of Nations and many of the details of its construction have been agreed upon. Arthur J. Balfour, the British Foreign Secretary, is engaged upon a proposition to fix the territorial boundaries of the defeated nations at once and promptly conclude peace with the enemy as so constituted. The program would then be to go on with the settlement of the other questions remaining to be solved under the rules of the Society of Nations.

Even if the effort to secure final action on the Society of Nations by the conference before President Wilson's departure should fail, it is considered by active sponsors of the plan that the ultimate success of the undertaking has in reality already been assured through the adoption by the full conference at its second session of the declaration which solemnly binds the delegations to the creation of such an organization, with the primary object of averting further warfare. They consider that delay in perfecting the form of the covenant would in no wise endanger its final adoption.

With such an agreement on general principles as has been reached, it is held in some quarters that there may be no need to treat specifically such subjects as the freedom of the seas, the use of submarines in warfare, the creation of buffer States, or even the delimitation of national boundaries with reference to their defensive possibilities. The idea is that there would be no necessity to consider the question of defense against a neighbor whose good behavior was assured.

Subjects Requiring Immediate Action.

Some subjects, however, do require immediate consideration, it seems generally agreed. These are subjects such as the assessment of the damages caused by the war, the responsibility for the war, the regulation of the use of international waterways and railways, the difficulties presented by the present state of chaos in the treaty relations between the nations as one result of the war, and treatment of the labor question by international accord.

Some of these problems would require a long time to settle, notably the determining of the actual damage inflicted by the enemy, although it has been suggested that adjustment of this question might be facilitated by the adoption of an estimate of the gross sum, based on the preliminary examinations which already have been made by army officers.

One way of solving these problems, which may be adopted, would be through the creation of various commissions to work after the final adjournment of the Peace Conference, with full powers to enforce the execution of their decrees.

PARIS PRAISE FOR WILSON.

Newspapers Enthusiastic Over His Chamber of Deputies Speech.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—The Paris newspapers today, in commenting on the reception of President Wilson last evening by the Chamber of Deputies, allude to the occasion as one which is not likely to be forgotten and which will recement Franco-American friendship and stand as a new token of the brotherhood of the two peoples.

The newspapers warmly praise the President's speech, which is alluded to as an assertion of the solidarity of all the free peoples with France.

Socialist members in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday afternoon tried to drown the applause from the Centre and the Right with the apparent purpose of showing Mr. Wilson that his ideas were their own. When Captain Mantoux, the official interpreter, who translated the President's address, reached that part of the speech in which Mr. Wilson spoke of the Society of Nations, the Socialists rose, shouting: "Long Live the Society of Nations!" some of them adding, "Down with war!"

Paul Deschanel, who opened the sitting, said of the plan for the Society of Nations:

"Across the chasm of blood and darkness we see the light of the future. We believe that if the Entente, instead of being formed slowly under the pressure of peril and under the necessities of the moment in the shock of battles, could have been instituted long before at The Hague, Germany would never have dared to declare war upon us. We believe that the thirty States which broke relations with Germany must be the nucleus of a society of nations. We shall continue with all our strength and all our heart to prevent a return to barbarism and to maintain our dear and illustrious friendship, which shall be no less fruitful in peace than it has been in war."

CLAIMS OF GREECE ARE BASED ON RACE

She Asks for No Territory Whose Population Is Not Mainly Hellenic.

DEMANDS ARE FAR-REACHING

They Conflict with the Desires of Italy, Bulgaria, Turkey, and Albania.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—The Greek territorial claims which came before the Council of Ten of the five big powers today are so far reaching that their success would be in conflict with the desires of Italy, Bulgaria, and Turkey. But there is one very tangible point on which the Peace Conference's consideration of Greek affairs begins. That is the agreement between Italy and Greece, entered into in the course of the war, as to Avlona in Albania and Northern Epirus. Greece consented that Italy should have Avlona. Italy agreed to the validity of the rights of Greece in Northern Epirus. (There is no question concerning the rest of Epirus.) So the whole issue first presents itself to the conference by that specific question: Will the great powers ratify the Avlona-Epirus agreement? It is taken for granted that they will. There is not as much dynamite in this territory question between Italy and Greece as in the dispute between Italy and Jugoslavia.

But the case of Greece does not end with this clear-cut proposition of Avlona and Epirus. There are the "Twelve Islands of the Sea," or Dodecanesus. Technically, they belong to the Ottoman Empire, the dismemberment of which is to come later. They are occupied by Italian troops, but they are and always have been inhabited by Greeks. Italy puts up no special claim to them except that they would be most useful to her in giving her a voice and an influence in future affairs in Asia Minor. Italy occupied these islands as a military measure in her war with Turkey, and has simply forgotten to go away. But, inasmuch as these are Turkish still in the old political sense, but are populated entirely by Greeks, the assumption is that they will be given to Greece in accordance with the twelfth of President Wilson's fourteen points, which is cited by Venizelos in his presentation of all Greek claims against Turkey and Bulgaria. That point is:

"The Turkish portions of the present Ottoman Empire should be assured a secure sovereignty, but the other nationalities which are now under Turkish rule should be assured an undoubted security of life and an absolutely unmolested opportunity of autonomous development, and the Dardanelles should be permanently opened as a free passage to the ships and commerce of all nations under international guarantees."

Italy and Greece have no agreement to offer as to the Twelve Islands.

Avlona has a tremendously mixed population—Greek, Italian, and Mussulman. The last predominate, as they do throughout the rest of Albania. Orlando and Sonnino would like to make an Italian protectorate of all Albania. That is the one point concerning the east coast of the Adriatic on which the two leading members of the Italian Government are agreed. But the question has not yet been considered by the Peace Conference.

It is within the range of possibility that Albania, minus Avlona, may be given to its inhabitants as an independent State of their own.

Venizelos bases his whole case for Greece on ethnological grounds and on the principles of President Wilson. He asks for no territory in which the Greek population does not predominate, but he asks for all in which the Greek population does predominate. He says that Greece comes before the conference with the desire to do all in her power to contribute to a lasting solution of the Near Eastern question. He declares that the complete victory of the Allies and America now makes such a solution possible for the first time in history, because the great Powers have full authority to fix frontiers to include racially homogeneous States. For example, in his argument for the restoration of Thrace, he says that it has more than 700,000 Greeks and only 112,000 Bulgarians.

"Therefore," says the Greek leader, "we can invoke in favor of the union of Thrace with Greece the principle of nationality, the validity of which has been many times proclaimed in the course of the great war by President Wilson and the Allied European statesmen."

It is true, he admits, that such a union would deprive Bulgaria of the Aegean cost, but he says that Bulgaria's economic interests are not sufficiently great to warrant her rule of territory which is Greek in population by seven to one. Furthermore, Bulgaria will have an opening on the Black Sea, with passage out assured by the free Dardanelles.

To this objection, based entirely on principle, to Bulgaria remaining in Thrace and on the Aegean Sea, he adds a practical warning for the future in case there should be more wars in which submarines were used. If Bulgaria were still on the Thracian littoral she would have a dangerous submarine base for herself or her friends at Lagos.

In L'Humanité this morning, Anatole France makes a plea to all the world, which recalls those days in America when Julia Ward Howe and her husband made their wonderful fight in behalf of Greece. In his conclusion, he says:

"In this hour, when we see Serbia gathering about her all her brother Slavs of the south, Rumania acquiring Transylvania, the Banat, and Bessarabia, the Armenian Republic of Ararat declaring her independence and stretching out her arms to her children, and Zion reborn after so many centuries and recalling her dispersed tribes, why in this hour should not Greece reassemble those of her children who wish to come back to her with the vague memory, perhaps, of those glorious times when the Hellenes of Europe and those of Asia brought to the world their wisdom and beauty?"

CONFERENCE FORBIDS POLISH-CZECH CLASH

Warns Against Occupying Teschen District—Czechs Loan Munitions to Poles.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—The conference is surely making peace in Eastern Europe. After effectually stopping hostilities between Rumania and Serbia over the Banat of Temesvar, the Supreme Council has achieved the much more difficult task of putting an end to the fighting between the Poles and Czechoslavs.

In the official communiqué concerning the matter there was left unexplained the remarkable statement that the Czechoslavs had agreed to turn over their munitions of war to the Poles, their former foes. This in no sense indicated military surrender, but was a sign of the complete reconciliation of these new States and the willingness of one to help the other against her enemies.

The Czechoslavs had no hostilities on their hands except those with the Poles. On the contrary, Poland is fighting on two other fronts, against the Ukrainians and Bolsheviki. It is to aid them in these other fights that the Czechoslavs now give their munitions to the Poles.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—The Peace Conference, in a communication warning the Poles and Czechs who are disputing control of the Teschen mining district in Austrian Silesia that they must refrain from occupying the territory in question, lays down rules for the temporary administration of the disputed region.

The communication announces that a commission of control will be immediately sent to the Teschen region by the conference. The document reads:

"The representatives of the great powers, having been informed of the conflict which has arisen between the Czechs and the Poles in the principality of Teschen, in consequence of which the mining district of Ostrawa-Karvin and the railway from Oderberg to Teschen and Jablungkau have been occupied by the Czechs, have declared as follows:

"In the first instance they think it necessary to remind the nationalities who have engaged to submit the territorial questions which concern them to the Peace Conference for its decision that they have promised to refrain from taking as a pawn or from occupying the territories to which they laid claim.

"The representatives take note of that engagement by which the Czech delegates have declared that they were definitely stopping their troops on the line of the railway which runs from Oderberg to Teschen and Jablungkau.

"Pending the decision of the Peace Congress as to the definite assignments of the territories, that part of the railway line to the north of Teschen and the mining regions will remain in the occupation of Czech troops, while the southern section of the line, starting from and including the town of Teschen down to Jablungkau will be intrusted to the military supervision of the Poles.

"The undersigned consider it indispensable that a commissioner of control should be immediately sent to the spot to avoid any conflict between the Czechs and the Poles in the region of Teschen. This commission, apart from the measures that it will have to prescribe, will proceed to an inquiry on the basis of which the Peace Conference may form its decision in fixing definitely the respective frontiers of the Czechs and the Poles in the contested zone.

"In order to seal the entente between the two friendly nations, which should follow a policy in full accord with that of the allied and associated powers, the representatives of the great powers register the promise of the Czech representatives that their country will put at the disposition of the Poles all its available resources in war material, and will grant to them every facility for the transit of arms and ammunition.

"The exploitation of the mines of the Karvin-Ostrawa district will be carried out in such a way as to avoid all infractions of private property while reserving any police measures which the situation may require. The commission of control will be authorized to supervise this and, if necessary, to secure to the Poles that part of the output which may be equitably claimed by them to meet their wants.

"It is understood that the local administration will continue to function in accordance with the conditions of the pact of November, 1918, and that the rights of minorities will be strictly respected.

"Pending the decision of the Peace Congress, political elections and military conscription will be suspended in the principality of Teschen.

"No measure implying annexation of all or of a part of the said principality either to the territory of Poland or of Czechoslovakia, taken by interested parties, shall have binding force.

"The delegates of the Czech nation engage to release immediately with their arms and baggage the Polish prisoners taken during the recent conflict.

DEMANDS GERMANY'S 'RIGHTS.'

Erzberger Threatens League if Colonies Are Taken Away.

BASLE, Feb. 3.—Speaking before the Colonial Society at Berlin today, Mathias Erzberger, one of the German Armistice Commissioners, protested against Germany being deprived of her colonies, according to a dispatch received here from the German capital. He is reported to have said:

"If we no longer have troops or arms we have our rights. The Allies have accepted Mr. Wilson's 'fourteen points' as Germany has. Mr. Wilson demands broad and impartial regulation of all colonial questions, but the Allies are seeking to impose the will of stronger nations, without taking into account the rights of Germany.

"Depriving Germany of all her colonies would contain a deadly germ for the League of Nations even before that league is born. We understand it has been proposed to internationalize German colonies under the administration of the League of Nations. We ought to categorically repel such a proposition or claim the same treatment for the colonies of all other powers. President Wilson's program gives Germany an inviolable right to her colonial territories."

MOVE IN HUNGARY TO JOIN GERMANY

Bitter Resentment Felt at Partial Occupation by Czech and Rumanian Troops.

FEAR ATTITUDE OF ALLIES

Country Is Made Economically Helpless, It Is Asserted, by the New Alignment.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Feb. 2.—An emissary of the Hungarian Government, speaking to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today, said that Hungary was in a state of chaos owing to invasion on all sides. Asked whether Hungary expected to become a federal State of Germany, the emissary replied:

"At present Hungary can be compared politically and economically to a human trunk without a head, arms or legs. We do not desire it, but greatly fear that the Entente policy may end by obliging us to become dependent on Germany.

"After the revolution the Hungarians signed the armistice with General Franchet, who at the time made a line of demarkation and obliged the troops to disarm and retire from all frontiers. It was promised that American, English, and French troops would occupy the frontiers. In place of the latter, Rumanians, Serbs, and Czechs, who have pretensions to our territory, have invaded our country, having crossed the lines of demarkation made by General Franchet.

"Today Budapest is a frontier town and the Czechs are thirty kilometers away. We were forced to disarm. So the country is given over to these troops, who have established their economic and political sovereignty everywhere. All communication with these regions, which are economically most valuable to Hungary, is stopped.

Says Supplies Are Cut Off.

"For instance, salt, wood, coal, gold, and a large part of our grain and cattle come from these parts of the country; so that Hungary is economically impotent. The people from all the invaded countries have fled to the centre, Budapest, which has doubled its population, from 1,000,000 to 2,000,000, in the space of two months.

"Lack of coal especially menaces us with the gravest consequences. Factories are stopped, houses unheated, the streets dark, the shops shut at sundown, and there is no public safety. The Government is obliged to pay the strikers 41 kroner daily in order to combat Bolshevism.

"We are menaced by economic Bolshevism caused by lack of coal, and political Bolshevism owing to the invading troops, who are advancing further, causing the Government to lose its prestige, especially as it no longer has the support of its armies on account of the Hungarian disarmament.

"In order to establish order a Constituent Assembly is necessary; but elections for a Constituent Assembly are impossible at present, owing to the fact that three-fifths of the country is occupied by the enemy. Elections in the invaded districts are impossible because of the complete lack of liberty, and elections in the free part of Hungary would not be representative.

Fears Course of the Allies.

"The pretensions of our adversaries appear to have extraordinary protection from the Entente, but the realization of these pretensions threatens to create a small Hungary, economically dependent. Lacking all raw material, it is clear that Hungary will necessarily fall into the arms of its most powerful neighbor, namely, Germany.

"Our ideal would be to form a free, independent republic, based on the complete equality of all nationalities, just as is that of the Italians, French, and Germans in Switzerland. We believe that the Hungarian nationalities, mixed with large masses of Magyars, could form a big confederate, democratic republic.

"If, however, our existence is rendered impossible, in spite of our antagonism, we will be obliged to ally ourselves closely with the future Germany, from whom we can expect coal, manufactured goods, &c. We see the blind confidence we had in Wilson's sublime principles cynically baffled by hostile pretensions, but it seems impossible that America will lend her aid. We ask active co-operation from America for the exploitation of our natural resources."

FEARS ENSLAVEMENT OF GERMAN CAPTIVES

Hauptmann Alarmed Over Possibility of Prisoners Rebuilding France.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 2, (via Copenhagen, Feb. 3.)—Gerhard Hauptmann, the poet and playwright, publishes an open letter to the Allies in Paris, in which he protests most vigorously against the alleged intention of the French to make 800,000 German war prisoners slaves to be employed in rebuilding France, as the Egyptian Pharaohs did the people of Israel.

Hauptmann says he would not credit such rumors had not so many of the ethical ideals of humanity been destroyed by the terrible war. He hopes, however, that dispassionate consideration will convince the Allies of the impossibility of taking such a course.

After reviewing the history of slave emancipation, Hauptmann reminds Frenchmen it was Lafayette at whose motion, in 1789, the monumental sentence was placed at the head of the proclamation of the rights of humanity—"Man is born free and with equal rights and always remains so."

"Is France now really prepared to surprise the world with another manifesto in which this free republican people will proclaim the cruelest doctrine of slavery?" he asks. "Will France now follow up its magnificent present to the United States of the Statue of Liberty on Bedlow's Island by another iron image, and does she intend to adorn this also with a torch and shining coronet? But I cannot believe it. These endless worries eat out one's heart so that mere fiction may fill it with bitterness. But any fair-minded man will admit that the possibility of an open discussion of whether 800,000 Germans are to become slaves of France must suffice to embitter us in the highest degree.

"For a realization of this idea there is not the slightest moral or reasonable possibility, but it may be that morals and reason will be thrown overboard. If that be the case, then the war must have worked a terrible depravation in the European mind. Think of it! Germans, Christians, republicans, Europeans to be made the slaves of France. Both France and Germany would share this ignominy. Germany would be the only civilized nation in the world a part of whose citizens were slaves of foreign nations, while France could boast of being the only slaveholder among all the nation."

THE HAGUE, Feb. 4.—Dr. von Kühlmann arrived at The Hague today. The former German Foreign Secretary has undoubtedly come to Holland on important business, though the nature of his mission is not yet known.

On his arrival at a restaurant frequented by the diplomatic world, he was greeted as a hero by members of the German Legation.

RUSSIAN APPEAL TO FRANCE.

Ex-Czar's Brother-in-Law Warns of Intervention by Germany.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—The former Grand Duke Alexander Michaelovitch, brother-in-law of the former Russian Emperor, who has arrived in Paris, as he says, "not for political purposes, but to make known the truth about Russia," says in an interview in the Matin that the Allies must beware of Germany in Russia.

"France has every reason to save Russia," he asserts. "If you do not intervene now, be sure that Germany will intervene in her own time. Beware of Germany. That people which is now at your mercy hides within itself a hate which will find its first revenge in Russia.

"A League of Nations or a Society of Peoples is much talked of. It remains to be seen if the nations will not have dealt themselves a mortal blow by hesitating too long to cleanse the Russian sore which threatens to contaminate the whole world."

The Grand Duke related how with his family and the Dowager Empress and Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaievitch, the former Russian commander in chief, he had been kept prisoner in a house in the Crimea. However, the chief of the Bolshevist guard had served under Alexander, and made things tolerable for them. They were saved from massacre on May 1, 1918, by the arrival of the Germans and were eventually set free by the coming of an allied fleet.

Bapaume Wants a "Godmother."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Bapaume, one of the French towns which suffered most from the war, wants a "godmother," according to an official dispatch. Ganton Stenne, Mayor of the town, is quoted as saying in the Petit Parisien: "I hope that some great city, either of the old continent or the new, will listen to my appeal."

REDS MADE STRONG BY COERCED MEN

all technical matters, but in regard to everything else are under constant suspicion and are controlled by Bolshevist Commissioners, who are permanently attached to the army and even control the carrying out of operations. Leon Trotzky, the Bolshevist Minister of War and Marine, has issued an order that families of officers who desert to the Allies are to be held responsible and will be prosecuted in some cases.

Military experts who have been forced to serve the Bolsheviki include some of the best men in field tactics, engineering, and ordnance to be found in Central Russia.

General mobilization of soldiers in all districts is being vigorously carried out, and all attempts to avoid service are being severely dealt with. The training of the Bolshevist Army is being assisted by special schools of instruction at Petrograd and Moscow for all non-commissioned officers and men belonging to the Bolshevist party. Generally, the army is growing stronger, and, although the new troops are far from being reliable, they, nevertheless, owing to the severe methods which have been adopted, form the main strength of Bolshevist power.

It is stated that this apparent increase in military strength has been taken by many to indicate that Bolshevist ideas are gaining favor with the population, but this is by no means true. The majority of the people are anti-Bolshevist, but are afraid to express their opinions. The entire strength of the Bolsheviki, it is averred, rests on their institution of Red terror.

GERMANS TO FIGHT REDS.

Discharged Veterans, Unemployed, Enlisting for Service in Russia.

COBLENZ, Feb. 3, (Associated Press.)—A number of discharged soldiers who are unable to find employment in unoccupied Germany are joining the volunteer army that is being organized for service against the Bolsheviki. Recruiting for the volunteers is being conducted solely by army corps staffs of various districts throughout Germany in co-operation with the Soldiers' Councils.

According to information reaching here, each recruit must have seen six months' service in the field. Enlistment is for one month and a discharge is granted at any time after fourteen days' notice has been given by the soldier or an army officer.

Recruits are being sent to join the forces on the eastern front, the movement being carried out as rapidly as possible.

WANTS OUR NAVY IN WORLD POLICING

Maurice Thinks Great Britain and America Should Co-operate in the Duty.

LEAGUE'S FINANCIAL NEEDS

Scarcely to be Met, He Says, Unless We Aid East and Southeast of Europe.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Major Gen. Sir Frederick Maurice, in a Paris dispatch to The Daily News, says:

"It is becoming abundantly clear that neither Germany nor all our enemies can be made to find resources in money or kind necessary to set the world again on its feet. We may possibly be able to obtain some shipping to compensate us for our losses at sea, but that will probably be as much as those Members of Parliament who gave the electors to understand that Germany would 'be made to pay' are likely to be able to show in return for the votes they received.

"It is possible that the bill against Germany may be met to some extent by territorial adjustments such as the allocation of the coal fields of the Saar Valley to France as a compensation for the destruction of her coal fields in the Lens area; and there are other arrangements of the same kind in contemplation; and this shows how closely European territorial questions are bound up with those of finance and reparation, and explains why the conference has not been able to get on at once with the question of the new frontier of Germany, which France is so anxious to see settled.

League Needs Our Financial Support.

"It is evident that if our enemies cannot be made to pay in full it will be all but impossible to establish the League of Nations firmly without the permanent and active co-operation of America. Most of the colonies and most of the territories of Turkey, which are to pass to the general control of the league, will require financial assistance if they are to be developed in the interests of the inhabitants. All the new States of Eastern and Southeastern Europe need financial support if they are to establish a settled Government.

"The old world, exhausted by the war, cannot hope to be able to provide the necessary assistance, most of which must come from America.

"The pressing anxiety of France is to be safe in the future. She regards us having made ourselves safe by the destruction of the German fleet, and demands a sure guarantee for herself. She is chary of intrusting her safety to the League of Nations until she knows, much more definitely than she does at present, how that league will be constituted and what its resources will be. Most of the criticism in the French press of the League and of the work of the conference is attributable to this anxiety. She is afraid we and America will be unwilling to commit ourselves to provide military forces for aims and purposes which cannot be strictly defined and that she will find herself faced by eighty millions of Germans without adequate assurance of timely support.

"It is easy to foresee many cases which might call for armed intervention in the Continent of Europe, in which both we and America would be unwilling or even unable to send our soldiers to fight. The solution seems to me to be that we and America should guarantee to the League the naval power necessary to enforce a stringent economic blockade of any power which threatened to disturb the peace of the world.

Anglo-American Naval Police.

"The co-operation of Great Britain and America in providing for a League of Nations the naval police required to enable it to assert its authority seems, then, the best means of providing for France the guarantee of security which she seeks, and this at the same time solves the problem of the freedom of the seas. We have but to agree to accept the mandate of the League of Nations in regard to our navy in the interests of the peace of the world, just as we and our dominions have agreed to accept its mandate in regard to the German colonies, to make the arrangements perfect and to relieve the natural anxieties of France.

"The co-operation of America in the same sense is most desirable. There may arise during the territorial settlement, particularly in Asia, cases in which the easiest solution would be that America should consent to become the mandatory power, but none of these is likely to be vital to the effective working of the League of Nations, and the American public may very possibly be reluctant in committing itself to a territorial policy in Asia or in Africa. Financial and naval co-operation by America does, however, seem to me to be the essence of the problem."

ALLIED ARMY TO GUARD THE TRANS-SIBERIAN

John F. Stevens Demands It—Czech Troops Preparing to Evacuate Siberia.

VLADIVOSTOK, Feb. 2, (Associated Press.)—The feature of the plan for operating the Trans-Siberian Railway, which is in process of elaboration at conferences between John F. Stevens, the American railroad expert; American Ambassador Morris, and representatives of the Allies, is that the line shall be guarded by American and allied troops. Mr. Stevens is reported to have said that only under that condition will he undertake the task of rehabilitating the railroad.

Ambassador Morris is said to support him. The Ambassador is clothed with plenary powers to conclude the plan of operation which, it is expected, will be perfected within a month.

The necessity for an allied guard has been accentuated by the project of the early repatriation of the Czechoslovak troops, preparations for which already are completed. The removal of invalids and wounded is now going on.

The corps of railroad operatives organized by Mr. Stevens, and which has been waiting for a year to begin work, is under orders to be ready at an hour's notice to proceed to points already assigned in the scheme of operation.

War Cross for Miss Elsie de Wolfe.

Miss Elsie de Wolfe has received a cable from the French Government announcing that the Croix de Guerre, with bronze star, has been conferred on her. This decoration was given her for bravery under fire during the week of March 21, 1918, when the Germans were advancing upon Compiègne. Miss de Wolfe aided in the removal of men in the Ambrine Hospital to a place of safety.

WARN OF CURBING LONDON STRIKES

the number of about 8,000, shows no signs of ending. A meeting of the principal hotel and restaurant proprietors on Tuesday afternoon decided to resist the employés' demands.

As in the case of the other disputes, the strikers are getting no sympathy from the public. The manager of one big hotel received a number of offers from residents of the West End to lend their own cooks if required.

Drastic Steps Contemplated.

LONDON, Feb. 4, (Associated Press.)—The Cabinet and various Government departments concerned in the labor troubles were very active today seeking a solution of the difficulties, which were increased by a strike of London hotel workers, while the tube strike continues to spread.

In a general way the Government has decided to maintain its policy of non-intervention in strikes not authorized by trade unions, but at the same time is directing its influence toward inducing the malcontent workers to see the advisability of acting through their official trade representatives.

For instance, at a conference at the Ministry of Labor between representatives of the Government and a deputation of the Electric Trades Union, the deputation was assured that if reasonable demands were made through the official channels of the union, they would receive sympathetic consideration from the Government. Warning was given, however, that if the men continued their present course, thus putting the whole community to serious inconvenience, the Government would take drastic steps to protect the civilian population and business undertakings.

The Government's attitude is regarded as unsatisfactory by the leaders of the present strikes, and a number of meetings are being held in London tonight with the object of securing greater uniformity of action.

Hotels Seriously Crippled.

The strike of the hotel workers caused thousands of people to go without breakfast or luncheon at the customary hours today or be satisfied with exceedingly meagre portions.

Many Londoners who because of the shortage of domestic help during the war, had become hotel dwellers, felt the hotel strike seriously. The kitchen staffs, which are largely made up of foreigners, demand an eight-hour day and a 25 per cent. increase in wages. The waiters demand the abolition of the system under which their tips are pooled and divided, with a commission on the takings deducted. They also demand a minimum wage of £2 weekly for women and £3 for men.

Waiters of British nationality are not on strike, so that city restaurants manned by Britishers were doing business as usual.

Several banquets booked for tonight at big hotels, including one in honor of American Ambassador Davis, were canceled.

The smaller hotels were able to attend to their permanent guests, but in the larger ones, with accommodations for 1,000 or more guests each, long queues of patrons stood outside the dining rooms waiting vainly to be served.

It is declared by the hotel men that they will not submit to the strikers' demands, and that new forces for their establishments are being recruited.

Profiting by its experience on Monday, when the city awoke to find transportation hampered by the strike in the tubes, London started early to work today. By daybreak the streets were filled with men and women walking from the suburbs, and the buses, when they started at 7 o'clock, were crowded.

Almost every bus carried a tube striker, who was urging the girl conductresses to strike, but these efforts were without success.

The shutdown of the London District Railway was due to the fact that, although all the drivers did not join the strike, the staff at the power plant which supplies the current for the lines went out at an early hour without giving any reason for its action. As this line, which has a circular route as well as many radial lines, carries thousands of passengers to all parts of the metropolis, the traffic situation became much more serious than ever.

Many motor lorries and virtually every other class of vehicle were requisitioned for the emergency, but, despite this, there were not nearly enough accommodations for those who desired to move about the city.

As another result of the shutting down of the power station some of the street cars on the Surrey side of the Thames which get their current from the station were compelled to stop running.

Sir Albert Stanley, President of the Board of Trade, issued a statement regarding the trouble in the tubes. He said:

"Under the arrangement made in December last the Government granted railway men an eight-hour working day, excluding meal times. This was accepted by the unions concerned.

"The unions then submitted further demands, including increased wages and improved conditions of service, apart from the eight-hour day. These matters are to be considered at the meeting next week between the members of the Railway Executive Committee and the men's unions. Meanwhile existing conditions of service apart from the eight-hour day are to remain unaltered.

"Despite this agreement with responsible unions certain employes of the underground and London and Brighton Railways have taken it upon themselves to strike and demand that meal times shall now be included in the eight-hour day. This demand, if granted, would mean that these men would work only seven or seven and a half hours daily. If the arrangement were extended to other railways it would reduce the working day to as low as six and a half hours in some cases.

"It is quite clear that what is now demanded by the small section of men who are on strike is contrary to what has been agreed to with the unions."

Railway Clerks Gain Point.

The threatened strike of railway clerks has been averted by conceding the recognition of the Railway Clerks' Union.

This action is important, as although only 75,000 men are affected, they consist of station masters, ticket sellers, and other employes, a strike on the part of whom would have tended to disrupt the working of the railways throughout the Kingdom.

Representatives of the union had an interview today with Sir Robert S. Horne, Minister of Labor, and Sir Albert Stanley. The grievances of the men were also discussed by a special Cabinet meeting, which sat for two hours to consider the labor problem.

The Railway Clerks' Union has been in existence twenty-one years, but never before has been recognized as a labor organization.

The situation on the Clyde and at Belfast is improving. An increasing number of men are remaining at work in the Glasgow district, while a hopeful feeling prevails in Belfast, where Sir Edward Carson has promised to bring the question of a national reduction in hours before Parliament at the first opportunity and Baron Pirrie, Controller General of Merchant Shipping, has promised to receive a deputation of the strikers tomorrow.

CALL ON AMERICA TO INDORSE LEAGUE

Noted Men Plan to Show Peace Conference That This Country Favors Linking of Nations.

WARNING FOR THE SENATE

"The Very Thing Needed," Says Mr. Taft, "to Influence Any Backward-Looking Senator."

Plans for an intensive campaign to show the Paris Peace Conference that the people of the United States want a "strong" League of Nations, and to serve notice on the United States Senate that if President Wilson brings home a peace treaty providing for such a league the people will expect its ratification, were announced and discussed yesterday afternoon at a meeting of about fifty prominent business men, bankers, and lawyers, held at the Bankers' Club. Dwight W. Morrow of J. P. Morgan & Co., presided. The meeting was preliminary to the National Congress for a League of Nations which will begin here this morning and continue throughout the month, held successively in nine different cities, under the auspices of the League to Enforce Peace.

The meeting was called by a committee consisting of Mr. Morrow, A. Barton Hepburn, Jacob H. Schiff, Sam Lewisohn, and Herbert S. Houston. The principal speaker was William H. Taft, President of the League to Enforce Peace, who will preside at the Atlantic Congress for a League of Nations here today, and head the group of speakers who will tour the country to address the other eight conventions.

In a statement given out after the meeting, to which Mr. Taft's name was attached as the President of the league, announcement was made that these nine conventions would be the beginning of a campaign that would cost at least $500,000, and that steps would be taken immediately to raise this sum.

"We believe," the statement further says, "that the people of the United States want that kind of a league, and want the United States to join in a strong league. But a deliberately planned campaign is going on, intended to convince our Peace Commissioners and the allied nations that the rank and file of Americans do not want a League of Nations, and that the Senate will not ratify a treaty that puts the United States into a league.

"There is just one thing that will effectually give our Peace Commissioners the power they must have if we are to get the kind of league that will work, and that is such an overwhelming expression of American opinion that no newspaper, no statesman, no nation in the world will have room to doubt that the American people want this thing. Such an expression of opinion, moreover, is the very thing that is needed to reach and influence any backward-looking Senator who is grooming himself for opposition to the league phase of the treaty that the Senate will be called upon to ratify."

Among those who attended the meeting were: George Gordon Battle, William Allen Butler, Eugene Delano, William Church Osborn, Percy Rockefeller, Jesse Isidor Straus, William H. Truesdale, Leopold S. Bache, Harvey E. Fisk, Colgate Hoyt, J. P. Grace, William H. Nichols, and George F. Baker, Jr., of New York; Judge George Gray and Josiah Marvel of Wilmington, Del.; William F. Cochran and Jacob Epstein of Baltimore, Md.; George F. Rand of Buffalo, N. Y.; Henry Bayard of Philadelphia; Benjamin T. Thaw of Pittsburgh, Penn.; Dr. M. Carey Thomas of Bryn Mawr, Penn.; George Bryan of Richmond, Va., and H. Lippincott of Philadelphia."

ASQUITH REBUFFED AS COMMONS MEETS

REJECT OLD CHIEF'S WHIP

Liberals and Laborites Share the Opposition Leadership at Opening Session.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Parliament met today, and J. W. Lowther was re-elected Speaker, with the curious customary ceremonies and compliments. Until the Speaker was selected Sir Courtney Ilbert, Clerk of the House, presided, but as he was not a member, he could utter no syllable, under pain of a heavy fine, so he arose in his place at the table and solemnly and silently pointed in turn to the mover and seconder of Lowther's nomination.

None of the Sinn Feiners was in place to make the disturbance which some had feared, and the election was made unanimous, with general formal speeches.

It was noteworthy that the second member to congratulate the Speaker was Sir Donald Maclean, who was elected yesterday Chairman of the Non-Coalition Liberals. These, by reason of their scanty number and freedom from pledges to the Government, have earned the title of "Wee Frees."

The historic Liberal Party is not prepared to yield the position of official opposition to the Labor Party. The latter is now the largest of all the non-Coalition groups in the House, with the exception of the Sinn Fein, and there has been much discussion as to whether it would be recognized as the regular opposition.

It seems, however, that this is not to be. Leaders of the party and the Labor members who have held ministerial office, such as J. R. Clynes and John Hodge, occupied seats on the front opposition bench, but they only shared it with leading Liberals. Nevertheless the changes of the late election have given the Labor Party a great advance in political standing, and with the important labor debates which are sure to take place in the present crisis its importance in the parliamentary life of the country will be very greatly increased.

Meanwhile Liberal circles are much exercised by the action of the non-coalition Liberal members in choosing Sir Donald Maclean as Chairman and refusing to recognize Asquith's nominee as Liberal whip. It was a very direct blow at the old chief and showed a feeling that whatever his services in the past he was not the man to revive the party and provide it with a program to deal with the rapidly changing conditions of today.

The Westminster Gazette, which is generally supposed to represent his views, has little to say about the matter tonight, except to deny that Maclean has any desire to oust him, but there is no doubt a considerable body of opinion in the country which would regard public life poorer if Asquith were to disappear from it.

There is to be a meeting tomorrow of the entire Liberal Parliamentary Party, which the coalition as well as the Independent Liberal members will attend, and much will depend on what is decided there.

LONDON, Feb. 4, (Associated Press.)—Financial problems and measures constructions are expected to be among the first things before the House of Commons. The budget, which will be a subject of great importance, probably will be taken up after the Easter recess.

The Government, it is understood, will propose the establishment of several new Government departments. Four new ministries have been planned to deal with supply, ways and communications, health and commerce.

There will be land and housing bills, a bill for the restoration of pre-war practices in industry, and a military service bill to give legal sanction to the proposals for the constitution of the British armies of occupation. Measures are being prepared by the Government to prevent "dumping" and to restrict immigration.

SINN FEINERS ESCAPE FROM ENGLISH PRISON

De Valera, Milroy, and McGarry Use Master Key Thrown to Them Over Wall.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—Professor Edward de Valera, the Sinn Fein leader, and Milroy and John McGarry, also Sinn Fein members of Parliament, escaped from the prison at Lincoln last night, according to a dispatch from Lincoln to The Evening News.

Apparently, the dispatch adds, the master key to the back door was thrown over the prison walls to the Sinn Feiners. It was then an easy matter for the trio to walk out to a waiting automobile which took them toward the coast.

A dispatch to the Central News from Dublin says that it is definitely stated there that all the Sinn Feiners interned in England will be released Monday.

ASQUITH LETTERS PUZZLE.

London Wonders How Correspondence with Lloyd George Got Out.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The interest that would have been naturally aroused in English political circles by the Atlantic Monthly's publication of the Asquith-Lloyd George correspondence of December, 1916, just before the latter's accession to power, has been obscured by the rush of current events.

With all the world in the melting pot at Paris, and England frankly bewildered by her sudden labor troubles, not even the keenest politicians have time to consider ancient history, so the discussion has been rather perfunctory, and the most pointed comment has turned on the fact that letters have appeared in only The Weekly Dispatch, Lord Northcliffe's Sunday newspaper. Some writers have seen in that evidence that it was Northcliffe who inspired their publication in America, and that there was some deep political purpose therein, but even they have found it difficult to reconcile the distinctly favorable light in which the correspondence shows up the present Premier with the suspicion with which Northcliffe has been treating him lately.

Meanwhile The Evening News tonight has an explanation of the publication which seeks to transfer the incident from the sphere of political intrigue to that of newspaper enterprise, pure and simple. After explaining that copies of the letters were handed to only three or four persons with the understanding that they were absolutely confidential, it says:

"It is impossible that the correspondence could have been printed or cabled to America, as the censorship strictly exercised up until quite recently and still in existence to a considerable extent would have prevented this. The true explanation of the mystery is a simple one. An American journalist saw the letters. Whether they were deliberately shown to him or whether he came across them accidentally is not known, but he was able to obtain a copy of them."

Mr. Asquith today has added his denial of having had any hand in the publication of the documents to that of the Premier, and has declared that it is in his opinion, a "gross violation of the sanctities of intimate and secret correspondence."

DENIES PARIS PRESS YARNS.

Gen. Harts Says Reports of Lawlessness of Americans Are Untrue.

PARIS, Feb. 4, (Associated Press.)—Reports of widespread lawlessness on the part of the Americans, particularly from the American Expeditionary Force, are wholly unfounded, declares Brig. Gen. W. W. Harts, the American commander of the Paris district, in a report submitted to Major Gen. J. G. Harbord.

The report gives the results of exhaustive investigations of printed and rumored reports of crime and lawlessness. It is based on records of the American Provost Marshal, the French police and other sources.

General Harts says that the persistent appearance of newspaper articles accusing the Americans of lawlessness "has led to the impression that there is some anti-American propaganda at work in Paris which some have ascribed to German sources." He says that incontrovertible figures show that criminal offenses committed in Paris and ascribed to American soldiers from January, 1918, to January, 1919, were extremely few in proportion to the number of American soldiers in Paris during that period.

General Harts keeps in constant touch with General Monier, the French Military Governor of Paris, in connection with the maintenance of order. When he recently issued an order restricting the carrying of firearms by others than military police actually on duty, General Monier wrote him a complimentary letter in which he referred to the excellent relations existing between the American Expeditionary Force and the population of Paris.

WOULD LIMIT ARMAMENT.

American Delegates Reject Part of Peace Societies' Program.

PARIS, Feb. 4, (Associated Press.)—A conference of allied peace societies, comprising delegates of the United States, England, France, and Belgium, favoring the League of Nations project, has given out resolutions adopted by it, in addition to the aims outlined in the plans handed by Léon Bourgeois to the allied Premiers last Saturday.

They declare for an international bureau of labor and periodic conferences between employers and employes, in line with the British project now before the labor commissions. They recommend the creation of an international commission of education to inform the public on the functions of the League of Nations and educate the people in the doctrines of democratic citizenship.

They further recommend that the enemy countries be required to limit their armament and the manufacture of arms and munitions in order to enable the Entente States to reduce their military forces. They declare that the allied States should content themselves with the enormous stock of arms and munitions of war now in their hands as a result of the war and the seizure of many stores, and should forbid the sale of arms and munitions by the States of the League to others.

The American delegates declined to indorse some of the recommendations, holding that disarmament would not enable the States of the league to maintain sufficient force to control the enemy States until the latter were completely disarmed. They also objected to the prohibition of the manufacture of arms and munitions as calculated to prevent scientific developments that might benefit the world.

ITALIANS BUSY IN TRIPOLI.

Rebuilding Railroad Destroyed by the Turks and Germans.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Feb. 4.—The military situation in Tripolitania is daily growing better, especially since the occupation of the Zanzur Oasis and Zuara without meeting much resistance from the enemy. Tripoli, the capital of this colony, can take up its commercial life again instead of feeling like a besieged city, as it did during these four years of war.

From the Tunisian frontier to Tripoli the whole coast is now free from enemy treachery, and the railway leading to Zavia, which had been destroyed by the Turks and Germans, is being rapidly reconstructed by Italian soldiers.

The press deplores the lack of firmness shown by those in authority in Tripolitania during the war, contending that a more courageous attitude might have prevented the loss of territory, which must now be reconquered at the cost of lives and money.

COURIERS GOING TO BERLIN.

American Soldiers to Make Trips from Coblenz to Capital.

COBLENZ, Feb. 3, (Associated Press.)—A limited number of officers and enlisted men of the Army of Occupation will have an opportunity to visit Berlin by the inaugration soon of a daily courier service between this city and the capital.

Couriers were decided upon, owing to the uncertainty of German mails and the slowness in transmission of documents of importance. Each courier will be accompanied by an officer, and the trip will be made by express trains between Cologne and Berlin, the running time being about twelve hours. Cologne is about two hours from Coblenz. Various Lieutenants and Captains will be assigned for trips from day to day and privates will be selected from different units assigned to Coblenz.

Federal Orders for Rolling Stock.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The Railroad Administration last year ordered 1,430 locomotives for 1918 delivery, at an estimated cost of $78,193,000, and 100,000 freight cars, at a cost placed at $289,460,000, the division of capital expenditures reported today. Of the total, 743 locomotives and 17,027 cars have been completed and delivered by the builders. An additional order for 608 locomotives for 1919 delivery has been placed, involving about $37,842,000.

DECLINES TO REVEAL WILSON'S MESSAGE

Padgett Badgered in House for Text of Cablegram for Big Naval Program.

POTENT WITH COMMITTEE

Says Communication Involved More Than Domestic Policy—Supported by Ranking Republican.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—In debate on the Naval bill in the House today Chairman Padgett of the Naval Committee, despite scores of inquiries, declined to reveal the text of President Wilson's confidential message on the naval building program read to the committee last week, which message, he said, had influenced the committee to make a prompt and unanimous report in favor of the program, all opposition disappearing.

The message was sent by the President to Secretary Daniels and by the latter transmitted to the House committee. In effect, Mr. Padgett said, the President insisted that nothing had developed since his going abroad which impelled him to change his request, made after the signing of the armistice, for a new three-year naval building program costing $600,000,000.

Mr. Padgett explained that Secretary Daniels, at his request, had cabled the President, asking whether his position on a big navy had changed since going to the peace table, and the President's message was in reply to this inquiry.

"Did the President's message contain any facts upon which the committee could form its own judgment, or was it simply an expression of opinion, like the question of the Panama Canal tolls?" asked Representative Gillett.

Mr. Padgett made no direct reply, but explained that the message said the President was willing to accept a proviso that if there should be certain developments in the way of disarmament and a League of Nations, he should be allowed to discontinue the building program.

"Was the alleged quotation in a morning newspaper, that failure to adhere to the three-year building program 'would be fatal to my negotiations'—intimating that the United States had only one negotiator over there—accurate?" asked Mr. Gillett.

"No, Sir; that was not correct," replied Mr. Padgett.

Representative Butler of Pennsylvania asked if Mr. Gillett has quoted words that in substance were correct.

"I will not give the words," said Mr. Padgett, "but the President was very earnest and very insistent that the three-year program be carried out."

"Did the President," asked Representative Rogers of Massachusetts, "use the word 'fatal'?" Mr. Padgett again declined to quote the exact language.

"It would not be proper for me to give the words used," he said, adding that the communication had been given to him by Secretary Daniels in confidence, and he had given it to the members of the committee in confidence.

"Is it the intention that Congress," asked Mr. Campbell of Kansas, "notwithstanding the program of world disarmament, should give this authorization for an increased naval establishment for the purpose of enabling the President to hold that over those with whom he is now in consultation. Is it a threat?"

"There was no expression or indication of any such purpose in his cablegram," replied Mr. Padgett.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4, (Associated Press.)—In debate today Representative Butler of Pennsylvania, ranking Republican on the Naval Committee, declared his opposition to making public the President's cable message.

"I don't think it would be fair to the President," he said. "I don't think I would have voted for the increased program had it not been for the President's message. However, Mr. Browning (from New Jersey) and I stood almost alone. The message did not affect the great majority of the committee. They would have voted for the increase anyhow. Therefore this message should not be given out, even though I hate secrecy and I believe the public should be given reasons why increases are necessary. Nothing which would injure the President should be done, even though some may dislike it."

Only one member of the House opposed the proposed naval expansion during the debate. Representative Huddleston of Alabama criticised the bill as representing a "policy of imperialism that would saddle the country with a burden of militarism" and would lead to another war. Representative Kelley of Michigan, Republican member of the Naval Committee, urged the expansion, as did Representative Miller of Washington, another Republican.

Bill to Save the Militia.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—A bill designed to continue National Guard organizations after their discharge from the army was introduced today by Senator Reed of Missouri, and referred to the Military Affairs Committee. He said it was offered as an amendment to the Army Appropriation bill, now in the House, and that the purpose was the "preservation of the National Guard system." He explained that it was drafted by National Guard officers to meet the situation created by War Department orders which would result in the disintegration of National Guard units upon demobilization.

Asks Pershing if He Favors Congress Investigating War

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—In a cable dispatch sent to General Pershing today, Representative Siegel asked the American commander if he favored a Congressional investigation of the conduct of the war, as provided by a resolution introduced by Mr. Siegel.

"Your efficiency and fairness impugned in Congress," said Mr. Siegel's message. "Do you favor an immediate Congressional investigation?"

GERMAN CABINET SHIFTS TO WEIMAR

several wounded soldiers he remarked to a titled companion:

"Will these swine infest the public parks forever?"

This remark was overheard by a member of the Soldiers' Council, who called his comrades and, following the Grand Duke, they gave him a sound thrashing, applying the whip to the Grand Ducal back amid the applause of many of his former subjects, who quickly gathered. Wilhelm was always one of the most-hated German Princes, which is saying a good deal.

More Troops Arrive at Weimar.

BERLIN, Feb. 3, (Associated Press.)—The situation at Weimar where the German National Assembly is to meet on Thursday, is showing marked improvement.

Additional Government troops arrived there on Sunday, and these, with the forces being collected east of Weimar, are believed to be sufficiently strong to defeat any attempt to interfere with the assembly.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 4.—The members of the German Government who arrived in Weimar Monday took up their residence in the palace, and later held a Cabinet meeting.

ULTIMATUM SENT TO BREMEN REBELS

Berlin Cabinet Spurns Compromise Framed by von Pritzelwitz, a Junker.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 3, (via Copenhagen.)—Von Pritzelwitz is back again and is trying to have his say in republican Germany. He is a type of the youthful Prussian Junker in name and manner, but has adapted himself astoundingly to the new conditions.

Von Pritzelwitz is one of Colonel Gerstenberg's adjutants, who was commissioned to negotiate with the Bremen Spartacides to avoid bloodshed. He came to Bremen, saw, and thought he had conquered. At any rate, this Junkerling succeeded in persuading the bloodthirsty Bremen Spartacides to accept a compromise on the main points of the clash, as reported yesterday.

With this document, indorsed by half a dozen more or less anarchistic leaders, in his pocket, he got into an automobile and started further on his triumphant mission. He had not gone very far, however, when he was stopped by a company of heavily armed sailors equipped with machine guns, men of the type who in October last murdered their own officers. They had come from the seacoast to aid the Bremen Spartacides.

Imagine the effect when the young officer, on being asked his name, introduced himself as von Pritzelwitz. It would have gone wrong with him despite the initial peace propositions in his pocket had not a passing Spartacide leader obtained his release.

At length he arrived safely in Berlin. The People's Commissioners assured him of their distinguished consideration, but declared that they had no use for his peace propositions, especially the paragraph stipulating that the arms of the Spartacides should be delivered to the 9th Army Corps. They wanted those guns and rifles themselves.

So poor von Pritzelwitz had to return to Bremen immediately with the following Government ultimatum:

"The Bremen Council of People's Commissioners must resign at once. On Monday a new Government must be formed on the basis of the vote cast for delegates to the National Convention. Immediately after the new Government has assumed affice, all arms must be delivered to the division of General Gerstenberg. If these conditions are unreservedly adhered to, the division of Gerstenberg will not occupy Bremen."

For the present von Pritzelwitz's part in this plebeian conflict is played out. He had sworn, as he assured the Bremen Spartacides, that there should not be any bloodshed if a von Pritzelwitz could prevent it, but, unhappily, when the Bremen anarchists became free of his mollifying influence they still more strongly barricaded Bremen's outskirts, mounted cannon and machine guns on the church towers and railway dams, and compelled the physicians to hold ambulances and themselves in attendance.

The latter did not have to wait long for business, for during the night reinforcements arrived from several quarters, and there was much shooting and some killing and wounding. Gerstenberg's men, who are still halting in the environs of Bremen, declare that the Spartacides shot their own reinforcements, mistaking them for an enemy, while the Bremen Soldiers' Council telephones that Gerstenberg attacked.

Von Pritzelwitz's absence also had a fatal influence on the Communist workmen of Bremen, who at a night meeting agreed unanimously that under no circumstances would they surrender their arms. So everything concerning Bremen is still in abeyance. Gerstenberg's division is waiting to learn if the Spartacides will comply with the Government's ultimatum.

Junker circles think it is too sad that von Pritzelwitz's peace negotiations failed, although they hardly care wether a little more or less proletarian blood is spilled. They hoped to show Erzberger and the rest of the present Government how peace negotiations ought to be conducted successfully and that von Pritzelwitz's diplomatic genius would prove that they were the only class ordained to administer the affairs of the German people.

BERLIN, Feb. 4, (Associated Press.)—The Communist People's Commissioners of Bremen have declared their readiness to resign and form a new Government, to be composed of men from all the Socialist parties on the basis of the vote cast in the election. The armed workmen have agreed to surrender their arms to the Soldiers' Councils of Hamburg and Bremerhaven. Thereupon the Commissioners will ask the Government to withdraw the Gerstenberg division.

As the Berlin Government's demands for the formation of a Government at Bremen on the basis of the elections to the National Assembly, namely, from the majority Socialists and bourgeois parties, excluding the Spartacides, and the surrender of arms to the Government troops have not been complied with, it is feared that a conflict is unavoidable.

A number of clashes have already occurred in and around Bremen. Volunteers from Bremen and the surrounding country are said to be joining the Government troops.

REVOLT IN EAST PRUSSIA.

Berlin Spartacides Seize Public Buildings at Koenigsberg.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—A majority of the Government buildings in Königsberg, East Prussia, have been seized by Spartacides from Berlin, according to a dispatch received in Copenhagen.

The Governor of East Prussia has declared a state of siege in the Thorn district and has instituted court-martials.

CHARGES ATTEMPT TO DISCREDIT WILSON

Hitchcock Asserts That Is the Reason for Republican Opposition to League of Nations.

BORAH ATTACKS TAFT PLAN

And Is Accused of Mixing Up the League to Enforce Peace with Paris Project.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—During debate in the Senate today on the League of Nations, Senator Hitchcock, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, accused the Republicans of opposing the project so as to discredit President Wilson with the nations sitting at the Peace Conference.

He accused Senator Borah of Idaho of deliberately mixing up ex-President Taft's scheme for a League to Enforce Peace with the League of Nations, in an effort to confuse the issue. No one, Mr. Hitchcock said, was qualified to speak on Mr. Wilson's ideas on the League of Nations because he had not yet enunciated them.

Senator Borah attacked the League to Enforce Peace project as inclined toward internationalism.

"When you transfer the sovereign power of this Government to some supernatural tribunal which will be controlled by those who are not responsible to the American people and thereby internationalize this Government you arrive at the same ultimate goal that Trotzky and Lenine are going to arrive at if they are permitted to," said Senator Borah. "What we need in this country is the fostering and strengthening of the national spirit.

"When this League to Enforce Peace goes across the country it will not tell you anything about the beauty of the American Republic. It will say that the time has arrived when we must transfer our capacity to take care of ourselves to a tribunal over which we have no control. What is the difference between that ultimate object to be obtained and the one for which Mr. Trotzky is contending?"

Senator Hitchcock, in reply, said that with the end of the war has disappeared the last vestige of the three great powers—Germany, Austria-Hungary, and Russia—that for centuries had waged wars of conquest.

"They lie in the dust today, dead, forever gone," said Senator Hitchcock. "With their disappearance from the world has disappeared the last lingering obstacle to international peace, perpetuated by an international agreement.

"And I want to ask if this great Republic, which has led the way in establishing in the world the right of men to govern themselves, hesitates to back its President in the fight he is now making in France to bring about a new era? These attacks which are made upon the floor of the Senate and throughout the country are calculated in their result, if not designed in their purpose, to hamper the President by conveying to the Old World the thought that America is opposed to his effort.

"These attacks are all directed against an imaginary League of Nations that is not seriously proposed except as a straw man to be knocked down. I cannot conceive, and no real friend of the League of Nations can conceive, of the possibility that the United States would enter into an agreement the purpose of which is to create a great international Frankenstein, with an army and navy so powerful that it might destroy the United States. I cannot conceive that Great Britain or France would ever enter into an agreement for the creation of such a monster, which might destroy one of the nations joining in its creation. No army or navy could force the United States to do anything, but the power of public opinion throughout the civilized world will be the supreme power, the moral power."

Senator Knox remarked that it "certainly would not be the position of the Senator from Nebraska that 'we do not know what it is, but we are for it.'"

"I may not know exactly what the league is to be, but I know what it is not to be," retorted Mr. Hitchcock. "It is not to be the monster that Senators on the other side of the aisle are attacking."

"Why does the Senator find fault with us?" demanded Mr. Borah. "We are not attacking anything the Senator stands for. We are not attacking anything the President stands for, so far as we know. But we are attacking a proposition which a most distinguished member of our party (ex-President Taft) stands for. Does the Senator object to our family quarrels?"

"I have not any very deep interest in what the Senator terms his 'family quarrels,'" replied Mr. Hitchcock, "but I have a very high respect for ex-President Taft and his efforts to bring about a great good to the world. I have withheld my support from what he proposes, but until I have something myself definitely to propose I shall not stand here and denounce him. I object to attacks on the Taft plan, which are so made as to injure the President's plan by giving the impression abroad of antagonism in the Senate."

SHERMAN ASSAILS WILSON.

Says Nation Drifts While President Palavers with Kings.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Senator Sherman of Illinois made another bitter attack on President Wilson today in a speech in the Senate, and included Henry Ford in it. Speaking of the President, he said:

"Nothing but the grossest egotism took him to the Peace Conference, where no Executive of any other civilized power sits. He cannot resist the lure of the limelight. The groups to which he panders applaud, and the average man looks on in silent but undisguised disgust."

At the opening of his speech the Illinois Senator asserted that self-government had disappeared from the American Republic.

"It is now the rule of the alleged superman at the head of the group or of class aggregations seeking their own advantage," he said. "It is the rule of selfish, ambitious, greedy, impractical and dreaming men. Some chase phantoms of idealism, others build class despotism founded on spoliation, others congregate about revolution and pillage unrebuked in public places. All reach the same result. Pulling down the successful from the higher lever of achievement to the plane of mediocrity is hailed as progress. To have succeeded in private purposes it is become a badge of infamy and the target of every blatant defamer the Government can discover and drag from obscurity into public office.

"Our country hovers on the borderland between peace and war. Some of our soldiers fight in the far north of Russia, under the Arctic circle, and others shovel coal and do day labor in French camps across the sea. While they risk their lives and endure hardships in alien lands our President spends nine weeks in ceremony, banquets, and visitings with Kings, the powerful of the earth, in endless stately palaver. It is the old story of magnificence and misery, of splendor and suffering, of selfishness and sacrifice. While he coins new phrases and chases infinite abstractions in the empyrean heights of impossible human yearnings, the American nation drifts.

"We drift in Russia. We drift in Mexico. We drift on the brink of war and peace. We drift on industrial reconstruction. We drift of domestic policies and internal peace. The only definite goal visible is profligate expenditure and huge taxes. The only voice in the dismal wilderness is an appeal from time to time to the mob to complete the ruin misgovernment began."

Referring to Henry Ford's fight for a seat in the Senate, Senator Sherman said:

"Now a contest is under way to enable Henry to annex the United States Senate to his jitney works. President Wilson says Bolshevism in Russia can be stopped only by feeding the murderous ruffians who plan to prey on the industry of the world. Ford informs us he can cure them by moving pictures. A Ford car will be shown doing a tailspin through a village with a constable possessed of fierce whiskers in pursuit."

Henry Ford's grasp of public affairs, Senator Sherman asserted, was measured by his "peace ark voyage to command peace by the mere majesty of his presence," and "the exemption of his son, Edsel, from military service."

"An alienist would say such a man's orientation is bad and no more fit to sit in this Senate than his son was willing to go in the army," said the Senator.

"When Mr. Ford became a candidate by Executive order," he said, "the President neglected to specify what primary ticket he must run on, so he took no chances of misinterpreting the order and ran on all of them. None of the parties wanted him, so in the scuffle he naturally fell into the bosom of the Michigan Democracy. It is in Michigan the residuary legatee of every Ishmaelite, anyhow, and so it drew Henry to an indifferent hand and tried to look happy. Somewhere there was another misunderstanding. It was agreed and Mr. Ford proclaimed last Fall there was no partisanship. So he entered the campaign, scorning politics and breathing lofty aspirations. He would not, said he, walk across the street or spend a dollar. Neither would he make a speech to be nominated or elected.

"Anyway, he went aboard a nonpartisan Oscar II., voyaging the Autumn seas toward the November elections. Trustful soul, destined to a rude awakening amid a tempest that drove him a hapless wreck to defeat! The President, like Ford himself, knows no limitation in politics. He therefore issued his proclamation in October, 1918, calling on the American people to elect none but Democrats. This deranged Henry's nonpartisan plan of navigation, and he sank under an adverse majority before the Michigan Democratic Central Committee could reverse his sailing orders."

GEN. CROWDER'S RECORD SHOWS NO REPRIMAND

Words in March Letter That He Objected to Eliminated by Baker.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Discussion at the Capitol of published reports that Provost Marshal General Crowder had been reprimanded by General March, Chief of Staff, led the War Department to authorize a statement today that General Crowder's entire military record was unmarred and to disclose the origin of the reprimand story.

It was stated that when the second draft was being planned General March and General Crowder differed over the provision for medical examinations and exchanged letters on the subject. The language of a brief abstract of General March's letter, which went to division heads in the course of departmental routine, was construed by General Crowder as implying a reprimand, and he took the matter up with Secretary Baker. The Secretary wrote in reply that he found no reprimand was intended, but that to make this clear he had had the language to which the General objected altered.

A resolution introduced yesterday by Representative Siegel of New York proposed that the Speaker of the House appoint a special committee to investigate various charges affecting the War Department, including one that General Crowder had been reprimanded for expressing his views before a Congressional committee. It was said at the department that the files showed letters exchanged between Secretary Baker, General March, and General Crowder dealing with differences of opinion regarding the draft program, but that there had been no reprimand.

CONNECTICUT BALKS AT PROHIBITION

Senate Rejects Federal Amendment—First State to Fail to Ratify.

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 4.—Connecticut, through the action of its Senate this afternoon, is the first State to decline to ratify the Federal Prohibition Amendment. Forty-four States through their Legislatures have voted for ratification.

It is believed that the Senate action definitely determines the attitude of this State, although the House of Representatives is expected to vote to ratify by a large margin. The vote in the Senate was 14 for ratification, all Republicans, and 20 against.

The first twelve amendments to the Constitution were not ratified by this State, nor was the Sixteenth Amendment, which relates to the income tax.

HARRISBURG, Penn., Feb. 4.—The joint resolution ratifying the Prohibition Amendment to the Federal Constitution was today adopted by the lower branch of the Pennsylvania Legislature, 110 to 93. The number of votes required to pass the resolution was 104. The resolution now goes to the Senate for concurrence.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 4.—The Senate Special Legislation Committee today reported a resolution for ratification of the Federal Prohibition Amendment, with a recommendation for passage. It was placed on the calendar for Friday.

BONE DRY BILL PREPARED.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 4.—A "bone dry" measure will be introduced early next week by Senator George F. Thompson of Niagara and Assemblyman Walter S. McNab of Schenectady, the lawmakers who led the fight for the ratification of the Federal prohibition amendment. The bill will define as an intoxicating beverage any liquor containing in excess of one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol, unless denaturized or otherwise rendered unfit for drinking purposes.

Robert C. Davey, counsel of the New York Anti-Saloon League, has spent days in preparation of the measure, of which a first draft reached the Capitol today. It was pronounced by lawmakers who read it as drastic and full of teeth.

WONG WARNED OF DEATH.

Called Daughter to Washington, Saying He Was Ill.

Special to The New York Times.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Feb. 4.—That Dr. Theodore T. Wong, noted Chinese educator, who was murdered in Washington last week, anticipated death is indicated by evidence found at the University of Michigan. Miss Helen Wong, his daughter, is a student at the university. It is now known that two days before he was murdered Dr. Wong sent a telegram to Professor Hutchins, President of the university, saying:

"Dr. Wong in critical condition. Tell Miss Wong to come at once."

Miss Wong is now in Washington, where she went expecting to find her father ill. He was dead when she arrived.

FRENCH AND GERMAN SOCIALISTS IN TILT

Engage at Berne Conference in Lively Debate Over Responsibility for the War.

THOMAS ACCUSES TEUTONS

Recalls Acts Their Party Approved—Renaudel Says Liebknecht's Blood Is Upon Them.

BERNE, Feb. 4.—A violent rhetorical duel between the French and German Socialists, with many reciprocal reproaches and accusations, marked the second sitting last night of the International Labor and Socialist Conference. The French side of the debate was in the hands of Pierre Renaudel, Albert Thomas, and M. Mistral.

Otto Wels, the former military commander of Berlin, defended the German position, and said that the German Socialists already had settled the question of responsibility for the war in having taken all power from the Princes and Kings. Wels accused Great Britain of having killed 700,000 German women, children, and old men by the "hunger blockade." He said that the exclusion of the German Socialists would impede the reconstruction of the Internationale.

Two resolutions were before the meeting. One, introduced by the Socialist Bureau, provided that a discussion of a Society of Nations begin immediately. The other, which was introduced by M. Thomas, provided that debate on responsibility for the war should come first. This resolution read:

"The Berne Socialist Conference, considering that a cataclysm deliberately loosed by a few men has inflicted upon the world nameless calamities and threatens to harrow up civilization itself, and considering, on the other hand, that all hopes of a just and lasting peace depend upon the possibility of founding a Society of Nations; that there can be no Society of Nations without trust, and that international public faith would remain forever compromised if the Governments which have violated it could escape punishment for their crimes and if Socialist chiefs who made themselves accomplices of these Governments were not branded outcasts by the Internationale, has decided to inscribe at the head of its agenda the question of governmental responsibilities in the causes of the war, that of violation of neutralities which had been placed under the guarantees of Europe and that of the responsibility of Socialists involved.

"On the other hand, the conference, considering that the future of socialism in the world is threatened with greatest dangers by new tendencies called Bolshevism, decides to place in the second position on its agenda the rôle of democracy in the establishment of Socialist order."

Herr Wels argued that the German Social Democrats should not be charged with responsibility for the war as none of them had been members of the Government when the war began. Germany, he said, had made war because of the menace of Russia. Carl Kautsky, he added, had been charged with the task of searching the imperial archives to ascertain the causes of the war. Wels said he hoped that similar work would be done in the allied archives.

M. Thomas recalled the attitude of the German Socialists at the outbreak of the war. He called attention also to their approval of the treaties of Brest-Litovsk and Bucharest. He declared that the Majority Socialists in Germany had approved of the great offensive of March, 1918.

Wels thereupon attacked M. Thomas and charged that he had driven Russia back into the war by the assurances he gave Premier Kerensky. He said that the Allies gave strength to the Bolsheviki by not attending the Brest-Litovsk conference. The German Socialist said that M. Thomas had made no protest against the conditions of the armistice "which are ruining Germany," so that the silence of the German Socialists when the German Government took a similar attitude toward the Allies ought to be understood.

M. Renaudel then entered into the debate and recalled the words of Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg that "necessity knows no law" as proof that the German Socialists must have known of Germany's crimes.

M. Renaudel said he regretted that Dr. Karl Liebknecht had become a Bolshevik, but that was because Liebknecht had lost confidence in the German Socialists.

"His blood falls upon you," M. Renaudel declared.

This morning the entire proceedings were taken up with a speech by Kurt Eisner, whose impressive exposition of the German and the international situation received much applause. There was, however, some incredulous headshaking, for instance, when Eisner made the statement that the German revolution was not a consequence of her military downfall, but the result "of our long and ardent socialistic propaganda work."

To this statement Eisner added that in the future "we shall act, act, act!"

REPUDIATE BERNE MEETING.

American Socialists See in It Deep-Laid German Scheme.

PARIS, Feb. 4, (Associated Press.)—The American Federation of Labor delegation, headed by Samuel Gompers, stated tonight that they had refused to attend the International Labor Conference at Berne because the delegation had been instructed by several of the American labor organizations to present their demands to the Peace Conference, which already has in view international legislation projects and is not likely to be influenced by the Berne Convention.

The statement asserts the belief that the proposals of the Berne Conference will be "German made" and points out that German labor had the right to present its demands at the final peace table.

The American labor delegates indicate that there is a possibility of meeting the German delegates after the signing of the peace treaty, but that meanwhile they will work with the Peace Conference and that the International Labor Committee will summon an interallied conference at Paris of organizations not represented at Berne.

Charles Edward Russell and William English Walling, in behalf of the Social Democratic League of the United States, gave out the following statement:

"As delegates of our organization we decline to go to Berne because, despite the pretension that the world's laboring classes are represented there, its principal movers are those in all countries who tried to cause peace when it would have meant the triumph of imperialism and the ruin of the working class democracy.

"We note that the General Federation of Trades Unions of Great Britain has no representation there, nor the Italian Socialist Party, representing the majority of the Italian Socialists; nor the Belgian Socialist Party, nor the American Federation of Labor, and that forty Socialists in the French Chamber of Deputies allowed their delegates to go only under protest, and under the threat that their action would be repudiated unless the Scheidemann group was excluded.

"We also note that one-third of the Berne delegates are recognized by the Bolsheviki as sympathetic with their doctrines.

"We believe that the Berne Conference is designed by Germany to redeem her from military defeat and avoid the payment of a just indemnity by intrigue and secret diplomacy."

STORY CHARGES DROPPED.

Judge Crain Dismisses Indictments Against Mother and Sons.

The indictments against Mrs. William Cumming Story and her sons, Allan and Sterling, charging them with violations of the anti-tipping law, were dismissed on Monday by Judge Crain in General Sessions. The indictments resulted from an investigation conducted by District Attorney Swann into the affairs of the National Emergency Relief Society, of which she was the President. Assistant District Attorney Kilroe told the court that the death of an important witness left the state with insufficient evidence to prosecute the cases.

Several weeks ago Mrs. Story, who was formerly Director General of the Daughters of the American Revolution and President of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs, objected to the indictments being dropped on this ground and moved that the indictments be disposed of in such a form as to exonerate her. Her attorney declared that the evidence before the Grand Jury was insufficient and partly illegal.

WANTED ONLY $20,000,000.

Gov. Philipp Had Policemen Waiting When Lunatic Came to Collect.

Special to The New York Times.

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 4.—Ralph C. Kennan of Portage, Wis., invaded the private office of Governor E. L. Philipp today, armed with a pistol and demanded $20,000,000. The Governor told him he would have the money ready for him if he returned in the afternoon, and Kennan readily consented.

When Kennan returned policemen concealed behind the doors of the Executive Chamber seized him, and after a struggle overpowered him and took him to the police station, where he was searched. Every pocket of his clothes yielded letters to prominent men all over the country, all demanding money. Analysis of the letters tended to show that Kennan had become unbalanced through continued study and belief in mental telepathy, as each letter contained at least one paragraph thrown into the body of the letter without connection explaining that subject.

One of the letters was addressed to President Wilson and asked what was delaying the appropriation of $365,000,000 "granted to him by agreement of members of both houses of Congress."

Would you brush your teeth if there had never been advertising of dentifrice or tooth-brushes?

Of course you would.

Still, there are those who need "education" in the use of dentifrice for teeth, soaps for scalps, concrete for roads, tractors for farms, and so on and on, a list as long as your arm.

Who is to educate the public?—the schools leave off somewhere between the ages of fourteen and twenty-two—the newspapers when anything ceases to be a nine days' wonder.

"Line upon line, precept upon precept"—that's education and that's advertising.

Over and over and over again until people learn to brush their teeth.

Oh no they don't! You're mistaken. The best available statistics indicate that only about 25% of the people in America brush their teeth. Advertising increases the needs of the individual and the best advertising multiplies the number of consumers.

For example, the magnesia makers show more people how to conserve coal, and another association teaches new uses for cement.

VEGETABLE DINNER

The American public eat too few vegetables. Their salt and bulk, or "roughage" as some call it, are most valuable for digestive troubles.

CHILDS Vegetable Dinners are prepared for those who would "eat and grow thin" as well as those who would "eat and grow fat".

If too fat, eat carrots (excellent for constipation), onions (excellent for colds and skin disorders) and cabbage (excellent for the blood).

If too thin, eat potatoes (rich in starch), string beans (rich in protein), beets (rich in sugar) and turnips (a general tonic).

FOR JOINT SYSTEM OF LABOR CONTROL

Commissioner Sayer Suggests Plan for State Regulation with Federal Aid.

SENDS GOVERNOR DETAILS

Soldiers' and Sailors' Protective Association Asks for $50,000 to Carry On Work.

Unemployment and methods of alleviating it were discussed at a meeting of the Committee on Unemployment and Demobilization of the Governor's Reconstruction Commission yesterday afternoon in the offices of the commission in the Hall of Records. The work of the American Soldiers and Sailors' Protective Association was indorsed by Commissioner Sayer of the State Industrial Commission and by William J. Shieffelin of the National Civic Federation, an organization which had investigated its activities. Mr. Sayer presented a plan of reorganization of the employment service, the details of which he has sent to Governor Smith for his consideration. It is based upon the idea of State control and Federal aid. Morris J. Ernst of the City Club elaborated upon this plan, urging that a law be passed abolishing all private employment agencies.

The case of the Soldiers and Sailors' Protective Association was presented by Wilfred C. Dittoe, President; Harry E. Prettyman, and Eugene Greenhut, Vice Presidents.

The association made the definite proposal that they be given $50,000 to put their work on a sound basis, as they had shown its worth from the fact that in the first week they had secured 380 jobs for men. Mr. Sayer suggested that the $50,000 might be provided in some way from the $200,000,000 war fund of the seven war organizations, as the money had been given directly for the soldiers.

Mr. Sayer told the commission that he had talked to the Governor about the whole unemployment situation, and that as a result he had some definite proposals to make, proposals which were embodied in a letter he had sent to the Governor. He read the gist of the plan from the letter:

> To my mind, it is unthinkable that there should continue to be a separate State and Federal employment system in operation within this State, serving the same interests, meeting the same problems, and in rivalry, albeit friendly, one with the other. The friendliest kind of co-operation in such a case cannot make up for the fundamental lack of co-ordination.
> Three suggestions for the solution of this problem have been offered, namely:
>
> 1. An exclusive State system.
> 2. An exclusive Federal system.
> 3. A joint Federal-State system under the central control of State officials, but with financial aid contributed by the Federal Government and with a joint Federal program and policy.

Mr. Sayer said that he favored the last system, and calculated that on a peace basis it would cost the State $500,000 a year.

Tilden Adamson of the United States Employment Service, speaking for Dr. Kirchwey, the Director, told the commission that the city could help the work by setting an example in stimulating public works, especially as $8,000,000 had been appropriated for schools and was not being used.

Other speakers were Frank W. Smith of the Knights of Columbus, Dr. Robert T. Hill of the War Camp Community Service, and Edward Arnold of the National Catholic War Council.

The New York State Employment Service made public yesterday the number of men and women who registered for places in the week ended Feb. 1, the number of places offered, and those that were referred to jobs and those that were placed. The lists follow:

NEW YORK CITY.

	Men.	Women.	Total.
Registered	8,226	1,815	10,041
Wanted	13,388	4,280	17,668
Referred	7,837	2,688	10,525
Placed	4,115	1,355	5,470

NEW YORK STATE, INCLUDING THE CITY.

	Men.	Women.	Total.
Registered	11,463	2,641	14,104
Wanted	15,999	5,640	21,639
Referred	10,347	3,944	14,291
Placed	5,622	2,229	7,851

Knights of Columbus secretaries who travel on the transports will soon be given cards to be distributed among returning soldiers requesting information as to the man's former occupation, the name of his previous employer, and his address. The cards will then be sent to the headquarters of the Knights of Columbus employment service, and thence to the 1,700 councils throughout the country. The secretaries who will seek employment for the men, will work in co-operation with the United States Employment Service.

MEASURE FOR LEGITIMACY.

Assembly Bill Affecting Certain Children Introduced by Mrs. Lilly.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 4.—Judges of the Children's Court and other agencies interested in the welfare of children are behind a bill introduced today by Mrs. Mary M. Lilly of the Seventh Assembly District, Manhattan. The bill provides a method for establishing the legitimacy of children born out of wedlock. According to Mrs. Lilly, the bill was promoted by the increase in the illegitimate birthrate during the war.

The bill provides that the identity of the father must be established in a court of law. This done, the child has the right to its father's name and an equal right in inheritance with children born in wedlock.

Legislative leaders tonight were not prepared to make any prediction regarding the fate in store for the bill. The measure was sent to committee in accordance with the usual practice, and will come up for public hearing within a fortnight. Measures of a similar character which have been before the lawmaking body have not received serious consideration.

OPERA

By James Gibbons Huneker

Galli-Curci in "Linda."

Last night at the Lexington Theatre Mme. Galli-Curci made her first appearance this season in Donizetti's "Linda di Chamounix," opera in three acts and sung in Italian. Here is the cast of a work that has not been interpreted here by any important artists since Adelina Patti in April, 1890:

The Marquis	Vittorio Trevisan
Carlo	Forrest Lamont
Parish Priest	Virgilio Lazzari
Antonio	Riccardo Stracciari
Madalena	Maria Claessens
Linda	Amelita Galli-Curci
Pierotto	Carolina Lazzari
Peasant Girl	Myrna Sharlow

Conductor, Giuseppe Sturani.

Popular as is "Linda in Italy" today, there is no question that it has dated. To the audience last night, and it was very large and ready for outbursts of enthusiasm, the opening act in Chamounix was rather pedestrian. The libretto of Rossi might have come from an Eugene Sue romance of the sort popular in the middle of the last century—pretty rustic. Old Marquis vieux marcheur type. The father who curses his child. Venerable imbecile. Sobbing mother—and, after all, nothing really happened. Virtuous heroine. Mad scene, acquiescent flute. Tenor hero, a bore. Madness vanishes. All is for the best in this best of possible worlds. But if the melodrama palls, the music of Donizetti is still vital—some of it. The mad episode aforesaid is occasionally heard in the concert room, and, frankly, it sounds more sincere—if sincere madness there can be; ask Bernard Shaw—than the Lucia mental eclipse. There are fewer roulades, and the voice and flute generally travel in thirds or sixths; which is better than unisons, usually a severe test for the ear of the prima donna. The second act is full of comedy, good old-fashioned Transpontine sort. It is also the dramatic high-light of the opera. The last act, with its return of the native, we were forced (no one had to hold us in our stall) to miss.

The performance was excellent. As the wicked nobleman Vittorio Trevisan won applause, and legitimately, with his amusing comedy. He relieved a lugubrious scene, for there is much wailing by the ingenuous folk of Chamounix. Forrest Lamont was Carlo; anyhow better than the Peeping Tom of "Isabeau." Virgilio Lazzari and Riccardo Stracciari received a demonstration after their stirring duo in Act 1.

Pumped up pathos abounded, and Stracciari pulled out the agony stop too often, but his acting was finished and his singing so charged with feeling that he shared honors with the star. His appearance before the curtain was received with such an outburst that Galli-Curci, always charming in matters of this sort, gracefully withdrew and the favorite baritone had the stage to himself. Handsome Caroline Lazzari, a contralto, was well liked. But there were a half dozen different tone-productions at work and the stroke of the glottis was heard in the land—we are almost tempted to say Flatland, did we not remember that Flatland is only in two dimensions of space and all of the artists occupied three or more.

Amelita Galli-Curci was given a cordial reception. In a new rôle, wearing a white Marquise wig in Act II., she seemed like a stranger. She was in good voice, sang with her accustomed fluency, and after a slight nervousness had disappeared she was once more Galli-Curci; that is, she sang meltingly and her middle tones were like legato velvet; she showered scales and staccati and trills, but the aerial floating quality of her upper register was not as last year's. That she would sag from pitch was to have been expected. It was marked in her first air. Proper breath control is the cause of this unhappy failing; one phrase finished, the next can't be "jacked up" in time, to use a homely simile, hence the consequent lapse.

Yet, what a sweet voice, what an engaging personality are Galli-Curci's. Musical from her forehead to her instep, she delights her auditory with her unaffected pathos and larklike facility. When she is in the vein she soars vocally. Her acting is conventional. She was comely as her natural self. After Act II. the rather apathetic audience awakened to the fact that it was Galli-Curci, and took her, metaphorically, to its bosom. And there were plenty of hospitable bosoms present, ex-President Taft and War Secretary Baker among the rest. On Friday night we expect the Diva in a more responsive mood and sympathetic rôle, Lucia. The audience comprised the most fashionable and artistic people in town.

Hulda Lashanska, Soprano, Pleases.

Hulda Lashanska, whose admirers filled Carnegie Hall to hear her last evening, possesses a soprano voice of rare, almost fragile beauty, unlike any other that has come to maturity in New York since that of Alma Gluck. She sang with exquisite taste with velvety pianissimo topnotes, such lighter airs as Tschaikovsky's "Serenade," given in French, which had to be repeated, and she showed dramatic intelligence and darker tones of the silvery voice in an air in Italian from Faccio's "Hamlet," to which was added another encore. Isidore Luckstone, who accompanied the first Sembrich recitals here, assisted at the piano last night in place of Kurt Schindler. Mme. Lashanska's program included airs of Gluck, Mozart, and Haydn, and songs of Grieg, MacDowell, Mana Zucca, Marion Bauer, and others. Mr. Gatti-Casazza was with Mme. Sembrich in the full tier of boxes. The audience was enthusiastic and there were many flowers.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 4.—Some days ago, after unfavorable comment had been made on the omission from Governor Smith's annual message to the Legislature of any recommendation for amendments to the election law which would restore the convention as an agency for the nomination of State officers and candidates for judiciary positions, the Governor strongly intimated that if the Legislature would take the initiative he would give his approval to legislation of that character. Tonight, when the Governor learned that two Republican legislators, Senator Charles W. Walton of Ulster and Assemblyman George R. Fearon of Onondaga, were preparing to introduce a bill for that purpose, he indicated that the measure would find no favor with him if the Republicans succeeded in passing it.

"The Legislature would do much better by getting at problems that affect the welfare of the whole people, and not merely the manner in which the next Governor is to be nominated, especially as the nomination of the next Governor is a year and a half off," said Governor Smith.

When asked to define the problems with which, in his opinion, the Legislature should busy itself, the Governor said that taxation, municipal ownership, minimum wage legislation, and health insurance commended themselves to him as far more urgent and pressing.

The Walton-Fearon bill will be presented to both branches of the Legislature at tomorrow's session.

The bill provides for the nomination of State officers and judiciary candidates only at conventions to be held on the eighth Tuesday before election and made up of delegates elected at a direct primary election on the ninth Tuesday before election. The bill provides that the Assembly district shall be the unit of representation and that the basis of representation shall be fixed by the State Committees of the respective party organizations.

Novel features of the bill are a provision made for the naming on petitions for the designation of delegates of the preference of any group of petitioners in the matter of nominees for office, which, where set forth, would be binding on the delegates, and a provision that where no such preference is stated in the petition voters at the primary election where delegates are chosen may write in on the ballot the names of persons they would like to see nominated. The Secretary of State or custodians of primary records are required under the terms of the bill to certify what number of voters have expressed a preference for one candidate for the nomination or another.

FIGHT RECONSTRUCTION BILL.

Republicans in Legislature Inclined to Deny Funds to Commission.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 4.—The bill providing an appropriation for Governor Smith's newly appointed Reconstruction Commission was not, as had been expected, taken up for consideration in the Assembly today. Instead, it was ruled off the calendar and debate on the measure postponed until tomorrow, when a lively contest on partisan lines is expected. The Governor and his friends are showing fight tonight following this action by the Republican majority.

The Republican leaders are inclined to view the commission as a vehicle for the political advancement of the Governor, and also resent his failure to consult them before appointing the commission, and to give them an opportunity to name at least part of its personnel.

BROOKLYN MEN QUIT BECAUSE OF HEARST

EXPECT OTHERS TO FOLLOW

Independent Citizens' Committee May Be Formed Across the Bridge as a Further Protest.

Three members of the Brooklyn Victory Celebration Committee who urged Nathan S. Jonas last week not to yield to the demand of the sympathizers of William Randalph Hearst that he resign as Chairman of the committee yesterday sent their resignations to Borough President Reigelmann. Two other members of the committee also announced their intention to resign after they learned that Borough President Reigelmann had accepted Mr. Jonas's resignation nothwithstanding the unanimous vote of support given to the Chairman by the Executive Committee.

It was reported among members of the general Victory Celebration Committee yesterday that all but about six of the members of the Executive Committee would resign as a protest against the attempt of Borough President Reigelmann to enforce the demand of Hearst and his sympathizers that James M. Beck should not speak at the meeting in the Brooklyn Academy of Music last week, as well as against the acceptance of Chairman Jonas's resignation. Reports of a proposal to form an independent citizens' committee in Brooklyn as a protest against the injection of politics into the affairs of the committee also were heard. The Independent Citizens' Committee in Manhattan already has offered its support and co-operation.

Those who resigned from the Brooklyn committee yesterday were Meier Steinbrink, the lawyer, Chairman of the Sub-Committee on Medals; Fred Gretsch, Chairman of the Sub-Committee on Music, and Victor A. Lersner, the banker. Others who have announced their intention of resigning are G. Foster Smith, Chairman of the Finance Committee, and Alfred T. White, Associate Chairman of the Committee on Permanent Memorial. Four other persons resigned from the General Committee. They were Colonel George A. Price, a civil war veteran; Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Davenport, and Edward F. Stevens.

"Your action in ignoring the unanimous wish of the Executive Committee can only be interpreted as your election to sacrifice what is best for Brooklyn in the interest of your own political ambition," wrote Mr. Steinbrink to Borough President Reigelmann. "My view is that no self-respecting person can continue on this committee, except with the understanding that all committee action must first meet with the approval of your political masters."

Mr. Jonas yesterday denied the assertion made by Mayor Hylan that he had been rebuffed when he sought to take part in the Mayoralty campaign in favor of Hylan by hiring the "biggest theatre in Manhattan" for a meeting. He gave out a copy of a letter written to Hylan on Oct. 30, 1917, in which he said that although Hylan's secretary had asked permission to use Mr. Jonas's name on the Campaign Committee he had refused because the "low level" of the campaign had restrained him from making up his mind between the two candidates. The letter gave permission to Hylan to say that Mr. Jonas finally had made up his mind to vote for him.

The strong, evenly controlled motor has an effect parallel to the developed diaphragm breathing of a trained singer—firm and sure. SECRETARY BAKER SEES TROOPS DEBARK

Compliments Work of 44th and 60th Artillery Here on Transport Cedric.

H. R. MALLORY BRINGS 1,755

These, with 1,706 on Liner Duca d'Aosta, Reported Off Sandy Hook, Will Debark Today.

Two transports, the Cedric and the Henry R. Mallory, arrived yesterday from France with 5,262 troops, but only the 3,507 on the Cedric were debarked. The officers and men on the Henry R. Mallory and the 1,706 troops aboard the Italian liner Duca d'Aosta, reported last night off Sandy Hook, will be landed this morning at Hoboken.

Army officers on the Cedric which brought the 44th and 60th United States Coast Artillery, said that when they left Brest on Jan. 25, there were 68,000 troops in the port waiting to embark for home, and the 27th Division, including 785 officers and 24,058 enlisted men, were expected next day. George Harkhorn, a wagoner, attached to Battery E of the 44th Field Artillery, died of pneumonia Jan. 31, and was buried at sea.

While the troops were landing at the White Star pier, at the foot of West Twentieth Street, Secretary of War Baker was noticed standing at the foot of the gangway watching the men debark. The Secretary said that he was at Hoboken when the Cedric passed and he thought that he would like to see the coast artillerymen land. After complimenting the officers upon the good work done by the two regiments in France Secretary Baker drove away to catch the Congressional Limited for Washington.

The 44th Regiment, commanded by Major Robert N. Campbell, left for France on Aug. 14, 1917, went into action in April, 1918, and continued until the armistice was signed. The 2d Battalion, commanded by Captain J. B. Wagon, lost 10 per cent. of its strength by casualties. The 1st and 3d Battalions fought in the Champagne district, and were attached to the French First Army, commanded by General Gourand. They smashed through the Hindenburg line on July 15. Seventeen were decorated with the French War Cross.

The 60th Coast Artillery, composed chiefly of men from the old Virginia National Guard, under the command of Lieut. Col. Fairfax Ayers of Rye, N. Y., got into the thick of the fighting in September in the St. Mihiel sector. On Sept. 26 the regiment supported the 77th Division in the battle of the Argonne, and were supporting them at Sedan when the armistice was signed on Nov. 11. The regiment had five citations and five of its members were awarded the D. S. C. Colonel F. H. Lincoln, who took command of the 60th Regiment when Colonel J. E. Wallace was killed on Oct. 24, said that the casualties reached as high as 17 per cent. at one time.

The Henry R. Mallory was four days late from Brest with 1,755 officers and men, among whom were 126 sick and wounded. The transport was so buffetted by westerly gales and head seas that the Captain was forced to put into the Azores for coal, fresh provisions, and to refill his water tanks. She has on board the 327th Field Artillery, 32 officers and 1,255 men, chiefly from the Middle West.

CLASH WITH BAKER.

Senate Propaganda Committee Finds Information Refused.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—At the public session of the Senate Committee Investigating Propaganda today Senator Overman announced that he had requested Secretary Baker to furnish to the committee the Military Intelligence file which refers to H. J. H. von Engelken, who was formerly in charge of the Farm Land Board in South Carolina. Senator Overman said he had asked for the file as a result of a letter he had received from ex-Governor Manning and ex-Senator Benet of South Carolina. In reply to Senator Overman's request, Secretary Baker said he did not think it compatible with the public interest to make the file public.

There was much discussion of the Secretary's attitude. Senator Nelson said that if Mr. Baker continued to veto the requests of the committee the investigation of German propaganda might just as well be brought to an end. Senator Wolcott characterized the Secretary's attitude as forming a dangerous precedent that should not be permitted to go unchallenged.

Subsequently a letter from Secretary Baker was produced which showed that he was willing to let the committee have the von Engelken file if it persisted in the request. The Secretary wrote that he would help the committee in every way in his power.

Bolshevists Active in Chile.

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 3.—Dispatches from Chile report an alarming situation at Antofagasta, where it is said that disorders which have been prevailing for some time have taken an admittedly Bolshevist turn. It is said that the agitators are demanding the establishment of a new Government. The police are said to have captured documents showing a list of business houses which are to be sacked and destroyed by mobs.

PASSPORTS FOR SOCIALISTS.

Will Be Permitted to Attend Congress at Berne.

The State Department has issued passports to Algernon Lee, Socialist Alderman, and James Oneal, an editor of The New York Call, to attend the International Socialist and Labor Congress now being held at Berne. The passports were issued shortly after President Wilson's request was transmitted to the State Department. The Socialists hope that John M. Work of Iowa will also be permitted to go. The delegates were chosen by a referendum of the Executive Committee of the Socialist Party.

When he was asked to comment on the reported refusal of Samuel Gompers to attend the Berne congress in the face of President Wilson's desire that he go, Mr. Oneal said last night that the attitude of Mr. Gompers was not a matter of surprise to Socialists here. "We could have anticipated it, as it is in keeping with his general conservative views," he added.

Mr. Oneal said that the statement of Charles Edward Russell and William English Walling, cabled here from Paris and calling the Berne congress a plan to help the Germans, was "amusing."

PACKWOOD CLUE IGNORED.

No Effort Made to Find Man Who Called Mrs. Ellsworth.

Although the body of Miss Azeele Packwood, who committed suicide under the Palisades, was identified a week ago, following a mysterious telephone call to Mrs. Bradford Ellsworth, it was said last night that neither the police of New York nor New Jersey had tried to discover this mysterious caller.

Mrs. Ellsworth said last night that she had received no further communication from the man who called her that night, and that the police had not questioned her on that point.

Prosecutor Huckins of Bergen County said he was satisfied that Miss Packwood had committed suicide, and that the case was at an end.

R. E. Moore Art Brought $142,015.

Returns for the Oriental art collection of Rufus E. Moore, the final sale of which was held at the American Art Galleries yesterday afternoon, were $142,015 for 1,453 numbers. The total for the afternoon was $8,715. Exhibition cases in which the collection had been housed brought some of the higher prices of the afternoon. A. A. Auston paid $640 for two pairs of large exhibition cases with frames of ebonized wood; $200 for a mahognay case carved, with cabriole legs, and $180 for an exhibition cabinet with steel frame. An imperial enamel plaque, Chien-lung, went to R. Craft for $230; E. G. Kennedy paid $135 for a Peking enamel table of the same period, and J. Z. Noorian $130 for a Graeco-Roman glass bowl with beautiful rainbow iridescence.

The Spirit Of Sterling Service

FOR eleven years, STERLING Tires have been sold almost entirely from maker to user and we have been in touch with them until they came back to us for repair, or as "junk." Thus we have had intimate personal knowledge of their performance.

Our business has been large enough to give us the benefit of adequate, efficient and economical organization, but not so great as to lose the element of personality.

Ours is a distinctly human concern, because the men who own the business work in it. We build Tires that we can confidently sell to our friends and neighbors.

We guarantee them 5,000 miles (6,000 in 30x3½ and 31x4), but we expect them to give very much more and we build them on that principle. We KNOW that every STERLING tire that is kept properly inflated and that is not badly damaged by accident, or abuse, will give more than the guaranteed mileage.

We want and intend them to give excess mileage, so we REPAIR THEM FREE OF CHARGE, in all of our thirty-six branches, as long as the condition of the tire will justify the repair.

STERLING Super-Size Cord Tires are the crowning result of our eleven years of experience. We will not say they are the "best on earth," but we do believe it impossible to make tires any better—and we know many that are not as good.

Many of our commercial customers who keep accurate records, tells us that STERLING Tires cost them less per mile than any others they have used. We like to deal with people who keep accurate records.

Any good dealer can fill your order.

THAT the Nash Six with Perfected Valve-In-Head motor has proved itself unusually powerful, economical and quiet in the service of owners throughout the country was generally conceded by those forming the crowds which visited our exhibit at the show yesterday. And after inspecting this car and its fine motor, the reasons for this good performance seemed to be readily understood.

GET HIGHEST HONORS

Congressional Medals Awarded by Pershing to 10 Officers and 31 Enlisted Men.

MANY IN LIST ARE DEAD

Numerous Instances of Machine-Gun Nests Being Attacked Frontally in Argonne Fighting.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The award of forty-one Congressional Medals of Honor, America's highest military decoration, which previously had been given to only three men for service in the great war, was announced today by the War Department. Two lists of awards were issued, one bearing the names of two officers and nineteen enlisted men and the other those of eight officers and twelve enlisted men.

The medals were awarded on recommendation of General Pershing for "conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty." Some of the medals were awarded posthumously. The complete list of awards follows:

Lieut. Col. Emery J. Pike, 1,808 Tenth Street, Des Moines, Iowa, division machine gun officer, 82d Division, who died of wounds, collected twenty men of scattered infantry units during an advance and later assembled several platoons and established a line, overcoming disorganization so that the position could be held. He was wounded by shellfire while going to the assistance of one of his outposts who had been wounded.

First Lieut. George S. Robb, 308 South Twelfth Street, Salina, Kan., 369th Infantry, held his position on the front line all night, although severely wounded twice, and, although wounded twice again the following day, assumed command when his Captain and company officers were killed, and by flanking the town of Sechault with machine guns aided his battalion in holding it.

Captain Edward C. Allworth, Crawford, Wash., 60th Infantry, swam the canal of the Meuse to lead the advance when artillery had destroyed the bridge while a company was crossing under his personal leadership. The enemy was thrown back out of machine-gun nests and 100 prisoners taken by Allworth's handful of troops, paving the way for a larger advance.

Lieutenant Harold A. Furlong, 2,950 West Grand Boulevard, Detroit, 353d Infantry, who captured four machine-gun nests single-handed and brought back 20 prisoners when his company had been held up by machine-gun fire.

Private Dashed Through Barrage.

Private John J. Kelly, 6,149 Kimball Avenue, Chicago, 78th Company, 6th Regiment, Marine Corps, ran 100 yards through the American barrage to attack a machine gun nest, killing the gunner and one of the crew and returning through the barrage with eight prisoners.

Corporal Harold W. Roberts, San Francisco, gave his life when the tank he was driving slipped into a water-filled shellhole, and, knowing that but one of the two-men crew could escape, Roberts pushed his companion out, saying: "Well, only one of us can get out, and out you go."

Sergeant William Sawelson, 315 North Fifth Street, Harrison, N. J., Company M, 312th Infantry, carried water to a wounded man and was killed by machine gun bullets while attempting a second trip.

Second Lieutenant J. Hunter Wickersham, 3,416 Colfax Boulevard, Denver, 353d Infantry, ordered and led an advance of his platoon after his right arm had been crippled by shell fragments and continued firing his revolver with his left hand until he fell from loss of blood. He died before aid could reach him.

First Lieutenant Samuel Woodfill, Fort Thomas, Ky., 60th Infantry, personally captured three machine-gun nests one after the other, killing or capturing their crews. As he was about to jump into the third nest with his revolver, two Germans in a nearby nest turned their machine gun on him. Missing them with his revolver, he grabbed a pick and killed them both.

Private Nels Wold, McIntosh, Minn., Company I, 138th Infantry, captured a machine-gun nest and eleven prisoners, and later rescued a comrade about to be shot by a German officer, whom Wold killed. Wold was himself killed while rushing a fifth machine-gun nest.

Deadly Work with Shotgun.

Sergeant Lloyd M. Sibert, Salinas, Cal., Company F, 354th Infantry, remained with his platoon although ill and charged an enemy machine gun, killing one of the crew with a shotgun and capturing two others. Although wounded, he continued in action until the last unit returned, when he volunteered and brought in wounded until he fainted from exhaustion.

Major Oscar F. Miller, 1,727 West Fifty-first Street, Los Angeles, 361st Infantry, personally led a charge in the Argonne Forest, although shot through the leg and arm, and when a third bullet through the abdomen brought him to [illegible] his wounds.

Captain George H. Mallon, 1,931 Hallock Street, Kansas City, 132d Infantry, with nine soldiers captured nine machine guns without loss while separated from his company, and later captured a battery of four 155mm. howitzers and its crew. Mallon attacked the enemy with his fists in charging the battery and later personally made a frontal rush against two machine guns which he silenced, his energy resulting in the capture all told of 100 prisoners, 11 machine guns, four 155mm. howitzers, and one anti-aircraft gun.

First Sergeant Sidney G. Gusperts, 701 West 178th Street, New York City, Company E, 132d Infantry, rushed a machine gun nest from the front through an artillery barrage, capturing the gun and its crew of nine.

First Sergeant Johannes S. Anderson, 4,854 West Ferdinand Street, Chicago, Company B, 132d Infantry, silenced and captured a machine gun nest unaided and brought back 23 prisoners.

Private Berger Loman, 1,888 North Spaulding Avenue, Chicago, Company H, 132d Infantry, captured single-handed a machine gun blocking the advance of his company and turned it on the retreating enemy.

Private Clayton K. Slack, Lampson, Wis., Company D, 124th Machine Gun Battalion, captured 10 prisoners and two heavy machine guns single handed.

Sergeant Willie Sandlin, Hayden, Ky., Company A, 132d Infantry, captured three machine gun nests without aid.

Private Frank Bart, 428 Plane Street, Newark, N. J., Company C, 9th Infantry, twice silenced single handed enemy machine gun nests holding up his company's advance.

Corporal John H. Pruitt, Phoenix, Arizona, captured two machine guns, killing their crews, and later captured 40 prisoners single handed, only to be killed himself while on sniper duty.

Waded Stream Under Crossfire.

Captain Marcellus H. Chiles, Denver, Col., 356th Infantry, led the battalion he commanded forward against a machine-gun crossfire, wading waist deep across a stream to reach the enemy and crawling on his hands to follow. He died of his wounds.

Privates Jesse N. Funk, Calhan, Col., and Charles D. Barger, Stotts City, Mo., Company L, 354th Infantry, for rescuing wounded 500 yards in front of the American line, making two trips as stretcher bearers under machine-gun fire.

Sergeant Reidar Waalker, no address, Company A, 105th Machine Gun Battalion, for rescuing two wounded men from a burning British tank under artillery and machine-gun fire.

Sergeants Alan Louis Eggers, Summit, N. J., 107th Infantry, and John [illegible] Infantry, and Corporal Thomas E. O'Shea, Summit, N. J., for rescuing an officer and two men from a damaged American tank and by means of the machine gun from the tank standing off the enemy all day from a shell hole within the enemy lines. Corporal O'Shea died of wounds.

Sergeant James I. Mestrovitch, Fresno, Cal., Company C, 111th Infantry, for rescuing his wounded company commander, 30 yards in front of the line. He has died since.

Private Frank Gaffney, Lockport, N. Y., Company G, 108th Infantry, for going forward alone with an automatic rifle when all other members of his squad had been killed, attacking and capturing an enemy machine gun, killing the crew, bombing several dugouts, and killing four of the enemy with pistol fire. When reinforcements came up eighty prisoners were captured.

Sergeant Harold I. Johnston, Denver, and Private David B. Barkeley, San Antonio, Texas, Company A, 356th Infantry, for swimming the River Meuse to obtain information as to the enemy's position on the opposite side.

Killed Six; Captured Ten.

First Lieutenant James C. Dozier, Rockhill, S. C., Company G, 118th Infantry, who advanced with one soldier, although painfully wounded, to attack a machine gun crew with hand grenades when his two platoons were held up by enemy fire.

Sergeant Richmond H. Hilton, Westville, S. C., Company M, 118th Infantry, who attacked an enemy machine gun with rifle and pistol, when his company was flanked, and killed six and captured ten of the enemy. Hilton's arm was blown off by a shell.

Sergeant Garey Evans Foster, Inman, [illegible] grenades and pistol, unaided, killing several and capturing eighteen prisoners.

Sergeant Philip C. Katz, San Francisco, Company C, 363d Infantry, who returned, when his company had retired 200 yards, to rescue a wounded comrade.

Corporal John C. Villapigue, Camden, S. C., Company M, 118th Infantry, who continued, without aid, on a scouting trip 500 yards in advance of his platoon after his three comrades had been killed or wounded. He killed four of the enemy with hand grenades, and later rushed a machine-gun nest and killed four and captured six of the crew and two light machine guns, although severely wounded in the arm.

Corporal James D. Heriot, Providence, S. C., Company I, 118th Infantry, who, with four comrades, attacked an enemy machine-gun nest and, when his squad was dispersed, charged alone with fixed bayonet for thirty yards and forced the enemy to surrender, receiving several wounds. Later on the same day he charged another machine-gun nest and was killed.

Private Calvin John Ward, Morristown, Tenn., Company D, 117th Infantry, who captured a machine-gun nest, killing three and capturing seven of the crew and their guns.

Private Archie A. Peck, Hornell, N. Y., Company A, 307th Infantry, who rescued two comrades wounded on patrol duty, twice crossing through terrific machine gun fire to reach them.

Private Robert L. Blackwell, Hundles, N. C., Company K, 119th Infantry, who volunteered to carry a message when his platoon was almost surrounded by the enemy and was killed in the attempt.

Sergeant Wilbur E. Colyer, South Ozone, L. I., Company A, 1st Engineers, who volunteered with two other soldiers to locate machine-gun nests, captured a German gun, turned it on other nests, all of which were silenced. He was killed in action later.

74th ANNUAL REPORT

346 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

(Organized under the Laws of the State of New York.)

To the Policy-holders and the Public:

Any intelligent man knowing that he must immediately go to war would take any life insurance policy, for almost any amount offered by any responsible company at any reasonable price.

It gives us all something of a shock to realize that the deaths in our army during this unprecedented war just closing have recently been surpassed many times over by the epidemic deaths in everyday life.

Influenza, we are told, up to January 1, 1919, had already killed as many young and vigorous persons in the world generally as were killed by bullets and disease in four and a half years of the war.

The wisdom of an adequate surplus in life insurance is now demonstrated. The folly of New York State in imposing a severe limitation on surplus—against which this Company especially protested in 1906 and since—is also demonstrated.

Through a period of years the mortality of all soundly conducted companies, in spite of influenza and other unforeseen calamities, will in all likelihood come well within the tables; but we now understand that incidents can arise through which mortality may temporarily exceed the provisions of very conservative assumptions. It is comforting to know that neither war nor influenza can make any material difference to you as a member of this Company, because as against such startling incidents this Company long since made abundant provision.

From this there are two fair deductions:

> First—INSURE—there are just as many and just as sound reasons for insuring your life during days of peace as there are for insuring during times of war.
>
> Second—insure in companies that have aimed above all things to achieve safety. In these days SAFETY sounds better than CHEAPNESS.

Our mortality up to the outbreak of influenza promised to be, in 1918, about 61% of the mortality provided for in the premiums; it was actually 95% of the expected. If this epidemic persists during 1919 your so-called dividends may be reduced in 1920; they remain substantially unchanged in 1919:

An Address of Loyal Russians to the American People

We Russian refugees in this country, who have lost all, even our Motherland, lost because we remained faithful Allies to the end—we, by our sufferings, have acquired the right to speak openly and frankly. Even more, as the representatives of an Allied nation, we consider it our moral duty not to remain silent when we see others repeat the mistakes and misunderstandings for which our unhappy country has had to pay a price so tragically dear.

Therefore, we Russian workers in the field of business and public service, united in the Russian Economic League, consider it our duty to give our answer to the perplexing question which is now heard on all sides, the question of why American soldiers are fighting in Russia and why American blood is being spilled there. The popular answer is that America has no aims there and no responsibility and the demand is made therefore, that the troops be withdrawn at once. Is this popular demand a wise and just answer to the question? We feel it our duty to reply.

The American soldier is fighting in Russia;

1. In the name of humanity and for the honor of the American people.

2. For the protection of American homes from the gravest danger that has ever threatened them.

When a handful of designing and ambitious men, under the banner of ultra-revolutionary phraseology organized the immoral and criminal elements of a great country and seized supreme power, only two courses remained for a loyal and honorable Russia, utterly enfeebled by her heroic efforts to continue the war; to await the help of her Allies or to ask the assistance of her former enemies and half-enemies.

Loyal Russia, without hesitation or wavering, chose the first course. She waited for the help of her Allies and this help was categorically promised to her.

On the direct demand of responsible representatives of the Allied nations last summer the Russian national army together with the Czechoslovaks began the adavnce on the Volga Front. They were assured that they would receive active assistance from the Allies. This help did not come and the national army of the Siberian Government was forced to retreat. The population of the evacuated towns and villages, compromised for their sympathy for the national army, were given over to wholesale plunder and slaughter.

Inevitably the same fate awaits all those parts of non-Bolshevik Russia which have compromised themselves in the eyes of the Bolsheviki by their connection with the Allies.

Under these conditions have we not the right to assert that the American soldiers in Russia are fighting in the name of humanity and for the honor of America?

Once the Allies have undertaken this task in Russia and assumed this responsibility, upon whom would rest the guilt of the innocent blood of women and children whom the Bolsheviki would murder with the cruelty hitherto unknown in history, if the troops are withdrawn.

We can understand that last summer a refusal to send forces might have been made and the Russians left to decide their own fate as best they could, but to withdraw now means to sign the death warrant of tens of thousands of the citizens of an Allied nation. There are debts of honor which cannot be repudiated, however heavy the price.

There is a second reason why American soldiers are fighting in Russia, and this is not on Russia's account, but for the sake of their own country. America has not experienced the horrors of German invasion, and she has not experienced them because she recognized in time the danger that threatened her liberty and had the good fortune to be able to fight this danger on the other side of the ocean.

At present the whole world is confronted by a new danger—a danger as great as that of German imperialism—the threat of an organized attack upon the institutions of civilization by a group of brazen and shameless criminals which by a network of lies and fraud has drawn into its meshes simple-minded and politically immature people.

Bolshevism is aggressive by nature. It cannot confine itself within the boundaries of Russia. If you do not destroy it there, it will come to destroy you here.

Understand, therefore, clearly and distinctly, that as American soldiers on the battlefields of France defended American hearths from the Germans, so now in Russia they are defending them from the Bolsheviki. Every success of the Bolsheviki in Russia makes their adherents and sympathizers raise their heads here in America, and every success of the loyal Russians is a triumph over Bolshevism and the Bolshevik revolution everywhere in the world. Among the Bolshevik adherents are those who know what they are about and those who are ignorant of what they are doing. In the latter category are those who are misled by the stupid lie that there is some kind of Soviet institution of government in Russia which may be distinguished from the Bolsheviki, and all those sentimental pacifists who did not and do not understand the inevitability and the defensive character of the two wars—the war against the Germans and the war against the Bolsheviki.

It is only necessary to note the joy with which the news of the possibility of the withdrawal of the American forces has been met in Bolshevik circles, to realize for whose advantage such a withdrawal would be. The adverse conditions on the Archangel front should not be allowed to strengthen the pacifist position, and we have reason to believe that as the Germans have not seen the backs of American soldiers in France so American soldiers in Russia will give a good account of themselves and not be forced by reasons of political experiences or fear to turn their backs upon the common enemy.

A GREAT ECONOMY BECAUSE OF EXTRA WEAR

"After a trip to Kilauea, the active volcano of Hawaii, my Neolin-soled shoes were the only ones not absolutely ruined. Many in our party wore hob-nailed boots," said Miss Jean P. Lane of Seattle, Washington.

The sharp jagged lava of Kilauea cuts an ordinary sole to pieces quickly. That Neolin Soles stood the test but emphasizes their toughness and durability. These qualities are built into them by a scientific process. Women—and men and children, too—who are hard on shoes should buy them with Neolin Soles. They come in many styles, and because of the extra wear they give, are a great economy.

And any repairman will re-sole your worn shoes with Neolin Soles, which are flexible and waterproof as well as long-wearing. They are made by The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., Akron, Ohio, who also make Wingfoot Heels, guaranteed to outwear all other heels.

DRAMA

By John Corbin

Mrs. Fiske at Her Best.

Mrs. Fiske has a way of serving her admirers with either a feast or a famine. The last year or two have been lean ones, but she made ample amends last night by appearing in a character which in many respects stands on the high level of her best, and which, in one or two respects, surpasses anything she has yet done.

As that frequently tedious thing known as a work of dramatic art, "Mis' Nelly of N'Orleans," perhaps falls somewhat short. On the program Messrs. Cohan & Harris (who have become Mrs. Fiske's managers with the most fortunate results) call it "a Comedy of Moonshine, Madness and Make-Believe." If judged by the standards of the workaday world, it would probable be found incredible, preposterous. But the person who can so judge it when beneath the spell of Mrs. Fiske's humor and vivacity is much to be pitied. In spirit certainly, if not in the letter, it is as deeply true to human nature as it is overwhelmingly delightful.

It is a story of Creole atmosphere and character, taking place in an old garden on St. Charles Street. To the cold Northern view, all the characters are quite preposterously childlike and extravagant; and if Mis' Nelly mystifies them, and dominates them while mystifying them, it is because she is the most extravagantly childlike of them all. She has left New Orleans for Paris back in '86, having been virtually jilted at the altar. Now she returns, in the years when middle age merges into old age, to find that her niece is secretly engaged to the son of the man who jilted her. It is a case for "diplomacy." But in the Creole nature diplomacy takes strange forms.

In order to arrive at the truth of the situation, Miss Nelly makes up as an old woman, with portentous spectacles and an ear trumpet, hobbling about on a stick. Then, when she has plumbed the heart of it, she throws off her disguise and appears as quite the youngest, most vital, and mischievous creature thereabouts. "I shall dance till I'm ninety," she says, "or till my legs refuse to budge—and then I'll play the castanets." And one believes her! With the good priest, who was once the innocent cause of her own sad story, she plays tenderly, delightfully, reverently. But upon the man who so rashly jilted her she visits a series of very bad quarters of an hour, driving him to rage and desperation and ultimately reducing him to abject surrender.

But the maddest of her moonshine is visited upon the son of her old lover, whom the whirligig of time now presents as the jilted object. She exerts all her wiles upon him, interests him, delights him, and brings him to an outburst of Creole passion in which he proposes to her. The couple actually spend a tempestuous night seeking a clergyman to unite them. And all the time Mis' Nelly is rocking with laughter, even while she thrills to the romance of it.

In the end, of course, she brings her infantile lover back to the old garden and relinquishes him to the arms of her niece. Though this be madness, there is method in it—or rather something far better than method, namely, the inspiration of a womanly Peter Pan who can never, praise be, grow up.

The performance gains much from the quaint Creole English spoken by one and all, the accuracy of which is vouched for by no less an authority than George W. Cable. Mis' Nelly's outbursts are graphically described as "fits of sassy"; and everywhere compendious modern slang (even a big "d...n" or two from Mis' Nelly) mingles with the highfalutin' of Southern eloquence.

Many of the lines are tipped with the humor of keen observation. Commenting on the nakedness of modern manners and dress, Mis' Nelly says: "A lady's ankle was somethin' worth watchin' for, back in '86. When a man got married he took a spo'tin' chance!" In brief, the play is that rarest of all things in the theatre, a star vehicle, complete and perfect.

The lion's share of the honors, however, went to Mrs. Fiske. In spite of the nervousness which marks all her first nights, syncopating her speech and leaving the more delicatae shadings of character vaguely defined, there was no escaping the electric vitality of the performance, its breadth of basic humanity, its sparkle of wit, and flashes of golden humor. Eventually Mis' Nelly seems destined to take rank among the most subtle and finished of Mrs. Fiske's impersonations. Already it must be acclaimed as the most laughable.

Metropolitan's Operas Next Week.

Maria Barrientos, just arrived for the last ten weeks of New York's opera season, is in the bills at the Metropolitan next week, when Caruso has a special holiday matinée, and there is a first concert appearance for the young soprano, Rose Ponselle. Sunday's all-Verdi program includes Ponselle, Rappold, Braslau, Kingston, Montesanto, Mardones, and Rossi, with Papi conducting. On Monday Frieda Hempel takes here leave in "Crispino," with Braslau and Scotti, followed by the ballet "Petrushka." Wednesday next will present an afternoon "Aida," with Caruso, Muzio, Claussen, Whitehill, and Mardones, and that evening "Faust," with Farrar, Martinelli, Chalmers, and Rothier. There are a Thursday "Boris," with Matzenauer, Didur, and others; Friday "Rigoletto," Barrientos, Hackett, and De Luca; Saturday matinée, "Lodoletta," Caruso and Easton, and Saturday evening, Feb. 15, "Tosca," with Farrar, Lazaro, and Scotti. "Tosca" is also just announced, with Dolci, Fitziu, and Rimini, at the Lexington, the same night.

Irene Williams in Song Recital.

Irene Williams, a soprano, who has once before appeared in Aeolian Hall, gave a recital there last evening. She is a singer of promise, of vivacious presence, and her program covered a wide range of both language and style. In Mozart's air from "Il Re Pastore," she was assisted with violin obligato by Nicholas Garagusi, as well as by Francis Moore at the piano. Boito's "Death of Marguerite" was interesting in a group of older Italian airs, while among French songs was "La Belle du Roi," by Augusta Holmes, and in English, pieces by Zucca, Kramer, Spross, and Moore.

LABOR'S STRATEGY.

No prizefighter has a truer instinct for the solar plexus than have the English unionists in revolt against their leaders, who use the resources of civilization as skillfully as the German Generals. Society is only held together under modern conditions by means of communication. A city can no more exist without its communications than can an army. The British strikers accordingly cut the communications of their enemies, those who pay their wages, and those whose comforts, or even their lives, depend upon their means of going to and from their work, and of getting food, heat, and light. Because of a dispute whether a half hour for luncheon should be taken from the time of the masters or the men London's rapid transit system was stopped. Because the electricians want a forty-hour week London is to be thrown into darkness tomorrow night, and all power distribution by electricity is to be stopped.

It is obvious that the worth of the labor or the size of the wage is no part of this labor dispute. Neither the individual wage nor the wage arranged for the mass by collective bargaining is compared with the cost of living, or excessive profits. The decision rests upon the extent of the distress to be created by these servants of the public utilities. If the disorder and discomfort are sufficient they will extort a ransom which will give them an appetite for more, to be got in the same way. This is worse than socialism. It is anti-social in conception, and near Bolshevist in execution. In one word it is war, and invites opposition in kind. Accordingly we read of cavalry and machine guns and tanks being prepared against the rioters who are driving willing workers from their tasks. How anarchical the situation is appears from the fact that the rank and file of the unionists are repudiated by their leaders, the most respectable of whom are resigning.

Those who have met the phrase "direct action" and have wondered what was meant have an example here. This illustrates the temper behind those who complain that labor power is considered a commodity, to be bought in the market, and who show their superior humanity by proportioning their success to their power to inflict discomfort or misery upon the more the better. Only in part is this demonstration a matter of condition of work. The strikers say that their object is to "remodel trade-unionism." When the model is completed it may be hoped that it will be kept on the other side of the ocean. We want no unionism of that sort here, but we are not without danger from it. Our Socialist-convict Congressman-elect was astonished that there should be anything obnoxious to the law in his counsel that those of his way of thinking should provide themselves with rifles to support their votes if they were defeated at the polls. Within a week, the anarchists have placarded a New York town with their warnings. Our academic agitators who are surprised to see what company they have been keeping may be shocked into prudence.

Argument is wasted upon men using such weapons to attack society, and destitute of scruple about what they do. The suggestion that they should take over a factory and show how it ought to be run is like using a fire extinguisher on a volcano. The strikers do not want to produce what they demand to be paid them. They want to be paid from the accumulations of the labor of others. The same offer was formally made in December to an agricultural implement works in Prussia, whose owners volunteered to surrender it for the experiment. According to the Danzig Gazette, the workmen upon deliberation concluded they would profit more by keeping the skilled management. When the Russian Bolsheviki were asked what they would do if they took the places of the clerks in the counting room they answered, "The same as you; "sharpen pencils and smoke cigarettes." The notion that all work is muscular is the root of the idea that labor produces all and should have all. That idea is not more absurd than the other notion that capital can pay wages out of itself indefinitely. The only source of permanent wages is production. There is no other source of plenty for all, both wages for workers and profits for capital. The theft and division of what has been accumulated results in anarchy and famine instead of freedom and plenty in Russia. It could not be otherwise elsewhere. If the outlook is lengthened to take in no more time than farmers need to raise crops, it is seen that jobs must produce goods, as well as wages, if there is to be prosperity for wage earners, to say nothing of the others who must live on the output of the factories. According to figures said to be official, the socialization of 513 Russian factories resulted in an excess of costs over income. At the date of publication the result was rather worse than Government operation of our railways, the deficit defrayed from the Bolshevist treasury being given at one billion rubles. The saying "Other skies, other customs," has no application to Socialist economics wherever applied under whatever name. In Russia, or Germany, the result has been what it would be here if we should be tempted to follow them in their curious practice of humanity.

HINTS FOR NEW YORK TAXPAYERS.

The necessity of amending our State tax laws is undeniable, but there is equal hope, and there might be equal relief, in bettering the administration of the laws we have. For example, last week it was discovered that thirty acres in Northport were listed and paid taxes as eighteen. In Pigeon Hill a development company checking up its acres found that taxes had not been paid on them for fifty years. A Wheatley Hills estate was assessed by Babylon, but is in Huntington. A neighboring property has never been listed in either town. The list of tax errors from this locality is not exhausted, and there is no reason to suppose that they are worse than like errors elsewhere. There are perhaps some few localities where the taxes are as closely collected and at as full values as in this city, but that is not the rule. The rule is discrimination against the city, and it has been so for generations. In 1871 the special tax commission reported: "There cannot possibly be "found a single instance in the whole "State * * * where the law as re-"spects the valuation of real prop-"erty is fully complied with, and "where the oaths of the assessors are "not wholly inconsistent with the "exact truth."

When there is a disposition to adopt so many novelties for curing a fault so grievous it is worth while to recall the maladministration of existing laws. If taxes were collected throughout the State as they are in this city, perhaps there would be money enough, and it is even more likely that there would be more restraint in the voting of taxes to be paid in the country as well as in the city. Besides, if there can be such serious and long-standing abuses under old laws, there is reason to suppose that there might be a similar experience under the best of new laws. In proportion that the new laws are more productive than the old there would be a disposition to evade them and an invitation to extravagance with funds so easily got. It is said that one way to cause the repeal of bad laws is to enforce them. It is also true that one way to render novelties in reforms unnecessary is to execute existing laws which are better than the manner in which they are allowed to be abused and to fall into disuse. There is need of reform, but also that way danger lies along an untried path. Now, if only city and country were taxed alike, and if only some of the country assessors could be punished for perjury—but why imagine so vain a thing?

WHAT IS TO BE DONE IN RUSSIA?

They are making peace, or they are going to make it, in Paris. They are going to provide for the future peace and security of the world. Meanwhile, in Russia, the warriors of the most fatal and brutal and selfish war in the world are carrying on their campaign of cruelty and class. What that war is we know too well. It does not stop. It has no terms of treaty or compromise. It has the merit of being absolutely intelligible. And we, all the civilized nations, must not intervene. The Red Guards may drive, they are near driving, the poor little American force that is all we have dared or cared to send, into the sea. The Czechoslovaks we admire, but must not help. The Governments of Russians that have opposed the deliberate madness of the Leninites and Trotzkyites we must not aid. What is the sacred character of these sons of murder that they must not be attacked? When a great nation is held helpless by an extreme minority, aided by foreign mercenaries, why must we not, why must not all the friends of order and civilization, "intervene"? It may be too late now, but last April it was not too late.

Was it the I. W. W., was it chaste consideration of conscientious objectors and what not, that kept us back? We saw the blackest murder, the most deliberate permanent intentional loot and rapine, the willed destruction of all the intelligent and all the thrifty, planned and done. But we were restrained from doing anything about it. There are sympathizers with the Bolshevist type of revolution, apparently, that love its doings, and the conglomerated soapboxes of the world demand that Russia, exploited by intelligent madmen, shall be left alone.

That intolerable cruelties and such widespread works of destruction as never before the world has seen should go on, unchecked, uncontrolled, in Russia, is revolting to our sense of humanity, but we shouldn't interfere with "self-determination" or some other sacred symbol of universal disaster. We must "keep our hands off."

The Bolsheviki could have been put down, easily put down, six months ago. We preferred to be kind to them. Not alone for harried Russia, but for civilization itself, attacked on the eastern border, and subtly or savagely assailed in every country by the partisans of anarchy or class supremacy, must this work of disorganization be put down. It means the downfall of endurable economic and social life. Are we to be so tender to this company of scoundrels that is ruining Russia and the rest of the world? They intervene with strikes and other weapons of German propaganda. We mustn't. Let them destroy their own country and stretch fatal hands to other countries. We must fold our hands.

Russia is not the only nation involved in this series of calamities, but let Russia have what her people want—representative government, agrarian reform—whatever all-Russia needs she will be sure of from outside. From the Lenine-Trotzky gang she will get nothing. The hopes of the Russian peasants, the immense majority of the Russian people, the hopes of the free world, irritated and endangered by a pretense of peace that coddles permanent hatred, depend upon the action to be taken or not to be taken in Russia.

These are conditions of the past, of the present. What of the future? The nations at Paris had a plan. They invited all the Government groups of Russia to a conference. The invitation is declined, the plan fails. Our readers will recall that we had not looked for its success, could not feel that it was justified, unless the Conference at Paris had knowledge of the impending collapse of the Bolsheviki or of some other favoring circumstance which might promise good results from an exchange of views. It appears that there was no information of that kind the invitation was prompted by hope alone. Was there an alternative plan? Will the Supreme Council now come to some other decision respecting Russia? It should have some plan in view, unless it is resolved to leave Russia to "stew in its own juice," a course which no one could pretend would be in keeping with the high professions of justice and humanity proclaimed at Paris. After defeating Germany, it should be a well-nigh intolerable humiliation for the Allies to know that their troops are retreating before so mean a foe. That is only one of the disagreeable fruits of the policy of indecision. Either we should have sent into Russia troops enough to restore order and give the people a chance to establish a Government, or we should have sent none at all. All the other problems before the Paris Conference are in a way to a happy solution, it seems. Will there be an attempt to solve the Russian problem?

BANNING THE SUBMARINE.

The truth of the report that the League of Nations Committee will propose the abolition of submarines as warships may be assumed. It would not be sufficient to restrict the use of them. The suggestion has been made that within the three-mile limit they should be allowed for defense, but what nation that defied the League could be trusted to keep its undersea boats in its own waters? Imagine a Germany once more powerful and aggressive paying heed to any inhibition embodied in the code of nations! The submarine must be banished as an instrument of warfare, never to be tolerated again even for defensive purposes. There must be no risk of its appearance in any sea or water, on any coast.

The building of submarines should be forbidden by the Peace Conference under heavy penalties, all nations represented at Paris to be placed upon their honor. Punishment could be inflicted by trade boycotts, the offender to be isolated and cut off from communication with the rest of the world. Such a thing as a combination of two or more nations to defy the League and resort to methods of warfare condemned by the Paris Conference is unthinkable. If the submarine is put on the proscribed list it will become an odious memory.

There can be no half measures. To argue that surface warships can defend themselves against submarines, and that, therefore, if merchant ships were made immune from attack by amendment of the law of nations, submarines would be legitimate units of a navy, is dangerous logic. To say that the weak nations should have submarines to protect their ports against a great sea power is to ignore the determination of the victorious Allies that no nation, however weak, shall be oppressed again or imposed upon. No powerful nation that broke the new code could be trusted to forego the building and use of submarines in a war that it provoked. There is nothing to do but scrap the submarine and have done with it forever. For commercial uses the undersea boat would not be worth while. It could not pay its way; and there would be the temptation to desperate outlaw nations to convert such a craft into a war vessel. No submarines at all!—that way lies security.

The Peace Conference at Paris has powers never possessed by The Hague tribunals, which could do little more than frame codes to be ratified and indulge the hope that they would be observed. Various methods of barbarous warfare were put on the blacklist by The Hague Conferences of 1899 and 1907, with loopholes, in the form of provisos, through which any nation so disposed could drive its sea or land forces, as was done by combatants in the great war, first by Germany and afterward in self-defense by her opponents whom she had sought to destroy. Yet The Hague Conferences inspired a hope, which in humane minds became a faith, that if nations must go to war they would never resort again to barbarous practices. Secretary Root in submitting the work of the Conference of 1907 to the Senate said:

> The achievements of the two Conferences justify the belief that the world has entered upon an orderly process through which, step by step, in successive conferences, each taking the work of its predecessor as its point of departure, there may be continual progress toward making the practice of civilized nations conform to their peaceful professions.

But it was recognized that a Hague Conference was no more than a moral force, and with that thought in mind the CZAR NICHOLAS, destined to be a pitiful victim of the greatest and cruelest war in history, said that "one must wait longer when planting an oak than when planting a flower." The Peace Conference at Paris can lay the foundations of a League of Nations to carry into effect the code it builds. It has the opportunity not only to legislate authoritatively, but to supply the instrumentalities for enforcing its mandates. The oak planted by the Peace Conference will not be a seed, but a tree fair to look upon and already strong of fibre.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Committee Properly Constituted.

For the personnel of the Roosevelt Permanent Memorial Committee there will be general approval and satisfaction. As the members of it say in their preliminary declaration or prospectus, they are men who knew Colonel ROOSEVELT intimately in one or another of his many and varied activities. They are well qualified, therefore, to decide what form should be taken by the memorial—to make it, that is, one which would have had his own approval in the case of another man of his qualities and ambitions.

And it is safe to prophesy that any determination reached by them would be accepted as judicious and fitting by the public, and that there would be no difficulty in raising the funds required for carrying out their plan, even though the amount needed to do it should be a large one.

The American public, as a rule, is not particularly interested in undertakings of this sort, its attention being given to the living rather than to the dead, to the future rather than the past. Colonel ROOSEVELT, however, was an exceptional man, his relation to his countrymen was exceptional, and exceptional are the feelings that make him, as it were, a still living presence, exercising much the same influence as before he passed out of sight. His devoted friends were innumerable, and even his enemies—they were less enemies than antagonists, as all can realize now—will be ready to join them, not so much in perpetuating his memory as in giving it substance and visibility.

A Definite Plan Desirable.

With every circumstance favorable to successful achievement, the Roosevelt Permanent Memorial Committee shows what seems to be wholly unnecessary caution—a timidity to which the Colonel himself would have been a stranger—in not facing the responsibilities created by its abilities. Certainly, the question of what the memorial shall be is one deserving of careful consideration, but let the members of the committee do the considering, and the deciding as well, instead of waiting for suggestions from that vague and unapproachable and inarticulate thing, the public. Until they have a definite proposal to make, the chances are that their appeal for contributions will have but few responses—few, that is, in comparison with those sure to be received if the committee formulates a plan the congruity and excellence of which will be apparent to all except the few negligibles who inevitably would prefer some other plan to any that might be chosen.

Possibly the committee has been a little hasty, too, in the one decision it proclaims as having been made already—the decision that "the memorial which the American people ultimately dedicate to THEODORE ROOSEVELT shall not be merely a thing of stone and bronze." That sounds well, and "dynamic" the Colonel certainly was, but "a thing of stone and bronze" may be a noble and inspiring thing, doing its work for many ages, while a memorial of another sort might in the course of time cease to command, or even to deserve, admiration. That, indeed, is a chance to be taken like another, but at least some of Colonel ROOSEVELT's friends would like best a memorial that was a memorial and nothing else. In the performance of this pious task, they would prefer to ignore the thought of even incidental advantage to themselves or anybody else.

A Romance Breaks Off Short.

Nature's inferiority to art is well illustrated by a story that comes from the little town of Seymour, out in Indiana. The other day there alighted from a train there a young man in the uniform of the United States Marines, and it was noticed that he walked rapidly up and down the platform of the railway station and examined with a special intentness—something between anxiety and hope—the faces of all the young women who happened to be there. A reporter ventured to ask him for whom he was looking and if he needed help in finding the object of his obvious search.

The marine was in confiding mood. He showed a snapshot photograph of a handsome girl, and said that he had taken it himself, eighteen months ago, after a few minutes' talk with its "subject" on that same platform. Then he was on his way to the war, and, as the stay of his train at Seymour had been brief, neither participant in the little conversation—a conversation of a sort very common in those days—had thought to exchange names and addresses, though they had promised to write each other. But the young man carried the picture with him to the front, took it through a lot of hard fighting, and now he was back and couldn't possibly be happy if fate did not give him a chance to—well, to tell her all about it.

Of course, the girl should have been there on the platform, again by chance, and she would have been in any well-regulated novel. But, in reality, she wasn't, for only art has construction and climaxes and the working out of events in logical sequence to completed endings. Not only was she missing, but none of the sympathetic bystanders to whom the photograph was shown recognized the face or could give any information about its vanished owner.

So the marine mournfully departed from Seymour, as nearly broken-hearted as it is permissible for a good soldier to be, and some other girl, who by no possibility could be as nice as the one about whom he had been thinking so long, is going to catch him. But what does Dame Nature care?

Would Be Rulers Themselves.

Whatever else HJALMAR BRANTING, the President of the Berne Conference, may have, evidently he lacks the sense of humor. Otherwise he would not have said in his opening address that only the ruling class was represented in the Paris Congress, while in his congress it was the working class.

The absurdity, the naiveté, of this lies in the very obvious fact that the aspiration of revolutionary Socialists is not to abolish a ruling class, but to depose the present members of it and put others in their places.

Russia is the great exemplar of this purpose carried into practice, and it has gained a "ruling class" infinitely more ruthless and despotic than the one it lost. In Germany, too, the Spartacides are bitterly opposed to the establishment of the one form of government that does away with a ruling class by distributing power among all classes. What they want is to keep all power in one class—their own.

They hate democracy far more than they hate autocracy. As a matter of fact, they do not hate autocracy at all. To be autocrats themselves is their fierce determination, the height of their ambition.

The Highland Land League.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of Jan. 13 there was an article concerning war charities. In the last paragraph the remark is made that among those who have been requested to cease their activities was Seumas Chief of Clann Fhearghuis of Stra-chur and Clann Ailpein, &c.

The Highland Land League, for which I have spoken, is not a war charity. It has been in existence 100 years, and numbers about 70,000 in Scotland, with headquarters at 161A Strand, London, with powerful branches in all the colonies. The Honorable Secretary is G. J. Bruce, Esq.; Vice President, the Hon. Ruarai Erskine of Marr, Gloucester House, Regent's Park, London, S. W., editor of The Scottish Review, Guth na Bliadhna, &c.; bankers, Lloyds, Ltd.; auditors, Chantrey & Chantrey, Lincoln's Inn, London.

The league represents a purely economic movement for the Scots Highland Clanns. It aims to reclaim them out of the frightfully congested cities, and in the case of returning soldiers, which all Highlanders are, to turn their activities to agriculture and native industries, developing them on a modern economic basis. It hopes to break up the huge deer forests into clachans, or farm villages, thus preventing emigration and consequent ruin to a land where 3,519,678 acres, or 18 per cent. of the whole area of Scotland, are given over to sport and where in some parts one can travel twenty miles without seeing a house or hut of any kind.

With all due regard, no one in the United States can come forward and say he has been solicited by me or any representative of the Highland Land League here to give charity. Hence it would be manifestly impossible for me to cease activities I never began. As a private individual this comment would matter little; but, bearing the title of Hereditary Chief of a tribe of Scots Highlanders dating from 503 A. D., and one that has since that time helped materially to make the history of Scotland, it is necessary for the sake of my clann that wrong impressions should be corrected.

SEUMAS CHIEF OF CLANN FHEARGHUIS OF STRA-CHUR.
New York, Feb. 3, 1919.

THE CALL.

All our dead Heroes
Who are living still—
George of the soft Heart
And the iron Will;
Paul of the dark eyes,
(Little Man of Might!)
Who on a blood-washed deck
Had "Just begun to fight"—
Rise from your long sleep,
Proudly arise!
We too have fought and won
Victories.

Lee of the noble face,
Steadfast and brave,
And he into whose hands
His sword he gave,
Each served the right he saw
With fearless gaze,
Let not old hatreds stint
Their meed of praise!

All our dead Heroes
Who on land or sea
Have paid the high price
Of Liberty!
Behold them once again
With new-lit eyes!
For we have made their dreams
Realities.

"We," say I? Ah, not so!
Who—who are these
Who have so lately faced
Death's mysteries?
Still with the battle blood
Staining each breast,
Youngest of all this throng
Called from its rest;
Waking as children wake
Awestruck from sleep,
Yet with the eyes of men
Who love-tryst keep?

These are the ones who went
O'er the sea's foam,
And e'en with coming Peace
Will come not home;
Who still in boyish bloom
E'en life did give,
Into a nation's Heart
Dying to live;
To them the debt we owe
The glory give.

Now low on bended knee,
This prayer be prayed!
Come now each spirit high,
Come to our aid!
Hard is the task—a world
To be remade.

Steady each trembling hand,
Each vision clear!
Banish the spectres dim
Of doubt and fear!
Grant us the patient mind,
The listening ear!

Give us the strength to climb
Yon slippery steep,
Leading the way for those Millions who creep
Out of old tyrannies!
Must this not be,
Now we have fought and bled
To set them free?

All our dead Heroes,
Humbly we bow
Before your unseen power—
Fail us not now!

ALICE MAUDE EWELL.

TELLS ST. DUNSTAN'S WORK FOR THE BLIND

Sir Arthur Pearson Describes Efforts to Regain Normality to New York Audience.

RELATIVES HARD TO HANDLE

Men Are First Taught to Dance, Then to Read with Fingers, Then to Use the Typewriter.

How blinded English and Canadian soldiers had been "reconstructed" so that they were earning from three to seven times as much as before the war, how even men who had lost an arm as well as their eyes had been brought to the point where they suffered no disadvantage in the company of normal humans, was told by Sir Arthur Pearson, the blind founder and director of St. Dunstan's Hostel for Blinded Soldiers in London, at the Century Theatre last night. Colonel James Bordley, an American, who is to carry on the same work in Baltimore, opened the meeting, and as Sir Arthur spoke, Helen Keller, who is deaf as well as blind, sat on the platform and received the lecture by means of finger impressions upon his palm. Douglas C. McMurtrie presided.

Before Sir Arthur started with the audience through St. Dunstan's he paid tribute to those who had made the work possible. He said he had looked all about London for the most appropriate place; he said "looked," and commented that he could "see" as well as any one, only he saw with his other senses, and that the beautiful plot of sixteen acres with its magnificent building facing upon the 650 acres of Regents' Park, seemed the one place in the world. He cabled to Mr. and Mrs. Otto H. Kahn, the owners, for leave to use it, and the response was immediate. "Just as I believe the foundation of the splendid victory won in this war was the British Navy," he said, "so I believe the foundation of the victory over blindness was the splendid generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Kahn."

The goal of all the work, Sir Arthur pointed out, is "normality." Everything that has been connected in the past with the suffering and the handicaps, and the incapacities of the blind, was thrown overboard, for, he said, if a man has any trouble and you keep rubbing it in long enough, he will really succumb to it. "We have nothing to do with affliction. We don't know what it is. We have nothing to do, above all, with that most beautiful of Christian virtues, patient resignation. As soon as a man arrives at St. Dunstan's, I tell him that there are no blind there, but simply a cheery lot of normal men who can't see."

Sir Arthur related his troubles with the relatives of soldiers, who were much more difficult to handle than the men themselves, for they continually wanted to assist and guide and pamper the men who were perfectly able to take care of themselves, "for," said the speaker, "I always tell the men that the best way to learn not to bump your nose on the door is to bump it. Unfortunately, the worst enemy of the blind man is his wife or his mother. I talk to her and explain. Sometimes she is reasonable and that is enough. Sometimes she is not, and then the discussion continues. A number of buildings have been put up for the accommodation of these relatives, so that they can stay for a week at a time. Not only is this pleasant for the men, but I believe it is necessary.

"One of the first things we teach the men is, peculiarly enough, dancing, for it gives them a sense of balance and a feeling of security in getting about. A man feels most his loss of freedom in getting about, and dancing is an excellent lure to bring it back to him. Our Friday evening balls are astonishing to visitors, for they see many of the girls going about with their eyes shut. The fellows, you know, like to do the steering. Then they learn to play checkers, dominoes, chess. They debate. They play musical instruments of every description. They have entertainments of every kind and latterly they have been supplying most of the talent themselves. When the news came of the signing of the armistice, there was a general strike. They set up the band (and it is not at all a bad band) on the fire engine, and the whole 400 of them followed it through the streets of London. And you can bet the people didn't give them half a reception.

"Every one of the men learns to read the Braille type, and when he is through he can read at the normal speed. One of the men who had had one hand blown off and all but his little finger removed from the other, learned to read Braille with that finger, and more than that, learned to use the typewriter at about half the normal speed. Every one learns the typewriter as a matter of course, and with what facility is shown by the case of Bocking. I came down the hall one day and heard a typewriter going at a fair rate. I asked who it was. 'Bocking, sir,' came the answer. 'I'm writing to my mother.' 'How long have you been at it?' I asked. 'Five weeks, sir, and I have never seen a typewriter.'

"Our stenographers leave with a guaranteed speed of 100 words a minute, and they can probably do 125. There are forty-two of our men working in offices in London, and are getting normal wages, or higher wages than they did before in their old positions. Our telephone operators do the work just as well as seeing persons. In a competitive examination of masseurs in which 342 contestants from all parts of England took part, one of our men took second place. Most remarkable are our carpenters. They do admirable work with the ordinary tools, and at times our visitors are treated to an uncanny sight. The regular work goes on until 4 o'clock, but an extra hour is given to those who wish to continue by themselves. On Winter evenings, it is dark of course, and since the seeing supervisors have gone home, the lights are turned out. Then one hears a chorus of hammers and saws coming from a pitch dark room. The blind are at work.

"Late in the afternoon, out on the grounds, you will see the boys making their way down to the lake for a swim, or engaged in tug-o'-war, or wrestling; or you will see them racing for all they are worth along the cinder path. They are like all the rest of the boys the world over.

"The causes of the success of St. Dunstan's are several. In the first place, there is always the refusal to recognize a handicap. Then there are the blind teachers. All the teachers are blind, and under them a man feels that, since his teacher has succeeded, his pupil must succeed. And, finally, there is the superb courage of the Anglo-Saxon race, the courage of Chateau-Thierry, of Vimy Ridge, and of Ypres.

"The work of St. Dunstan's will make a difference to the whole world, for the Canadians who have benefited have already taken steps to save from darkness the 7,000 blind in Canada, but Colonel Bordley here has resolved that when he is through with the soldiers he will devote himself to the blind at his place in Evergreen, Baltimore."

Sir Arthur concluded with a number of humorous incidents based on the almost uncanny skill which some of the men had developed, not only as regards their mechanical powers, but in the intensification of their other senses. And finally he told how 400 of the graduates of the school had married, had married delightful, charming young women, the kind that somehow combined the qualities of both the wife and the mother. "And as I see them with these sweethearts," he said, "passing under the trees and over the lawns, I think of the lines: 'You are nearer to God in a garden than anywhere else on earth.'"

REPLIES TO DR. E. M. STIRES

Col. Peart Says Salvation Army Did Defend Y. M. C. A.'s Work.

Answering the criticism of the Salvation Army made by the Rev. Dr. E. M. Stires before the Presbyterian Union that the Salvation Army should have defended the Y. M. C. A., Colonel William Peart, Chief Executive Secretary of the Salvation Army, gave out a statement last night, saying that the Salvation Army in public utterances has made reference to the good work being done by the Y. M. C. A. and that his organization would not admit the Y. M. C. A. needs defenders now, because the "great and good work of the 'Y' will in due course prevail ever over any possible criticism." Continuing, he said:

"In July, 1918, the Salvation Army sent the Director of its Publicity Department to Bruce Barton, then Publicity Director for the Y. M. C. A., in America, to lay before him concrete evidence of the earnest co-operation of the 'Y' workers and Salvation Army workers. Specific incidents where the huts of one organization had drawn on the huts of the other organization for supplies when caught short were reported and promptly embodied in joint publicity statements which were issued to the press. This was many weeks before the United War Work drive. At the same time the Salvation Army cabled its representative in France to furnish all the information possible as to the excellent work of the 'Y' and the manner in which the organizations were co-operating, and when the Salvation Army cabled to France for war workers to return on furlough to aid the war fund drive in which the 'Y' was mainly interested, instructions were given that they gather and present all the evidence they could of the splendid and efficient work done by the 'Y' at the front. Commander Miss Booth has upon every possible occasion when making public addresses dwelled especially upon the good work of the Y. M. C. A. as have all of the speakers controlled by the Salvation Army. To the extent of its ability, and as opportunity presented itself, the Salvation Army has aggressively spoken up in public on behalf of the good work of the Y. M. C. A.

"I do not believe that Dr. John R. Mott, head of the Y. M. C. A., either shares the views of Dr. Stires or feels that his organization stands in need of further defensive exertion from the Salvation Army. We are quite sure if Dr. Mott felt as Dr. Stires does, we would hear from him."

PICTURES OF SHIPBUILDING.

John C. Johansen's 25 Paintings to be Shown at Arden Galleries.

An interesting collection of pictures, the only ones of the kind which have been done in this country, are twenty-five canvases by the artist John C. Johansen, who in them has made a record of the Government work in shipbuilding, which will be shown for three weeks at the Arden Galleries, 599 Fifth Avenue, beginning today. It is Mr. Johnson's contribution to war work and represents months of effort, the work being begun last July. If the war had been continued the paintings would have been presented to the Government for use as propaganda. As a record of the great industry which sprang up in a night they should be kept together, but as no effort of this kind has as yet been made they will probably be separated. Mrs. E. H. Harriman has already purchased one of them, "The Flying Cranes of Bristol," which she has loaned for this exhibition.

The paintings have a picturesque value aside from their historic interest. This is notably the case with the picture belonging to Mrs. Harriman, with its great flying cranes, a part of the framework supporting them hazy with the smoke of the engines of the trains bringing in the material for the work. The "Fifty Shipways of Hog Island" Mr. Johansen exhibited at the last Academy. The ways are shown looking down from one end, and on the ground below great numbers of workmen suggest the army of from 50,000 to 60,000 who were employed there daily. There are two other pictures of Hog Island, one made at night.

"A Gala Day at a Ship[illegible]—Two Ships for the Water" shows two completed war monsters about to slip out into the water, flags flying, hats and handkerchiefs waving, and gay bunting in the foreground where the people are standing. "Swinging a New Keel Into Place Immediately After Launching a Wooden Ship at Cornwells" has a thrill in it, the newly launched ship floating on the water, while almost at the minute it leaves the way the crew swing in a new keel to begin work in the place it has left vacant.

ONLY TWO WOMEN'S TICKETS

Mrs. Lilly Denies Report of Third at the Federation Election.

Informal statements made at the meeting of the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs at the Hotel Astor last Friday, that Mrs. Harry Lilly, who heads one of the tickets for election next Friday, also was running on a third with two of the Vice Presidents running with Mrs. Thomas Slack, who heads a second ticket, were emphatically denied yesterday. "The only ticket which I head now or shall head," said Mrs. Lilly, "has for Vice Presidents Mrs. R. Percy Chittenden, Mrs. William D. Sporborg, and Mrs. Louis Ralston."

Mrs. John Francis Yawger, President of the City Federation of Women's Clubs, also denied that there was a third ticket. She said: "There will only be the two regular tickets, one headed by Mrs. Slack and the other by Mrs. Lilly."

WHISTLER ETCHINGS SOLD FOR $500,000

MADE FROM 370 PLATES

A First State of the "Jo" and Glorious "Nocturne" Among Gems—Beautiful Lithographs.

Howard Mansfield's famous collection of Whistler etchings and lithographs has been sold, it was learned yesterday, for a price which is reported to be in the neighborhood of half a million dollars. It was sold through Arthur H. Hahlo & Co. to a private collector, whose name is not given, but who is not a resident of this city. There are 420 impressions of the etchings in the collection made from 370 plates. Of the lithographs there are 162 impressions made from 158 subjects. The total known number of Whistler etchings is 442 and 166 lithographs.

The collection of Whistler etchings and lithographs owned by Mr. Mansfield justly has been considered one of the great collections of this country. It is extremely wide in scope, containing many rare states and subjects, of which only a few impressions were pulled, but what is far more important, it is a collection that excludes the work which the artist himself criticised as falling below his own standard, and is remarkable for the wonderful quality of each impression. Mr. Mansfield's zest for collecting led him not toward the most, but toward the best, and the group of superb prints assembled by him literally has not a flaw.

Among the most magnificent of the impressions in the collection is a first state of the "Jo," the canceled plate belonging to Mr. Mansfield. This rare drypoint belongs to the year 1861 when Whistler was painting with Courbet in France and produced his beautiful "Coast of Brittany." The model was the one who appears in "The White Girl" and other important paintings. The Pennells describe her as "a woman of next to no education, but of keen intelligence, who, before she had ceased to sit to Whistler, knew more about painting than many painters, had become well read and had great charm of manner." Only five impressions of the first state of the etching are known to Mr. Mansfield.

A striking contrast to this plate, in which the linear quality predominates, is the glorious "Nocturne," known to all Whistler lovers, and present here in what is probably the finest impression in existence. Others of the Venetian set are hardly second to it, and many were chosen especially for Mr. Mansfield by Whistler himself and bear upon the reverse side of the paper the identifying mark, as well as the butterfly and the "imp," the latter signifying Whistler's own printing.

"The Beggars," which was among those selected by the artist, he regarded as the finest proof from the plate, and is an impression from the ninth state. "The Wool Carders" is present in what is probably a unique impression of the first state, and there are other rarities, such as "Nora Quinn," a probably unique impression from the first state of "The Wine Shop," the first proof pulled of the "Zaandam," the richest known impression of the lovely "Pierrot," among an amazing number of items that will quicken the pulses of all collectors of prints.

The lithographs possess a beauty as great as that of the etchings. Their tenderer and more subtle appeal steadily has gained ground with the Whistler public, and the Mansfield group is distinguished by the freshness and perfection of the impressions, more important in the case of lithographs than in the case of etchings, owing to the great delicacy of the lithographic medium, the first fine charm of the work vanishing like the dust from a butterfly's wing with continued handling. The lithographs include Whistler's first experiment in color printing, a figure study, his unsurpassed "The Horoscope," "The Siesta," of extreme beauty and rarity, and a "Lady and Child," in color which is perhaps unique.

WOMEN HONOR ROOSEVELT.

Health Protective Association Holds Commemoration Services at Astor.

Commemoration services were held for Theodore Roosevelt by the New York Women's Health Protective Association at the Hotel Astor yesterday afternoon, opening with a prayer and closing with a benediction by the Rev. Dr. Edwin A. Keigwin, who was one of the speakers. Mrs. Ralph Trautman was another. A poem, "Roosevelt," by Grace D. Van Namee, was read by Mrs. William Rogers Chapman, and there were several solos, including "Crossing the Bar," by James Price.

Mrs. Trautman's talk was called "A Link from Memory," and in it she recalled incidents of her association with Colonel Roosevelt, dating back to the days in which he held office in New York City and called upon her as President of the association for co-operation.

Dr. Keigwin spoke of Roosevelt as the home man who preached from the White House the value of the home as the foundation of the American commonwealth.

Memorial services will be held on Sunday morning at Keith's Riverside Theatre, Broadway and Ninety-sixth Street, through the courtesy of Edward F. Albee, general manager of the Keith houses. Mr. Roosevelt's personal friend, the Rev. J. J. Curran of Wilkes-Barre, Penn., will deliver the memorial address. Rabbi Maurice Harris and the very Rev. Richard Cartwright, assistant Superior of the Paulist Fathers, will say the opening and closing prayers.

DELIVER 28 TONS OF FOOD.

American Relief Furnished to Rumanians and Czechoslovaks.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—The American Food Administration today gave out the following statement relative to the relief of Rumania and other countries:

"The American steamship Western Plain has arrived at a Rumanian port with 7,000 tons of American flour for the relief of the Rumanian population, who have suffered an almost total failure of their crops. Even from these poor crops Germany requisitioned a large quantity of grain and transported it to Germany. One hundred thousand tons of this grain was found in barges on the Danube when the Allies entered Rumania, and was restored to the owners.

"In accordance with promises made to the Czechoslovak Government, the United States Relief Administration has delivered to it 5,000 tons of flour at Triest, which is being transported by Czechoslovak trains to Prague. There has also been placed at the disposition of the Czechoslovaks at Triest 6,000 tons of pork and 10,000 tons of flour. Additional quantities are available for them at that point as fast as transportation can be arranged.

"The difficulty of transportation is accentuated by the fact that all trains from Triest to Bohemia must pass through Italy, and Jugoslav and Austrian territory, and it has been necessary to make arrangements with these other peoples to insure safe transit. Since these territories are all extremely short of food themselves and have very little stable government, American soldiers are expected to accompany the trains as guards."

BAVARIA'S EX-QUEEN MARIA THERESA, DIES

She Was Credited with Responsibility for the Deposition of Crazy King Otto.

PUT LUDWIG ON THRONE

He Had Rejected an Offer of the Crown, but Was Willing to be Regent.

BASLE, Switzerland, Feb. 4.—Former Queen Maria Theresa of Bavaria died last night at the Château Wildenhard, according to a dispatch from Munich today.

The death of former Queen Maria Theresa was erroneously reported on Nov. 16 last in a dispatch from Amsterdam, a denial being issued shortly afterward. She was seriously ill at the time, however. This was eight days after the Bavarian Diet passed a decree deposing the Wittlesbach dynasty, forcing King Ludwig, whom she married in 1868, to give up his crown. Maria Theresa was formerly an Archduchess of Austria-Este of the branch of Modena, and was born in 1849.

Maria Theresa has been described as a very masterful woman, and she was credited with having been the real ruler of Bavaria. She is credited with the responsibility for the deposition a few years ago of crazy King Otto, securing a modification of the Constitution in order to remove all possible obstacles to her plan, and before ten months had elapsed succeeded in having her husband proclaimed as King and herself as Queen of Bavaria. Her husband previously rejected the offer of the crown, and had declared his intention of contenting himself with the regency.

MRS. CANDEE DEFEATS MISS SEARS AND MISS BJURSTEDT BEATS MRS. PRICHARD IN TENNIS TILTS

MISS SEARS LOSES IN STRAIGHT SETS

Boston Girl Is Overwhelmed by the Vigorous Attack of Mrs. de Forest Candee.

MOLLA BJURSTEDT WINS

Four Players in Upper Half of Draw Win Their Way Into Semi-Finals in Spirited Matches.

The defeat of Boston's prominent girl athlete, Miss Eleanora Sears by Mrs. de Forest Candee on the indoor courts of the Heights Casino yesterday afternoon furnished the surprise of the women's invitation tournament. Mrs. Candee won in straight sets, 6—4, 7—5. Miss Sears, one of the ranking players of the Longwood Cricket Club at Chestnut Hill, was outgeneraled by her Brooklyn opponent and the chop stroke, which has been such an effective weapon in her tennis victories, was easily solved by Mrs. Candee.

That Miss Sears was surprised at Mrs. Candee's spirited attack was very evident when Mrs. Candee sent back the ball on numerous occasions before it hit the canvas covered court. Miss Sears did not send the ball as far into the back court as she planned to with her chop stroke and Mrs. Candee was in the forecourt ready for the ball when it came over. The match was interesting and there never was a moment when there was not plenty of action.

Mrs. Candee took the offensive at the start and forced the playing in the first set. She anticipated what was coming most of the time and had Miss Sears completely baffled with swift overhead smashes. By setting the pace, Mrs. Candee held her advantage and although Miss Sears played with coolness and without any apparent effort she failed to overcome the bombarding shots of her opponent.

Mrs. Candee, satisfied with her victory at 6—4 in the opening set, took things somewhat easier at the beginning of the second set and while she was playing on the defensive, Miss Sears quickly took advantage of the situation and steadied down to a better game. She mixed her stroke frequently and her advantage was so pronounced for a time that she had Mrs. Candee 5—2 on games. With defeat looming up before her Mrs. Candee rallied and began to solve the clever Boston girl's change of pace. Mrs. Candee again began to outguess her rival and her passing shots became less frequent.

When the game was going against her at this time through Miss Sears's skillful play, Mrs. Candee again came up to the net and fairly overwhelmed the Boston girl with the very power of her attack. In as pretty a rally as has been seen in the tournament, Mrs. Candee swept on, one game after another, taking five straight games and winning the match, 7 to 5.

Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the national champion, got into the tournament for the first time. Although she is still suffering from a bad cold and with her throat enveloped in a large muffler, she did not have to extend herself to win from Mrs. W. H. Prichard at 6—1, 6—1. The four players in the upper half of the draw who won their way into the round before the semi-finals yesterday were Mrs. Candee, Miss Bjurstedt, Miss Adele Cragin, and Miss Cassel. Miss Bjurstedt will meet Miss Cassel this afternoon in a match which should be one of the best of the tournament.

Miss Cassel is playing fast tennis and won her matches in the second and third round yesterday. In the second round she defeated Mrs. Samuel Waring at 6—2, 6—1, and in the following round won from Miss Bessie Holden by the same score. Miss Marie Wagner, who is one of the players to reach the round before the semi-finals in the lower half of the draw, also won two matches yesterday. She defeated Mrs. Albert Humphries, 6—0, 6—1, and won from Mrs. Rawson Woods, 6—2 6—3.

There were several other interesting matches in the competition yesterday, Miss Helene Pollack winning from Mrs. Percy Wilbourne in a hard-fought match, 7—5, 9—7. This match seethed with action from the start, and Mrs. Wilbourne forced her opponent to two deuce sets for a total of twenty-eight games before there was a decision.

The women's doubles, which should furnish competition as interesting as the singles, got under way yesterday. Miss Eleanor Goss and Mrs. Rawson Wood defeated Mrs. Barger Wallack and Miss Coster. Another strong pair, Miss Wagner and Miss Cassel, defeated Miss Gott and Miss Cragin, 6—0 6—3. The two young Hooker sisters, Miss Barbara and Adelaide, were defeated by Mrs. Mills and Mrs. Prichard, 6—2, 6—3.

The summaries:

Second Round.—Miss Claire Cassel defeated Mrs. Samuel Waring, 6—2, 6—1; Miss Marie Wagner defeated Mrs. Albert Humphries, 6—0, 6—1.

Third Round.—Mrs. de Forest Candee defeated Miss Eleanora Sears, 6—4, 7—5; Miss Adele Cragin won from Mrs. B. Briggs by default; Miss Molla Bjurstedt defeated Mrs. W. H. Prichard, 6—1, 6—1; Miss Claire Cassel defeated Miss Bessie Holden, 6—2, 6—1; Miss Marie Wagner defeated Mrs. Rawson Wood, 6—2, 6—3; Miss E. Gott won from Mrs. Edward Raymond by default; Miss Helene Pollack defeated Mrs. Percy Wilbourne, 7—5, 9—7.

Women's Doubles.—First Round—Miss Eleanor Goss and Mrs. Rawson Wood defeated Mrs. Barger Wallack and Miss Coster, 6—2, 6—3; Miss Marie Wagner and Miss Claire Cassel defeated Miss E. Gott and Miss Adele Cragin, 6—0, 6—3; Mrs. D. C. Mills and Mrs. W. H. Prichard defeated the Misses Barbara and Adelaide Hooker, 6—2, 6—3.

Braeburn Club Urging Vardon to Play Here.

If the Braeburn Club, which will be the scene of the national open championship next Summer, succeeds in enticing Harry Vardon, the famous English professional, to this country, it will have accomplished something for golf in the United States. Latest advices from Boston lead to the inference that the suggestion emanated from the mind of Harry L. Ayer, former Massachusetts Golf Association President. Ayer has been in conference with Mike Brady, Bay State open titleholder, and for some time has been conducting a correspondence with prominent men in golf in England, in which he has proposed an interchange of professionals for a time; that is, an American to go to England and an Englishman to come to America. As yet, all the details are in the air, especially as to who the American visitor to Britain would be.

Should Vardon decide to come to this country and get here before the national open, contenders for that title would find an opponent worthy of their steel. It may be that Vardon would be able to accomplish what he failed to do in 1913; that is, win the national open title of this country for the second time. In 1900 at the Chicago Golf Club Vardon won, while in his own land he is the only golfer to have held the title six times.

Apropos of Brady, latest rumors are to the effect that he is entering into negotiations with a club in this district for a position this year. There are half a dozen clubs in the metropolitan district looking for professionals, and it may be that Brady will locate with one of these.

Cannefax to Play in Brooklyn.

Robert Cannefax of St. Louis, former three-cushion billiard champion, and Charles Otis of Brooklyn will begin a three nights' match this evening at the National Recreation Academy in Brooklyn. The cueists are to play for 150 points, in blocks of 50 points, tonight, tomorrow, and Friday.

Schoville Wins at Angle Game.

Frank Schoville defeated E. L. Spence by a score of 50 to 44 in the Class A three-cushion metropolitan billiard championship tournament of the A. A. B. A. at Thum's rooms last night in a close eighty-one-inning game. Schoville's highest run was 3, while that of Spence was 4.

BILLIARD CHAMPION LOSES.

Unger Beaten by Gardner in National Class C Tourney.

Gus Gardner was the author of a surprise last night in the national amateur Class C 18.2 balk line billiard championship tournament at Lawler Brothers' Academy in Brooklyn, when he defeated Ferdinand A. Unger, the present title holder, by a count of 150 to 130. The contest produced the closest competition that has been furnished in the tournament to date. Gardner, showing exceptional form from start to finish, completed his string in 32 innings for an average of 4 22-32. Unger's average was 4 6-31. Each contestant had a high run of 23 points.

This setback is the first Unger has suffered since the final round play commenced, and the prophets were all discredited by the result. For 29 innings the cue experts battled always close together in the score. In the closing innings, however, Unger's efforts fell off noticeably. He seemed nervous and was unable to execute shots that ordinarily would have proved easy for him. Gardner, on the other hand, with victory in sight, concluded his 150 points with innings of noteworthy brilliancy.

Gardner got off in the lead when he clustered twelve markers in the second inning. At the fourth, after a run of fifteen in the third, he was leading by 27 to 23. The play until the fifteenth inning continued close, with Gardner leading by 50 to 49. Up to the twenty-seventh inning Unger fought a brilliant uphill battle, and managed to pass this stage of the contest on even terms with his rival. The score was 114 points for both. There followed a single tally for Unger in his twenty-eighth turn at the table, and a cluster of six buttons for the following inning. Gardner gathered eight in the twenty-ninth inning, taking the lead by 122 to 121. Thereafter the title-holder gradually fell behind.

Sydney Brussel defeated J. F. Blaisdell in the other contest by a score of 150 to 102 in thirty-four innings. Brussel, getting twenty points in his sixth inning, led thereafter.

The scores:

CRESCENT FIVE IS BEATEN.

Naval Auxiliary Team Gets Revenge at Basket Ball.

The officers' basket ball team of the Naval Auxiliary defeated the Crescent A. C. quintet last night in the New Moon gymnasium, in Brooklyn, by a score of 49 to 30. With this victory the sailors avenged a defeat which they suffered several weeks ago at the hands of the Crescent five.

The Naval Auxiliary team, showing unexpected strength, led throughout. At the end of the first half the score favored the sailors by 22 to 15.

Boxing Bill Is Introduced.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 4.—A bill designed to legalize boxing bouts was introduced in the Legislature today by Senator L. W. H. Gibbs of Erie. Under its provisions ten-round contests with eight-ounce gloves would be permitted, and decisions also would be allowed. The bouts would have to be held in buildings devoted entirely to athletic purposes. All bouts would be under the control of a Boxing Commissioner. The bill was referred to the Judiciary Committee.

Browns Purchase Catcher Mayer.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 4.—Walter Mayer, catcher on the Boston American team, has been purchased by the St. Louis American League Club, President Phil Ball of the Browns announced today. Mayer was prominent in the Red Sox lineup in the 1918 world series. The deal was for cash, but the terms were not announced.

CLOSER RELATIONS AMONG BIG THREE

Yale, Harvard, and Princeton Will Restore Football, Rowing, and Other Competitions.

The first definite step toward resuming relations in all branches of sports between Harvard, Yale, and Princeton was taken at a meeting at the Harvard Club yesterday when Faculty representatives from the three universities talked over rowing and football relations. Professor R. B. Merriman represented Harvard, Professor Robert N. Corwin Yale, and Dean McClenahan represented Princeton. The result of their deliberations was not made public. The representatives will report back to the Faculty Committee before any action is ratified.

The conference showed that the relations between the so-called Big Three will be even closer than in the past, and among the possibilities which may result from the meeting is that Princeton may be invited to take part in the time-honored Harvard-Yale regatta at New London.

Before placing athletics back on a normal basis, the faculties have the question of finance to consider. The chief source of revenue at the three institutions, football, has been cut off for two seasons, and other sports, such as rowing, which bring no revenue whatever, must suffer in consequence. If the New London regatta is not restored next June, it will be because of the necessary curtailing of expenses. It may have to be put over until 1920.

The football question is still unsettled. There is sure to be some curtailing of expenses such as expensive trainers, coaches and training tables, but it is believed that by next Fall the athletic conditions will be such that the usual football games between the three colleges will be played. It may be that Tad Jones will be brought back to New Haven to fulfill his unexpired contract and there is a strong possibility that Percy Haughton will again coach the Crimson eleven. There is a strong football committee in charge at Princeton and it is possible that the football coach at the lair of the Tiger will be Bill Roper.

The hockey, baseball, and track situation is pretty well settled. The hockey games will be played this year at the Brooklyn Ice Palace, the first match of the triangular series being scheduled for Saturday night of this week, between Harvard and Yale. On Feb. 15 Yale will tackle Princeton and on Washington's Birthday Harvard will play Princeton.

The baseball series has also been approved, and the three colleges will play series with each other two out of three games. The dates for all these games have not yet been decided, but will be arranged so as to come when each of the institutions hold their class days. The track and field games between the three have also been approved, but the dates have not yet been settled.

The committee in conference here yesterday announced that the decisions arrived at would be announced in the college dailies at each university.

FORDHAM TO PLAY RUTGERS

Maroon Eleven Will Also Meet Princeton Team.

Fordham and Rutgers will again meet on the gridiron next Fall, according to an announcement made yesterday afternoon by Raymond J. Kelly, the Fordham football manager. The contest will be staged at Fordham Field on Saturday, Oct. 25.

The Maroon schedule, which will be ready for publication within the next fortnight, will include games with Princeton, Georgetown, Lafayette, and Holy Cross.

Boyd Scores Cue Victory.

Frank Boyd scored a victory last night over Robert Steinbugler in the Victory handicap 18.2 balk line billiard tournament at the National Recreation Academy in Brooklyn. The score was 150 to 115 in forty-one innings. Boyd rallied near the end, and gradually left his rival behind him in the score. Steinbugler made the highest run of the match, a cluster of 26. He averaged 2 35-4. Boyd's highest run was 23 and he had an average of 3 27-41.

TWO KNOCKOUTS RECORDED

Referee Decides Issue in N. Y. A. C. Bouts for Invalid Tars.

Two decisive victories were recorded last night in the series of amateur boxing bouts conducted at the U. S. Naval Hospital in Brooklyn under the auspices of the New York A. C. and the personal direction of Captain George Lung, U. S. N., and Dr. S. B. Burke. The contests were witnessed by a crowd of 1,500 convalescent tars.

The boxers who scored knockouts were R. Hill, in the 128-pound class, and H. Epstein, Rutgers Place Gymnasium, in the 145-pound division. In both instances Referee George Schwegler was called on to display his discretionary powers in the second round.

The summaries:

110-Pound Class.—J. Williams, East Side House, defeated C. Schoby, East Side House; three rounds, judges' decision.

128-Pound Class.—R. Hill, unattached, defeated M. Peti, unattached; two rounds, referee's decision.

DEMPSEY TO GET $27,500 FOR BOUT

Rickard and Kearns Come to Agreement and Boxer Will Sign Contract Saturday.

Jack Dempsey, heavyweight boxer of Salt Lake City, was yesterday definitely selected as the opponent for Jess Willard, heavyweight champion, in a title bout to be promoted July 4, by Tex Rickard. Rickard and Jack Kearns, manager for Dempsey, after a conference at the Biltmore Hotel, came to an oral agreement. The men will sign contracts Saturday, when Dempsey will be in the city. For his end of the purse Dempsey will receive $27,500 and one-third of the motion-picture rights.

The Salt Lake City boxer is now on his way to this city from his home after a visit to his mother. He is expected to arrive Friday or Saturday.

The guarantee promised Dempsey makes the forthcoming contest the greatest, financially, that has ever been undertaken. The plans already mapped out provide for an outlay of $202,500. This does not include labor on the day of the match, minor incidentals which Promoter Rickard has not calculated, or the amount of the tax which will be levied by the State in which the contest is promoted.

The purse will be the largest in ring history. Willard is guaranteed $100,000 and Dempsey $27,500. The previous record for purses was made in 1910, when Jack Johnson and Jim Jeffries battled at Reno, Nev., for a purse of $121,000.

Rickard plans to build an open-air arena which will cost at least $50,000. This arena, according to present plans, will contain seating accommodations for 55,000 people. The western promoter expects the contest to bring at least $250,000 into the box office. He plans to assume the war tax burden himself. The prices of tickets will be from $10 to $50. At this figure, the promoter stated yesterday, he thought prospective spectators were paying all that could be expected of them. This means that Rickard is assuming a possible outlay of $25,000 in Government war taxes.

The selection of Dempsey came after a long and at times heated conference. Previous to the arrival of Kearns, Promoter Rickard had declared positively that he would not pay more than $25,000 to the Salt Lake City heavyweight. Kearns's first figure was one-third of the amount that was being guaranteed Willard. Promoter Rickard immediately denied this. After some more talk Kearns proposed $30,000, pointing out that he would be compelled to refuse many offers for bouts for Dempsey between now and the date of the Willard meeting. Rickard pointed out that if Kearns and Dempsey were so confident of beating Willard and taking the title, they should be more reasonable in their demands.

Subsequently Rickard made a proposition that he would give Dempsey $27,500 guarantee, with an added $2,500 if the contest drew more than $250,000. There followed some haggling, and finally Rickard proposed that the question be put to a vote of the newspaper men present, whether Dempsey was to receive $30,000 or $27,500. The vote of nine writers showed seven for the smaller figure and two for $30,000.

The promoter and boxer's manager then agreed to post $5,000 each when the articles are signed. Sixty days before the bout Rickard will post 25 per cent. of Dempsey's guarantee. Dempsey, it is provided, must be on the scene of the contest six weeks before the day of the bout.

Kearns noted in reading the articles for the bout signed by Willard and Rickard that there was no stipulation that Willard's title must be at stake. Dempsey's manager insisted that the bout must be a title match and wanted the articles to stipulate this. Rickard explained, however, that the absence of this condition was caused by the uncertainty of where the bout will be held. Rickard, added, though, that Willard understood clearly that his title was at stake.

No mention was made of where the match will occur. Rickard declared the western part of the country was much interested, but added that he did not think yet of entirely eliminating the East. Rickard has agreed that in case of an emergency which might necessitate shifting the contest abroad, he would pay the expenses of the participants in addition to giving the boxers their guarantees.

When the referee question was discussed Rickard stated positively that under no circumstances would he officiate. The selection of the third man in the ring is left to the boxers, with the proviso that if they fail to agree Rickard will nominate the arbiter.

JORDAN

Robert P. McCurdy

"I Want You to Meet Him"

For fourteen years Robert P. McCurdy sold Pierce-Arrow Motor Cars to the people of Pittsburg.

He was a believer in the Roosevelt theory — "When you work, work hard, and when you play, play hard."

He had worked hard — and most successfully.

And he wanted to play—and was entitled to.

So he gave up business—and yielded to the lure of the rod, the gun, and the golf ball.

But that was before the Jordan Car was announced.

Mr. McCurdy read the announcement.

He went to Cleveland. He saw the Jordan Car.

That was all he needed. The old tingle came back in his blood.

And he was back—for keeps, this time.

The McCurdy-Brainard Company was organized. And what they did with the Jordan Cars in Pittsburg and Philadelphia forms one of the brightest pages in automobile history.

Now the McCurdy-Brainard Company has acquired control of the sale of Jordan Cars in New York, with headquarters at "Jordan Corner"—Broadway at Sixty-third Street.

Mr. McCurdy is here—at his headquarters—and at the show.

Shake hands with him. He is a good man to know.

This is your introduction.

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday, 5@5¼ per cent. for the best names. Monday, 5@5¼ per cent. for the best names.

The quotations are for six months' paper.

⁂

In Laces and Embroideries.

Conditions in the lace and embroidery trade are showing rapid signs of improvement. Most of the large stores are now buying more of these goods and are featuring them extensively in the departments in which they are sold. More calls have been received of late for the popular-priced goods for trimming purposes. Although most of the orders now being placed are not exceptionally large, the buyers are coming into the market more often for merchandise.

⁂

Call for Colored Handkerchiefs.

Although there has been some complaint of late in regard to the business in handkerchiefs, and the attitude taken by the retailers in reference to prices, some of the manufacturers who have not reduced their prices are still selling merchandise in large quantities. Imported colored cotton handkerchiefs appear to be greatly in demand among some of the retail stores. One firm received an order yesterday for future delivery on this class of merchandise that amounted to nearly $4,500.

⁂

Among Upholstery Jobbers.

Most of the buying that is being done in the upholstery jobbing trade is described as being from hand to mouth. Reports from the road are to the effect that the orders are not as large as usual, but more duplicate orders are being received. Tapestries, brocades, and cretonnes are among the fabrics that are moving best. Conditions are unsettled because of the labor troubles, and these may result in increasing the price on some materials.

⁂

Gray Goods Business Stagnant.

Business in the local gray goods market lately has not been helped any by the erratic, and usually downward, trend of the cotton quotations. Yesterday matters were almost stagnant, neither side showing any marked disposition to trade. In printcloths there were a few sales of 39-inch 80-squares and 68-72s at 15 and 11 cents, respectively. Aside from these, the only transactions that came to notice were some sales of wide and narrow sateens, twills, and cambrics to the clothing converting trade.

⁂

Styles Favor Waistcoats.

The Spring styles in the new lines of women's suits are very favorable this season for the manufacturers of women's neckwear who are making waistcoats. Some very good orders have been received for these goods. In fact, the road business has been so big that some of the salesmen who should have returned over a week ago are still out getting orders. These goods are now being sold in the ready-to-wear and shirtwaist departments, as well as in the neckwear departments in the local stores.

⁂

Fall Openings of Woolens.

While no day has been set for the formal openings of Fall goods by the American Woolen Company, the general understanding is that the first of them will take place this week, probably today. Mackinaws will be the first to be offered, and after them will come in succession overcoatings and suitings. Other factors in the trade will follow the American company speedily because of the lateness of the season as compared with former years.

⁂

Fibre Silk Sweaters.

During the last week the sale of women's fibre silk sweaters has increased to such an extent that the question of delivery is being given much attention. Slip-on sweaters in all colors are greatly in demand, especially in the better grade of merchandise. Duplicate orders are very numerous, and are being received almost daily. Some exceptionally large advance orders have also been placed. One of the manufacturers said that on fibre goods his business has increased by at least 40 per cent. over last season.

⁂

Cloak and Suit Trade.

There has been much more activity during the last week among the manufacturers of ladies' suits and coats. Out-of-town buyers who have been holding off for some time are now in the market for merchandise. According to some of the firms, the orders that are now being received are very substantial, and for the most part include the higher-priced garments. This season most of the buying is being done in the city, as the road business in many cases was very unfavorable. Capes and dolmans are meeting with much more success this year.

Pleatings and Pleated Collars.

There is still a big demand for pleatings and pleated collars in the retail trade. In the city there is a good sale for these collars made of georgette crêpe that retail from $1 to $1.50 each. Many large orders have been received by the men on the road, where the demand in some cases is even better than it is in the city. A number of the manufacturers are agreed that the last month was one of the largest ever experienced by firms selling this class of merchandise. These goods are now being shown in some of the new colors, including Wilson rose and new shades of green and peacock blue.

⁂

Silverware Going Well.

In the silverware trade there has been a noticeable increase in the number of new out-of-town buyers who have been in the city lately. It appears that many of these are from out-of-town department stores which are opening up silverware departments. In some cases hardware dealers in the West are putting in this class of merchandise as a side line. The export business with South America and Australia is exceptionally good. In view of the large number of orders for hollow ware that have been received, it was said that it would be advisable for retailers to place their orders early, so as to assure delivery in time for the Easter season.

LOGIC

In the final analysis sales are the aim of every progressive retailer.

KARP-MAKE garments for Spring are so charmingly styled, so irresistibly beautiful they seem to take and sell on sight. And they'll sell equally well with you.

To the alert buyer who scours the market for models that will sell; to the hard-to-suit buyer who wants to conserve time and energy and profits:

BRISK BUYING OF FOX SKINS AT FUR SALE

Net Receipts of Second Day's Auction in Masonic Temple Close to $1,250,000.

SOME PRICE RECORDS MADE

Announcement That the Threatened Strike Is Averted Stimulates Market.

Brisk bidding on virtually all classes of fox skins at yesterday's fur sale, conducted under the auspices of the New York Fur Auction Sales Corporation, in the Masonic Temple, Sixth Avenue and Twenty-third Street, netted for the day close to $1,250,000, which with the $750,000 taken in on Monday brought the two days' receipts to approximately $2,000,000.

The announcement that the threatened strike of fur workers here had been averted acted as a stimulant to yesterday's buying, as many manufacturers who had been uncertain of their position stocked up on fox skins to capacity for next season's requirements. According to the officials of the sales corporation, prices obtained yesterday for the various classes of fox skins average about 25 per cent. higher than for similar goods at last week's auction held in St. Louis, while in many instances prices ran materially ahead of those prevailing at the auction held here in October. There were, however, some declines from October levels. Martens were said to have averaged about 30 per cent. higher than at St. Louis.

Yesterday's sale began with a remnant of the silver fox offerings not disposed of on Monday, and was followed by heavy quantities of Australian, red, and sundry fox pelts, including 21,475 fox tails, and 2,861 martens. Advances or declines recorded yesterday in comparison with prices obtained in October were officially reported as follows:

Gray fox, 30 per cent. up; blue fox, no change; white fox, 15 per cent. up; cross fox, no change; Australian fox, 10 per cent. lower; red fox, 15 per cent. lower; Japanese fox, 10 per cent. lower, and marten 10 per cent. up.

The range of prices for the day were: 5,777 gray fox pelts, $1 to $5 per pelt; 120 blue fox, $75 to $142; 653 white fox, $12 to $62; 630 cross fox, $35 to $147; 12,894 Australian fox, $1.25 to $5.60; 21,475 red fox, $12 to $47, and 2,861 marten, $16 to $82.50.

The day's most popular offerings appeared to be red cross foxes, and martens. The collection of martens was said to be exceptional, many dark skins being included in the lot. Charvet et Cie, a French concern paid $82.50 for some of the Marten pelts; this is said to be a record price. Red fox, although selling 15 per cent. lower than at the October sale, did better than expected, especially in view of the fact that 21,475 pelts went under the hammer.

The general comment yesterday was that good skins were wanted by the trade, manufacturers and dealers being ready to pay excellent prices for such pelts, while the poorer grades of skins sold at lower prices.

At today's auction, which starts at 10 o'clock, the offerings will be miscellaneous in character, the biggest single lot being 143,725 skunk skins. Other offerings of today include 37,749 Kolinsky, 56,850 raccoon, 4,769 badger, 528 Persian lamb, and 380 leopard. In addition, there will be several lots of pelts put under the hammer for the account of the Alien Property Custodian.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The War Trade Board announced tonight a revised export conservation list effective tomorrow. For exportation of articles on the list special licenses are required. The list follows:

WANT COPPER HELD BACK.

Workers Also Ask That Foreign Trade in Metal Be Encouraged.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Congress was urged in resolutions adopted today by representatives of the copper mine workers of Utah, Arizona, and Montana to provide legislation for the extension of long-term credits to foreign countries to stimulate the copper market and relieve conditions in the industry characterized as critical. The resolutions also called upon the War and Navy Departments to withhold the stocks of copper now on hand from the market.

Accumulations of copper at mills, smelters, and refineries, resulting from the sudden termination of the war demand, were estimated by the Department of Labor today at a billion pounds, valued at $175,000,000. Sales for the last seventy-five days, it was said, have been less than 5 per cent. of the output. This surplus of a billion pounds, it was said, was produced on a wage scale basis of 26 cents a pound. Sale of this surplus at the present market quotation of 18 cents, it was estimated, would mean a loss of $80,000,000 to producers.

CRIMMINS ESTATE $4,624,447

Realty Holdings $1,134,483, Stocks and Bonds $3,057,755.

The estate of John D. Crimmins, capitalist and realty investor, who died Nov. 9, 1917, was appraised yesterday at $4,825,128 gross and $4,624,447 net. The debts amounted to $89,729.

The realty holdings of Mr. Crimmins were appraised at $1,134,483, which included the east side of Madison Avenue between Fifty-eighth and Fifty-ninth Streets, worth $950,000; the property at 244 East Fifty-ninth Street, appraised at $15,000, and vacant lots in Queens valued at $30,680. Many of the parcels of real estate acquired by Mr. Crimmins were held in the name of the Crimmins Operating Company, of which he held 901 of the 905 shares of stock, appraised at $1,511,571. The assets of the Crimmins Operating Company included $1,872,889 in realty and leaseholds and mortgages aggregating the total of $1,949,895, the surplus of the corporation being $1,427,782.

Mr. Crimmins had $110,548 in cash, notes and mortgages amounting to $1:8,422, and insurance in thirteen companies aggregating $270,832. His personal effects in his residence, at 40 East Sixty-eighth Street, were appraised at $57,755, of which $31,300 was the value of his paintings.

Mr. Crimmins had $3,057,755 in stocks and bonds, of which the latter aggregated $262,000. The largest stock holdings, other than the Crimmins Operating shares, were: 1,000 Anaconda Copper, $52,625; 4,050 Consolidated Traction Company of New Jersey, $271,350; 300 Essex and Hudson Land and Improvement Company, $86,610; 105 Fifth Avenue Bank, $422,000; 2,326 Inter-Met. preferred, $104,670.

BUSINESS MEN PLEDGED TO LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Commerce Chamber Cables to Wilson Renewing Its Support of Project.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The support of American business to President Wilson in his advocacy of a League of Nations is promised in a cablegram sent to the President today by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

The message calls attention to a referendum vote of the Chamber's membership dealing with the subject, and declares that it is reasonable to assume that were a vote taken today the principles already indorsed would be advocated by even larger majorities. An executive committee, consisting of Edward A. Filene of Boston, Chairman; Philip H. Gadsden of Charleston, S. C., and George E. Roberts of New York, has been named to ask every member organization of the Chamber to create a committee on the League of Nations, take up the subject in public meetings, and supply member organizations with material necessary for carrying on campaigns of education.

"The opposition which has been expressed to a League of Nations in certain official quarters of this country may lead to the assumption abroad that there is lacking a strong support of your most able advocacy of such a league," the cablegram to President Wilson reads, "and as indicating the position of American business, your attention is invited to Referendum 11 of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, which deals with this subject.

"This referendum was taken in December, 1915, a time when there was much less interest in the idea of a League of Nations than exists today. Six questions were presented, all of them urging initiative on the part of our Government in bringing about concerted action, and while the League of Nations was in no way included in the document by name, such a definite organization was undoubtedly in mind when the vote was cast, and the result is therefore not without interest at this time when the whole world is awaiting with real anxiety the decision of the Peace Conference upon this great question. The votes cast were by organizations, not by individuals, and therefore represent the action of several hundred thousand business concerns.

"Upon the use of economic and military pressure is shown the greatest negative vote, and since it requires the two-thirds vote to carry a proposition in the Chamber it will be noted that the use of concerted military force failed to carry, all of the other proposals carrying by a large vote.

"American business records itself unqualifiedly in favor of such international association as you have been advocating, and it is reasonable to assume that a vote taken today would, in the light of larger experience and deeper thought upon this subject, be productive of even larger majorities."

BUSINESS NOTES.

Butler Brothers have just announced the payment of a 10 per cent. bonus on their yearly salaries to all employes, except members of the Board of Directors. This applies to the stores and warehouses of the firm in twenty-six cities. The bonus is given because of the high cost of living, the continuance of war conditions, and the uncertainties of the present transition period.

The local office of F. A. Patrick & Co. of Duluth, Minn., formerly at 43 Leonard Street, is now at 200 Fifth Avenue.

Charles Heacker, a resident buyer at 43 Leonard Street, will represent in the future these firms: Frank & Co., Savannah, Ga.; David Rothschild & Co., Columbus, Ga.; Clawson & Wilson Company, Buffalo and Cleveland, and B. Hart & Co. of San Francisco.

Hillman & Israel, 200 Fifth Avenue, have taken over the Classic Mills in Brooklyn, where they intend to manufacture high-grade novelty worsted sweaters. This makes the tenth factory now controlled by this firm.

Frank J. Fogarty, formerly with the Adele Knitting Company, will represent the Stephenson Underwear Mills of South Bend, Ind., with offices at 450 Fourth Avenue.

Munzer Company, resident buyers at 1,133 Broadway, have added to their accounts the following: Goldstein's, Lincoln, Ill.; Newman's, Jackson, Mich.; Crawford's, Waterloo, Iowa; Johnson Brothers, Grand Forks and Bismarck, N. D.; S. A. Williams Company, Birmingham, Ala., and the Sydney Company, Joliet, Ill.

USE JUDGMENT IN SELECTING YOUR INVESTMENTS

Experts are of the opinion that bonds of real intrinsic merit purchased around present prices are practically certain to sell considerably higher within the next few years. The question, therefore, is not so much as to whether to buy now as it is to use the proper amount of judgment in making selections. Should you wish us to submit to you a diversified list of securities, we would be glad to do so, following out your ideas as to types and geographical location as closely as possible.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Railroad Stock Advance Lends Firm Tone to Whole Market —The Supply of Copper.

A rather curious mixture of speculative sentiment was reflected in yesterday's stock market, which would have received little attention had it not been for the close study of the railroad situation in financial circles these days. At a time when commission houses were discussing in rather bearish fashion the business of the copper companies and of corporations engaged in certain manufacturing lines, a buying movement began among the railroad stocks which carried them forward with considerable strength. Presumably the retirement of commitments on the short side was the major influence behind the purchases, yet the upturn was sufficiently insistent while it lasted to awaken a fair amount of buying among industrial issues and the market left off with a firm front. The unusual event of a rising tendency of prices was witnessed while the gossip and comment of the market place were inclined to minimize favorable occurrences in business.

It appeared as though the opinions of Director General Hines on the railroads in his second day before the Senate committee assisted the market for railroad stocks. The features of the testimony, as it reached the Street by telegraph, which were scanned closely were those dealing with the plea that the carriers be permitted to remain under Government control for five years in order that a full test of good years and bad be made, and with the Director General's suggestions on regional corporations for the transportation system. When Mr. Hines went into some detail in respect to these corporations and how he would have them managed, traders seemed to surmise that considerale progress toward forming a workable plan for returning the roads to stockholders had been made. The statement by the copper producers in Washington in regard to the position of the industry was received too late for consideration by the financial district during business hours, but promised to supply material for cogitation today. The condition of metal stocks and the market as discussed by the copper men supplemented what they had previously been stating in private, namely, that since the armistice ended the war demand copper buying had been small almost to the vanishing point. With 1,000,000,000 pounds on hand, produced under costs far above normal, and consuming power throughout the world remaining to be rebuilt, it would seem that a difficult problem in respect to current operations and the wage scale is presented. The effect of the situation on dividends has been seen in a number of reductions in recent weeks, but the cuts already made can hardly be referred to altogether in forming an opinion of what is to occur in the early future, as many of the companies have large cash surpluses which represent the fruit of profitable years.

The market for foreign bonds was active and strong, the French municipal issues standing in the foreground. Liberty bonds moved irregularly, the later 4¼s declining slightly, as they have practically every day for some time past. Today $28,000,000 of public utility notes and bonds are to be placed before the public, returning 5¾ per cent. in case of a long-term issue and 7.30 and 7.55 per cent. for three-year paper. Several pieces of railroad financing are under consideration, among them an issue of New York Central equipment notes, which promise to go to the highest bidder in open competition between bankers.

Active Trading on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Feb. 4.—Active trading marked the day on the Bourse. Three per cent. rentes were quoted at 64 francs 75 centimes; exchange on London at 24 francs 98 centimes, and the 5 per cent. loan at 91 francs 85 centimes.

New York Life's Annual Report.

The annual report of the New York Life Insurance Company, issued yesterday, shows that new business written by the company in 1918 was the largest in any year of its history, and that while the company paid about $5,000,000 more in death benefits than in 1917, the influenza epidemic only served to stimulate appreciation of the value of life insurance. The company now has more than 1,360,000 policies in force, amounting to more than $2,838,000,000. Its resources total more than $995,000,000. The income for the year was more than $154,000,000, and more than $54,000,000 was paid to policy holders. The company hold $70,000,000 in Liberty bonds and $30,000,000 in war bonds of the allied countries.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Britain's Steel Men Worried.

Manufacturers of steel in England are complaining, according to advices received here, that foreign producers are able to offer their products in the British markets at prices averaging about two-thirds below those which can be quoted by the home companies. The condition, it is asserted, has been brought about by the excess profits duty. The British argue that the foreign manufacturers have been able to devote a large part of their wartime excess profits to the construction of new plants and other improvements, whereas the British producers, because of a more strict Government supervision, are not in this happy position. It is urged that the British steel companies be permitted to retain, free of interest, any amounts due for excess profits duty for a term of years provided the money is used for new plants and betterments.

No Demand for Copper.

At a conference in Washington yesterday between the copper producers, the miners, and Secretary of Labor Wilson, the assertion was made that since the signing of the armistice only 5 per cent. of the copper mined has been sold. More than 1,000,000,000 pounds of copper are now on hand, mined at high cost. Under the Government guarantee this could have been disposed of at 26 cents a pound, but the demand practically ceased before price-fixing ended. The unfavorable outlook was impressed upon the miners who will report to their organizations. It may be that the miners will be glad to accept the sliding scale as to wages.

⁂

Price for Crude Oil Reduced.

For some time it was maintained that oil prices would be unaffected by the tendency toward lower levels which was evident in other business activities. However, crude oil prices have been reduced twice in the last few weeks. The new prices quoted for crude oil of South Texas and Louisiana is $1.25 a barrel, as compared with $1.50 heretofore, and for Caddo heavy $1, as compared with $1.25.

⁂

National Lead Stock Offering.

The National Lead Company has arranged to offer to employes 5,600 shares of the common stock at $60 a share. The stock was acquired in the open market and is being offered to the employes at about 9 points below the market. Payment by the employes is to be made in thirty-six equal monthly installments.

⁂

Municipal Borrowing Increases.

Municipal borrowing during January showed an increase over several previous months, according to statistics compiled by the Bond Buyer. The issues brought out in January totaled approximately $24,000,000. In January, 1918, the figures were $18,406,056. August was the biggest month of last year, the borrowing amounting to $32,504,600.

⁂

Rate Investigation Welcomed.

Local shipowners received the news that the Senate Committee on Commerce may investigate and report back the cost of American shipping in foreign trade, as compared with foreign shipping engaged in the same field, with considerable satisfaction. A resolution calling for such an analysis has been introduced. Shipping men have been urging for a long time that amendments to existing shipping laws are vital to enable the new American merchant marine to continue successfully.

⁂

An Indication of Activity.

Charters filed in the principal States in January for new companies with a capital of $100,000 or more, involved an amount of more than $492,079,000, according to The Journal of Commerce. This has been generally taken as an indication that there will be a revival of business in the near future. The Journal's compilation shows that of the new charters $60,825,000 were oil companies, $12,525,000 were shipping concerns, and $2,780,000 were chemical companies. The total incorporation figures for the month compare with $129,951,000 in December and $287,641,000 in January, 1917. In January a year ago the total was $244,450,000.

⁂

Two Dividends.

Although there had been a considerable amount of market gossip about the usual Studebaker quarterly dividend based on recent financing by the company, there was little evidence following the announcement of the $1 disbursement in yesterday's session that the professional element had taken a position on either side, as the stock sold off when the news of the dividend was printed. Another issue which has attracted recent attention because of a steady demand was American Cotton Oil. Recent buying was reported as due to a belief that the dividend would be increased, and the common stock eased off immediately, following the announcement of the declaration of the regular quarterly dividend of $1 a share.

⁂

Victory Liberty Loan Gossip.

While the local Liberty Loan Committee members are discussing from day to day the terms upon which the forthcoming issue of bonds would be most enthusiastically received, with a view to presenting their suggestions to Secretary of the Treasury Carter Glass, it was learned yesterday that there has been no single suggestion so far made in local banking and bond circles that meets with general approval. Wall Street hears that the New York consensus of opinion seems to be that the new issue should be divided into two classes of bonds—one at a comparatively high rate, to appeal to the man in the street, and the other at a low rate and tax exempt, to appeal to the investor of large means.

⁂

New Money.

While the demand on the banks for new or clean paper money has resulted in many of the institutions not being able to obtain crisp bills for their depositors, it is understood that the failure in the supply is not due so much to the inability of the Government Printing Office in Washington to keep up with its orders as to the fact that there is a great quantity of good and usable paper money in circulation that it would be foolish to destroy in order to issue new notes. The large amount of Federal Reserve Bank notes which have been added to our circulation is less than three years old. Under former conditions the average life of the $1 United States note was 3.15 years. The average life of the $2 note was 3.25 years. The $5 note usually lived for 2.62 years, and the $10 note was good for 3.55 years of circulation.

ATTACKS BRITISH BARRIER.

Senator Weeks Says It Violates One of the Fourteen Points.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—A resolution criticising the new British import embargo order and asking the State Department, if not incompatible with public interest, to inform the Senate on any steps toward its modification have been taken, was introduced today by Senator Weeks of Massachusetts. Its consideration went over.

The new British prohibitions, the resolution sets forth, are "detrimental to the employment at their full capacity of our manufacturing industries," and in direct conflict with the third of President Wilson's fourteen peace principles against economic barriers.

NEW YORK CENTRAL TO SELL

Will Enter Market Shortly for $8,000,000 Through Equipment Notes for New Rolling Stock.

New public utility securities to an aggregate of $28,000,000 par value are to be offered to the public today, and indications were found in banking quarters yesterday of railroad financing to be undertaken soon. The New York Central, it was learned, will shortly enter the market for about $8,000,000 through the sale of equipment notes, the proceeds to be used to pay for new cars and locomotives ordered some time ago. The New York Central's transaction is expected to be handled through the Railroad Administration, and John Skelton Williams, Director of Finance, is likely to "go shopping" for the highest bid, as was the case with $25,000,000 Southern Railway notes, which a Chicago syndicate engaged to distribute last week, in whole or in part.

A syndicate headed by Drexel & Co. of Philadelphia, and Bonbright & Co. will offer today $12,500,000 three-year convertible 7 per cent. gold notes of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey at 98½. At this price the notes will yield more than 7.55 per cent., and will be convertible at any time prior to Dec. 31, 1921, into 8 per cent. preferred stock of the corporation. The preferred stock is a new issue, of which $10,000,000 par value is to be offered shortly to the corporation's stockholders for cash at par. The proceeds of the notes and preferred stock will be used to discharge floating debt and provide additional working capital for the company.

Another offering is of $10,000,000 three-year 6 per cent. notes of the Philadelphia Company at 96½, to yield more than 7.30 per cent. It was learned yesterday that nearly half of the issue had already been placed. The selling syndicate is headed by Lee, Higginson & Co. and the First National Bank, and includes the Chase Securities Corporation, Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., Montgomery & Co., Hayden, Stone & Co., and Kean, Taylor & Co.

The $5,500,000 5 per cent. general mortgage bonds of the Brooklyn Edison Company, which were bought a few days ago by the Guaranty Trust Company, are to be offered at 91, a price which returns the buyer about 5⅝ per cent. on the money invested. The issue matures in thirty years. The offering will mark the first time in nearly fifteen years that the company has issued bonds, new funds being raised during the period by sales of stock.

RAILROAD DEFICIT GROWS.

Commerce Board Figures Indicate It Will Be $250,000,000 for 1918.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Figures issued today by the Interstate Commerce Commission on the operating incomes of large railroads for December, 1918, indicate that the deficit to the Government for 1918 is already about $220,000,000.

For December the operating income for 175 railroads was $23,085,847. Past figures given out by the commission show that for some 194 large railroads the operating income for the eleven months ending Nov. 30 was $662,407,620. The figures for the eleven months added to the December figures make a total of $685,493,472. Subtracted from the Government guarantee of $905,000,000, this makes a deficit of about $219,600,000. The figures for the nineteen roads yet to report for December will increase the deficit still more, it is thought, probably to about $250,000,000.

Operating income for 194 roads for the first eleven months of 1917 amounted to $910,357,085, and for December of that year the income for 175 roads was $57,690,257, a total of $968,147,342.

NOT MORE THAN 12 LINES.

Hines Explains Further His Plan for Regional Railroads.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Director General Hines today explained to the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee how he believed a reorganization of the railroads into a few regional corporations, operating privately under close Government supervision, might be worked out. There should be not less than six nor more than twelve of these regional operating corporations, he said, with Government representatives on the Board of Directors of each. This method, Mr. Hines suggested, would result in more competition and better service than would be rendered by a single national corporation, and would give a "local touch" to the managements.

Regional consolidations would have to be directed by the Government and some Federal agency also would have to determine on plans for exchanging securities in the consolidations. All roads, including short lines, he said, should be included in the regional systems.

COTTON SHOWS REACTION.

Liquidation, Labor Situation, and Weak Cables Cause Decline.

After opening prices yesterday had showed gains ranging from 6 to 12 points higher than Monday's closing, the market turned weak on a general reselling by professional traders. The maximum losses for the day all around the list ran from 86 to 111 points. The firmness displayed in the early trading was probably due to short covering, carried over from Monday, by local and Wall Street operators, and by the sharp rise in the Liverpool market. Futures in Liverpool opened firm 27 to 33 points advance, which was more than that market was due to have shown to have equaled our closing on Monday. Later cables, however, reported a break in all options and brought with it heavy selling orders from abroad. Not all of the difficulty which has arisen between the operatives and mill owners in the Lancashire district has been settled, and this uncertainty led to the irregular and unsettled market there.

The liquidation which sent prices off in this market was initiated by professionals who are using the very much mixed trade and labor situation as a means to that end. March contracts started at 23.90c and registered as high as 24.25c shortly after the opening, but broke then to 23.20c; May's first price of 22.80c, worked up to 23.16c, and the liquidation here forced the price down to 22.05c, July, opening at 22.03c and going to 22.30c, and October starting at 20.40c advancing to 20.60c, likewise reacted under the selling and before the movement had run its course were substantially under the highs for the day. Around midday the market was quiet with prices easy, and it continued in this state for the remainder of the session. At the closing prices were from 39 to 50c under Monday's final quotations, or approximately ½c per pound.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

Central Union Trust Company of New York, Trustee

From the letter of Mr. Nicholas F. Brady, President of the Company, which is on file with us, we summarize as follows:

Brooklyn Edison Company, Inc., successor company by change of name to the Kings County Electric Light and Power Company and by merger to the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Brooklyn, is an operating company and does all the electric light and power business in the Borough of Brooklyn (except the Twenty-ninth Ward), City of New York, serving a population estimated at 1,600,000. The Company or its predecessors have been successfully engaged in supplying electric light and power since 1885.

The Bonds will be the direct obligations of Brooklyn Edison Company, Inc., and will be secured by a mortgage on all its real and personal property now owned or hereafter in any way acquired, subject only to $11,996,000 underlying bonds. The General Mortgage will close the mortgages securing these underlying bonds, no more of which may be issued.

Junior to the General Mortgage Bonds, there are outstanding $1,762,300 Debenture Bonds and $17,237,700 Capital Stock. Dividends have been paid at the rate of 8% per annum since 1904. The present quoted prices for these securities indicate an equity over and above these General Mortgage Bonds of about $18,000,000.

The following table shows the growth of the Company's earning power and the favorable relation between income and interest charges on its funded debt.

CABLE FREE TRADE PETITION TO LANSING

Noted Tariff Reformers Ask That Memorial Be Laid Before Peace Conference.

FOR INTERNATIONAL POLICY

Economic Greed, They Assert, Has Been Most Prolific Cause of All Wars.

The American Free Trade League, with headquarters at 120 Boylston Street, Boston, whose President is Major George Haven Putnam, the New York publisher, has cabled to Secretary of State Lansing a memorial in favor of international free trade, with a request that Secretary Lansing lay the memorial before the Peace Conference. The document was signed by several hundred free-trade college professors and many prominent free-trade Democrats in this country.

After reciting that the signatories represent varied groups of commercial, industrial, and professional activities throughout the United States, the memorial asserts that "economic greed has been the chief and most prolific source of modern wars, and the paramount, if not the sole, cause of the world war, proven by the unstinted lust, on the part of the chief aggressor, for world domination in trade to the disadvantage of other nations."

In the opinion of the signers of the memorial, "economic peace is the vital atmosphere of a league of free nations and involves freedom of trade in the mutual interest of all nations and to the disadvantage of none. The urgent need of all Europe and much of Asia for food, and of the devastated regions for machinery and raw materials for their reconstruction and rehabilitation, and of manufactured goods for their immediate consumption, make it an imperative duty for the civilized nations of Europe to sanction no policy that would have the result of obstructing trade or hindering the prompt delivery of these materials, with the necessary result of lessening the supplies so delivered, or that could make any addition whatever to the cost of products required by the starving and the destitute."

The signers give no consideration to the differences in the cost of labor in the different countries, but they do assert that "even for a nation looking to its own self-interest, the growth of trade which comes with the freedom of interchange of exports and imports makes for social freedom, a better understanding of other people, general prosperity, and, therefore, individual prosperity.

This is shown, it is said, by the benefits derived from freedom of trade among the United States, marred only by the participation with other nations in the war of tariffs, and the resulting diversion of much of the wealth accumulated through its domestic free trade into the hands of a few, at the expense of the many. The memorial continues:

"The great task before the world, through the peace conference, is the healing of the nations which means the welfare of all peoples. This can only come through world freedom made possible by economic freedom, which means economic peace. Now that the greatest of all wars is happily over, and the international spirit of freedom has vanquished national greed for world power, there must come the great peace which will first of all remove the economic, social, and political motives for future wars. If the new peace is not such a peace, the war will have been waged for naught and the sacrifices of millions of men have been in vain. For the first time in history there is an opportunity for the nations of the world to lay down their economic weapons along with their military arms and join in an actual brotherhood of humanity."

Among the signers of the memorial are Everett V. Abbot, former President of the Reform Club; Henry de Forest Baldwin, William Worth Bailey, former Pennsylvania Congressman; George Gordon Battle, Poultney Bigelow, S. P. Breckenridge of the Faculty of Chicago University; Clarence Darrow, Socialist lawyer, of Chicago; William C. De Mille, playwright; Dr. Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard University; E. P. Dutton & Co., New York publishers; Charles S. Fairchild, former Secretary of the Treasury; Dr. Arthur T. Hadley, President of Yale University; Charles H. Ingersoll, Henry Noble MacCracken, President of Vassar College; William Church Osborn, and George Foster Peabody.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. — Leon O. Fisher of New York, Second Vice President of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, became today head of the Insurance Department of the War Risk Bureau.

SAYS PACKERS ARE FAVORED

Lasater Insists Live Stock Men and Public Are Exploited.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Edward C. Lasater of the National Livestock Association told the House Interstate Commerce Committee today that the Food Administration allied itself with the five leading meat packers to exploit the livestock producers and discriminate against the smaller packer.

"This discrimination was so evident and so harmful to all concerned except the packers themselves," Mr. Lasater said, "that I decided to sever my connections with the Food Administration. Until then I had been chief of the livestock and markets division."

He read a large number of letters purporting to show an understanding between the Food Administration and the packers, and that no action was determined upon by the department unless the packers approved.

"The packers were allowed to make a good profit on everything they handled," he said, "and this profit was assured them. They didn't stand to lose a cent. But when the producers asked for the same privilege Mr. Hoover said it could not be done and that the producers should be willing to make some sacrifices to aid the country to win the war."

Mr. Lasater said that Mr. Hoover lacked the moral courage to explain the real causes for the high prices, and that this resulted in ill-feeling between the public and the dairymen which it would take a generation to remove.

HARE DREW TWO SALARIES.

$4,000 from War Department and $15,000 from Gas Company.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Testifying today before the Senate Buildings Committee, which is inquiring into the rejected Chicago Speedway Hospital project, C. W. Hare, an assistant at the War Department, said that since entering the Government service he had continued to draw two salaries, $4,000 a year from the Government and $15,000 a year from the United Gas Improvement Company of Philadelphia. He said, however, that he performed no service for the company.

Mr. Hare said he was "loaned" to the Government by the Philadelphia company when the war started, and first received from the Government $1 a year. Later he was appointed Assistant Secretary of Munitions, at $4,000 a year. He said he did not see anything wrong in accepting both salaries.

Jacob Newman, attorney for Edward Hines of Chicago, was recalled to explain that he had not intended to connect S. H. Ho[illegible], a Chicago real estate dealer now with the War Department, with charges made before the committee last week that Milton J. Trainor of the War Department real estate bureau had sought a commission of $100,000 in connection with the contract for the Chicago Speedway Hospital.

BRYAN AT CAPITOL WORKS FOR SUFFRAGE

Labors with Southern Democrats, but with No Success—Senate Conference Called.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—William Jennings Bryan appeared at the Capitol today and urged Southern Democrats to vote for the woman's suffrage amendment next Monday, warning them that if they failed to support it they might cripple the hopes of the Democratic Party in the North for twenty-five years. The Nebraskan talked with more than a dozen Southern Democrats, and then gave out this statement, which, he said, embodied what he had told the Democrats:

"Woman suffrage is coming to the country and to the world. It will be submitted to the States by the next Congress, if it is not submitted by the present Congress. I hope the Democrats of the South will not handicap the Democrats of the North by compelling them to spend the next twenty-five years explaining to the women of the country why their party prevented the submission of the suffrage amendment to the States. This is our last chance to play an important part in bringing about this important reform.

Inquiry failed to reveal that Mr. Bryan had made any impression upon opponents of the resolution. Senator Trammel of Florida, who had been urged by the President in a cablegram and was pressed by Mr. Bryan to vote for the measure, said to THE NEW YORK TIMES: "I told Mr. Bryan that I would carefully consider what he had said to me."

With Mr. Trammel's vote the suffrage advocates would have enough to adopt the resolution, but it was stated that the Florida Senator was as unalterably opposed to supporting it as before Mr. Bryan talked with him.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4, (Associated Press.)—Upon petition of twenty-two Democratic Senators favoring the woman suffrage resolution pending in the Senate, Senator Martin of Virginia, the Democratic leader, today called a conference of Democratic members for tomorrow night to consider the question.

Revenue Bill Again Held Up.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—Plans for final action on the War Revenue bill were revised today because of delay in preparing the conference draft. The conference agreement will not be submitted to the House until Thursday, with plans to begin House debate Saturday instead of Friday. This change will delay Senate action until next week.

KINGSTON, Feb. 4.—Public indignation has been aroused over the treatment of Jamaican strikers who have been working as laborers on the United Fruit Company's plantations at Bocas del Toro, Panama, and in Costa Rica, especially over the flogging of Jamaican laborers by order of German employers in Costa Rica, and the imprisonment of members of a deputation from the strikers which calle[illegible] the Governor at Port Limon, Co[illegible].

BETHLEHEM TAKES AWARD.

Agrees to Put Into Effect War Labor Board's Suggestions.

An amicable agreement has been reached by the War Labor Board and the Bethlehem Steel Corporation as to wage awards and a plan for collective bargaining in the Bethlehem mills. Paul D. Cravath, counsel for the corporation, announced acceptance of the board's jurisdiction, hitherto denied, after a meeting of the board at the McAlpin yesterday. The steel corporation requested the board to obtain from the Government additional allowances on contracts so that it could pay back wages under the awards. Assurances were given that such recommendations would be made.

"It has not been the disposition of Bethlehem to disregard the findings of your board nor to take advantage of the signing of the armistice to withdraw from the assurances which it gave you during the war period," said Mr. Cravath's statement. "On the contrary, the company authorizes me to say that it recognizes that you are entitled to its loyal co-operation in carrying through the two important measures with which your findings dealt:

"First, the inauguration of an effective plan for collective bargaining between the management and the employes, and, second, the doing of all that can be done to secure from the War and Navy Departments, and the other procurement departments of the Government, an allowance to cover such additional compensation as may be necessary to give Bethlehem employes the retroactive pay recommended by your findings."

It was announced by the board that no further action would be taken for the present, so that opportunity would be given to the corporation "to test the practical character of its proposals, and its full compliance with the spirit of those proposals as interpreted by the board."

TO EXPORT CEREALS.

Britain, France, and Italy Reach Agreement with Argentina.

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 4.—The representatives of Great Britain, France, and Italy today signed with Julio Moreno, Acting Minister of Finance, the cereal convention which for some time has been under negotiation. The foreign representatives declined to affix their signatures to the convention if it provided for a fixed quantity of cereals or a minimum price.

Immediately after the document was signed President Irigoyen issued a decree fixing the prices for exportation of cereals under the convention as follows: Wheat, 12½ pesos a hundred kilos; oats, 7 pesos; linseed, 18 pesos, and maize, 6½ pesos.

Under the American Treasury exchange rate the equivalents of the export charge in American gold will be respectively $5.31, $2.97, $7.64, and $2.76.

The shippers here tonight declared an absolute port lockout because the maritime workers persisted in boycotting some vessels. Every hand aboard coastwise shipping was dismissed tonight. An officer of the Coatwise Shippers' Association informed [illegible] Associated Press that he expected [illegible]ckout to continue f[illegible] a month.

BOR[illegible]5,000,000.

[illegible] National Loans Upon Six Months' Revenue Bills.

[illegible]ent reports in the financial district [illegible] the City of New York had been sounding bankers with the view of obtaining new funds to meet current expenses were borne out yesterday when it was learned that the Chase National Bank, which carries substantial deposits of city funds, had loaned about $5,000,000 to the municipal authorities on revenue bills which will run for six months. The rate at which the money was loaned is understood to have been an attractive one, not much in advance of 4 per cent.

The report that the loan had been made yesterday at such a favorable rate was accepted by the financial community as an indication that money rates will be easy for some time to come. In authoritative quarters it was said that loans of similar amounts have been made from time to time by the Chase National Bank, and it is understood that the basis upon which the advances were negotiated was controlled in each instance by the condition of the money market.

What Sponsorship Means

The sponsorship of a conservative banking house of large experience is the first essential in selecting bonds for investment. Such sponsorship means a comprehensive and definite system of safeguards for investors from the day their money is invested until the final payment of interest and maturing principal. Our interest in an investment does not end with the purchase of the bonds by our customers, but we continue to keep in touch with the affairs of the company until the bonds are finally paid at maturity.

Organized in 1882, this house has the accumulated experience of nearly forty years in the selection of investment bonds. In addition to a large volume of business with financial institutions here and abroad, we have for many years been selling bonds to individual investors.

These bonds are purchased with our own funds, only after a most careful investigation. We then offer them with our recommendation to our clients at prices to yield as high a return as is consistent with safety of principal.

We invite correspondence from investors interested in the purchase of investment bonds. Upon request, we shall be pleased to send a copy of our Investment Circular, containing a carefully selected list of government, municipal, railroad and public utility bonds which we are offering with our recommendation. These bonds may be purchased at present to yield from 4½% to more than 7% over a period of from three to fifty years.

We suggest you ask for Circular A-11

A NATIONAL CRISIS

Whether rapidly increasing unemployment, continued wage controversies, decreased profits in industry, friction at the Peace Conference and the usual after-war difficulties will produce a panic or a gradual business depression is problematical. One or the other is certain.

In either event, the interests of Babson clients will be carefully protected during the trying days to come just as they were before and during the war.

BIG CROWDS ATTEND AUTOMOBILE SHOWS

Hundreds of Dealers Examine New Models on Second Day of the Exhibition.

FAMOUS RACING STARS MEET

Display of Accessories Attracts Many —Automobile Engineers Hold Convention.

There were large crowds yesterday at the automobile show in Madison Square Garden and the 69th Regiment Armory. It was dealers' day and several hundred members of the National Dealers' Association were present, as well as delegations from the dealers' organizations of Brooklyn, the Bronx, Newark, and Jersey City. Captain Eddie Rickenbacker was present and some of his old racing comrades, including Barney Oldfield, Ralph Mulford, and Dario Resta. They made a tour of the arena floor, and received an enthusiastic ovation at every booth. Barney Oldfield arrived from the West with the announcement that he had retired from racing to assume the Presidency of the Oldfield Tire Company of Cleveland.

One of the features in the armory are the afternoon and evening talks on motor engines, illustrated by diagrams, by Lieutenant J. G. Jamison, who has just been mustered out of the American Air Service. He has been engaged by the Elgin Motor Company of Chicago, and he explains the similarity of the overhead valve operation in the new Elgin Six car as compared with such airplane engines as the Liberty, Curtiss, and Hispano-Suiza. A complete Elgin chassis is shown, giving a clear idea of the motor feature.

The air cooled Franklin cars, the only air cooled motor on exhibition, are attracting attention in the armory because of the compactness of their design and finished body work. One of the striking exhibits is the four passenger touring car finished in deep olive. There is also a five-passenger sedan and a five-passenger open car.

In the Garden, the Willys-Knight and the Willys-Overland four-cylinder models in both closed and open cars are attracting attention. A feature of the exhibit is the Japanese purple four-passenger Knight touring car, equipped with a Victoria top. It is fitted with wire wheels, which add to its appearance and in the rear is a specially designed basket carrier for two extra wire wheels. The open chassis of the new Overland, the little four-passenger car, is one of the novelties in the show, as it discloses the mechanism of the latest model which the Willys Company was preparing to build before the United States entered the war.

One of the new speed car types in the Garden is the National twelve speedster. It is finished in gray with red wire wheels and it has a tapering sweep of the body, resembling a torpedo. The back is hinged, providing a generous carrying compartment.

The accessory exhibits in the galleries of the Garden are, if anything, more diversified than in any previous show. They include everything from a small valve lifting tool to a unique convertible body shown in the armory, which, upon first appearance is a seven-passenger phaeton but may readily be changed into a sport roadster top for two or four passengers. Gasoline saving devices, primers, carbon removers, and tire fillers, including all the latest devices, are displayed.

Associated with the show is the annual meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers, which began yesterday in the Engineering Societies Building. The meetings were of a preliminary character, the chief one being that of the Standards Committee, which was engaged in a great deal of war work. The first of a series of professional sessions will be held today. Lieut. Col Herbert W. Alden, a former President of the society, and Lieut. Col. William G. Wall, both of whom have been in charge of important engineering work in the Ordnance Department of the Army, will speak on tanks and automotive ordnance apparatus, respectively. J. G. Utz will discuss the work of military truck standardization.

GEN. VANDERBILT CHOSEN.

Elected Chairman of Gov. Smith's Military Advisory Committee.

Brig. Gen. Cornelius Vanderbilt, recently returned from overseas, was elected Chairman of Governor Smith's Military Advisory Committee at a private session of that body held in the 71st Regiment Armory, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, last night. Colonel Charles E. Walsh of Albany, commander of the 10th Infantry, N. Y. G., was chosen Secretary.

The object of the meeting was to organize the New York State military forces. The findings of the committee were not made public at the close of the session, which lasted nearly six hours. It was announced that the result of the proceedings would first be laid before the Governor, who in turn will submit them to the Legislature in the form of an official message.

One of the questions discussed was the Federalization of the New York Guard, and the manner in which this shall be done. Another topic had to do with the methods to be followed in returning to their old organizations any members of the 27th Division who may wish to return to State service.

FIX PHONE RATE TO TENANTS

Apartment Houses May Collect the Actual Amount Paid Company.

Apartment house owners are permitted to collect from tenants the actual amount they pay to the telephone company for extension telephones, according to the interpretation of the order of Postmaster General Burleson by officials of the New York Telephone Company. They cannot, however, charge more than the regular pay station rate for telephone calls. Formerly an extra charge was made for calls in nearly all the apartment houses, varying from 7 to 10 cents for each local call.

An official of the telephone company said yesterday that the telephone company makes a charge for extension telephone as follows: The first eight, $6 a year; next ten, $4.80 a year, and above twenty, $3.60 a year. This amount, the telephone official said, the tenant may be required to pay, if the owner or agent of the apartment house saw fit to make the charge. This would mean an extra charge of 30 to 50 cents a month. Should an attempt be made to collect from the tenant more than the amount actually paid to the telephone company by the apartment house agent or owner, such apartment house is in danger of having its telephone service discontinued, said the telephone official.

McAdoo Film Company's Attorney.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 4.—William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, was retained today as counsel by a moving-picture company. Mr. McAdoo is spending the Winter near here.

LAWRENCE STRIKE GROWS.

Only 5,000 of the 30,000 Mill Hands Report for Work.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Feb. 4.—The strike of textile operatives here to obtain fifty-four hours' pay for forty-eight hours' work grew today. It was estimated tonight by persons familiar with the situation in the mills that not more than 5,000 of the 30,000 workers were at their places. The remaining 25,000 were divided between strikers, persons forced out of work by closing of mills or departments, and those who stayed away to avoid trouble.

BOSTON, Feb. 4.—Textile mills in various parts of New England continued today to fall in line with the plan of granting the employes' demands for a reduction in working time from fifty-four to forty-eight hours a week. Latest additions to the list include the Great Falls Manufacturing Company at Somersworth, N. H., where 2,000 persons are employed.

The Amoskeag Manufacturing Company and Starke mills of Manchester, N. H., employing 20,000 operatives, will put the forty-eight-hour week into effect as soon as business warrants.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Prices closed firm in a dull market yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. Fractional net gains were recorded in a majority of the active issues. Trading after midday was greatly restricted in volume, and price fluctuations represented professional operations. The top prices were made in the morning session, when an aggressive demand made for substantial advances in the list. After midday the movement was irregular, with the list as a whole showing recessions from the best prices.
